RED WAR CRISIS STIRS JAPAN

MIKADO STUDIES RUSSIANS' BOMB RAID ON COREA

5 Invading Planes Shot Down.

BULLETIN.

TOKIO, Aug. 2 (Tuesday).—(AP)—Soviet troops opened a general attack on Changkufeng, principal point in the critical Japanese-Russian dispute, today.

BY KIMPEI SHEBA.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Aug. 2 [Tuesday].—The soviet Russian air invasion of Manchukuo and Corea, infantry clashes on the Manchukuan-Siberian border, and soviet-Japanese tension in the far east were laid before Emperor Hirohito of Japan today.

A cabinet council met this morning to consider the crisis. Then Prince Kanin, chief of the army general staf, and War Minster Gen. Seishiro Itagaki went to the summer palace of the emperor at Sayama, near Tokio, to submit their report to the throne and to answer questions.

Call Air Raiders "Enemy."

The government is understood to be attaching grave importance to yesterday's soviet air raids and to be awaiting detailed information. Although a tense atmosphere prevails, it is generally considered the incident can be localized. However, it is significant that in the announcement of the shooting down of soviet planes the word "enemy" was used to denote the Russians.

[A Moscow dispatch said the soviet chargé d'affaires in Tokio had been instructed to protest Japanese military raids into Siberian territory and to warn the Japanese government of the "possible terrible consequences" of such invasions. The recent clashes have been on territory which both Russia and Japan claim.]

Five Soviet Planes Shot Down.

TOKIO, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Fifty soviet war planes today twice bombed and machine gunned Japanese positions on the Manchukuo-Siberia frontier.

The Japanese army declared five of the plans were shot down by anti-aircraft batteries, four of them inside the border of Japanese Corea. Two pursuit planes were shot down about three miles south of Kijo, Corea, two heavy bombers at Sozan, Corea, and another near Suiryupo, in disputed territory.

The soviet planes attacked Japanese positions at Changkufeng, beginning at noon. At 2:30 p. m. another group of bombers in formation attacked Corean border posts on the lower reaches of the Tumen river, entering Corea and bombing railway tracks near Kinsojo, south of Kijo.

The area around Changkufeng, where the frontiers of Siberia, Manchukuo, and Corea join not far from the sea, is a region which both the soviet and Japanese dominated Manchukuo claim. The area is southwest of Vladivostok, great Russian gateway to the Pacific.

Say War Depends on Moscow.

Domei [Japanese news agency] dispatches quoted a foreign office spokesman as saying it ow depended on the soviet attitude whether or not the border incidents grow into a major conflict.

Gen. Kazushige Ugaki, foreign minister, disclosed that yesterday he instructed the Japanese ambassador in Moscow to open new negotiations with Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinov, but declined to divulge the nature of the new steps.

Japanese militarists called the attack a "face saving" device by the Russians because of the loss of Changkufeng hill and other posts the Japanese claimed to have captured.

The newest soviet-Japanese friction commenced on July 11 when the Japanese accused soviet frontier guards of penetrating six miles within Manchukuo and starting construction of fortifications.

Army Takes Serious View.

Japanese military circles indicated they viewed the newest incident gravely. The Japanese army declared soviet troops were withdrawing northward from Changkufeng after yesterday's engagement there. The disputed territory, Japanese said, was regained in fighting which brought an estimate of 600 Russian casualties. The war office reported fighting started Saturday night and continued until dawn today.

Only about 800 soviet troops were said to have been left in the Changkufeng area, a statement which was

Big Phosphate Deal Sharply Criticized.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Knoxville, Tenn., Aug. 1.—[Special.]—The Tennessee Valley Authority's purchase of 550 acres of phosphate land last year at a profit of $527,000 to the seller drew sharp criticisms today from members of the congressional committee investigating TVA. The land was bought from the International Agricultural corporation for $678,459.

Paul W. Ager, chief TVA budget officer and assistant to John B. Blandford, TVA general manager, testified that two items in the congressional appropriation—one of $453,000 and the other of $71,000—were diverted by the TVA board to the purchase of phosphate deposits. No record of the switching of the funds was made in the board minutes at the time, he said. The only approval of the transfer, he said, was contained in Blandford's initials on the change order.

Representative Ewing Thomason [D., Tex.] and Charles A. Wolverton [R., N. J.] criticized the board's action in making the transfer.

Blandford Arouses Anger.

In his testimony earlier in the day Blandford aroused Wolverton's impatience by testifying he was ignorant of the details of several large TVA matters, including the phosphate deal. He referred the committee to various subordinates for specific information. Wolverton said he could not understand why the general manager of such a vast project as TVA should not know more about its operations.

When questioned about the 1936-'37 budget, Ager testified that TVA asked $4,500,000 for its fertilizer and soil conservation department. In this was an item of $120,000, later raised to $245,000, for buying and leasing phosphate lands. Ager said congress allowed $3,700,000 for the fertilizer and soil conservation department.

Charges Broken Faith.

"In other words," commented Wolverton, "you asked $120,000 to buy phosphate land but spent about $680,000 in one transaction. You have testified you kept faith with congress by spending the money for the purpose for which you ask the appropriation, but it seems to me you only keep faith within a particular title and you reserve the right to change amounts within that title."

Ager replied that TVA did not switch any funds from one department to another, that no wrong was committed in changes of items within a department.

The witness said Dr. Harry A. Curtis, TVA chief chemical engineer, requested the transfer of funds. The phosphate land deal, he said, was approved by the TVA board Feb. 16, 1937. On the following March 4, Ager said, Curtis asked in a memo for a change in the budget raising the funds for the purchase or lease of phosphate lands to $698,165, an increase of $453,000.

Challenges Authority.

Thomason declared he could not see what authority TVA had to transfer any funds appropriated by congress for fertilizer and soil conservation to phosphate land purchases.

Ager insisted the phosphate land purchase was part of the fertilizer manufacture and demonstration program. However, Thomason obtained

Virginians Vote on Roosevelt Rule

ANOTHER FELLOW STILL GOING IN THE WRONG DIRECTION

Professor Lost at Sea After Fight with Wife

New York, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Robert Moore Duncan, 35 years old, assistant professor of politics at Colgate university, disappeared at sea from the French liner Normandie last night, the ship's officers reported today when the liner docked here.

His wife, Alice, 36 years old, was in the ship's hospital when the liner arrived. She had cuts and bruises on her head and face. It was reported Duncan tried to throw her overboard.

Robert M. Duncan. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

Mrs. Duncan's father, the Rev. Willard Samuel Richardson, a former Baptist minister, has been associated with John D. Rockefeller Jr. in philanthropic and educational work since 1912. He officiated at the funeral of Mrs. John D. Rockefeller Sr. and at the burial services of her husband in Cleveland.

Quarrel Described.

The Normandie's chief purser, Henry Villar, described the drama on the high seas—450 miles from New York—which led up to Duncan's disappearance.

"Just before midnight," Villar said, "Mr. and Mrs. Duncan were walking on the boat deck. At a point just beneath the bridge they stopped and began to quarrel.

"Duncan grabbed his wife by the throat and hit her several times over the head, apparently with some instrument, knocked her unconscious and attempted to throw her over the side."

Villar said Joseph Brouard, a seaman on duty on the bridge, interfered in time to tear Mrs. Duncan away from her husband.

"He carried her to a companionway, put her down, and then went back to see about Duncan," Villar said, "but the man had disappeared."

Suicide Threat Told.

"When Mrs. Duncan was revived the first thing she said was, 'Get my husband. He is going to commit suicide.' We used the loudspeaker system in an effort to find Mr. Duncan and organized searching parties, but he could not be found."

Mrs. Duncan was taken from the ship's hospital to the home of her parents in a fashionable section of Montclair, N. J., where she and Duncan were married Sept. 1, 1928. They have two children, Willard, 7 years old, and Sally, 3.

The Duncans left New York June 25 for a North Cape cruise and boarded the Normandie at Southampton, England, for the return.

Duncan was born in Savona, N. Y., the son of the Rev. William Duncan and the late Helene Moore Duncan. He was graduated from Princeton in 1925 and received a Ph. D. degree there.

RUBBER STAMP IN CONGRESS IS PRIMARY ISSUE

3 Other States Pick Nominees Today.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1.—[Special.]—Featured by another test of the Roosevelt purge in Virginia and a spectacular contest involving racial and religious issues in Kansas, primaries will be held in four states tomorrow. The voters of West Virginia and Missouri, as well as those of Virginia and Kansas, will go to the polls.

In the historic eighth district of Virginia, which has given the United States four of its Presidents, 40,000 voters will decide a congressional contest between a conservative Democrat marked for defeat in the purge and a radical Democrat who has pledged blind adherence to the leadership of the President.

Party Cleavage Clear Cut.

Offering a clear-cut example of the cleavage in the Democratic party, the battle has attracted national attention. The issue is strictly whether Democratic congressmen shall follow the President unquestioningly or use their own judgment on proposals of the chief executive.

William E. Dodd Jr., son of the former ambassador to Germany, a chubby young man of 32 who was put into the fight by the Tommy Corcoran-Ben Cohen group in the White House, is opposing Representative Howard W. Smith.

Dodd has campaigned as a 100 per cent Roosevelt man. He has pledged himself in advance to vote for anything and everything the President may propose.

Representative Smith, 55 years old, a wing-collared Virginia congressman of the Glass-Byrd school, has retorted that young Dodd proposes to be a mere automaton—a rubber stamp such as is required by Mussolini or Hitler. Smith declared he would not be 100 per cent subservient to any President.

Historic Battle Ground.

The battle ground of the Virginia contest is a remarkable one. Within its area are the homes of four Presidents—Washington's Mount Vernon, Jefferson's Monticello, Monroe's Ash Lawn, and Madison's Montpelier.

It includes Upperville and Warrenton, called the two richest towns per capita in the world, and Hell's Bottom, one of the poorest communities in the nation.

Thus the voters will include the horsey set that follows the hounds, farmers, illiterates, government workers, and a beetle-browed gentleman named John L. Lewis, chief of the Committee for Industrial Organization. It is a highly unusual cross-section of citizenry which will decide one of the important questions of the day.

Smith, standing on his eight year record in the house, which includes several votes against Roosevelt proposals, is said to have an edge over Dodd in the race. A former Circuit court judge, he has waged a quiet campaign.

Dodd Uses Sound Truck.

In contrast Dodd has conducted the most energetic campaign Virginia has seen in many years. Traveling in a sound truck, an innovation in the political history of the state, he has been on the go night and day. He has termed Smith a political traitor who has been voting his own personal whims "to thwart the will of the President."

"If elected," Dodd has shouted time after time, "I will cast my vote to uphold the President in his struggle to accomplish his purpose over the fierce opposition of the Republicans and the Republican minded Democrats."

To which Smith, reiterating a campaign promise he made in 1930, replied:

"I will not pledge my support blindfolded to any unknown measure, to any person, on any subject, but will use my best judgment and discretion after careful study and consideration and vote for such measures as I believe to be in the interest of the welfare of our country."

Restores Life to Baby After Heart Stops

Mr. and Mrs. Charles N. Didier tucked their baby in warm blankets in the back seat of their car late Sunday night as they prepared to leave their summer cottage at Diamond lake for their home at 1600 Albion avenue. The baby, Robert Calvin, 3 months old, was sleeping.

Five miles out of Diamond lake their car struck a bump. The baby was thrown to the car floor. Didier, wondering why the baby didn't cry, stopped his car and picked him up. Then Didier cried, "He's dead, he's suffocated!"

Parents Speed for Help.

With his wife, Margaret, holding the infant, Didier drove desperately to Wheeling for help. He traveled the fifteen mile stretch at ninety miles an hour. He dashed into a Wheeling drug store, Dundee road and Milwaukee avenue, with the child in his arms. He told L. B. Anderson, a real estate dealer, and Bruno Schultz, the druggist, what had happened.

They worked for several minutes to revive the baby. Their efforts were futile. Anderson refused, however, to give up hope. He put the child in his car and drove to the Wheeling hospital. The Didiers followed. They were met at the hospital by Dr. Edward L. Larson, its founder.

Hears No Heart Beat.

Dr. Larson applied his stethoscope, but could detect no heart beat. He then tried artificial respiration, but without response. As a final resort Dr. Larson injected adrenalin into the baby's heart muscle.

Two hours later Dr. Larson smilingly bade good-by to Mr. and Mrs. Didier. They were smiling happily, too. For Baby Robert was crying for milk.

ITALIANS TO EAT THEIR HOT DOGS BY ANOTHER NAME

ROME, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Hot dogs, cocktails and other foreign-named delicacies lost their identities as such today through Fascist disapproval.

The merchants confederation invited buyers, restaurants, coffee shops, beach resorts, and similar establishments to drop these "exotic and foreign names." Accordingly, hot dogs, cocktails, sandwiches, hors d'ouvres, and roast beef will be given Italian equivalents.

The order, which was directed against "snobbery" among Italians, also discouraged names like Rome's "Hollywood bar."

FATHER AT 81 BOASTS 26TH CHILD 'A BEAUTY'; FIRST FOR 2D WIFE, 21

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1.—(AP)—George Boarman, 81 years old, a steamship line employé, boasted today that his twenty-sixth child, born yesterday, is "beautiful—just like all the others."

The baby, an 8 pound boy, was born to Boarman's wife, Edith Williams Boarman, 21 years old, at Providence hospital. It is her first.

"But I had twenty-five other children by my first wife who died twenty years ago," said Boarman.

A BOTTLE JARS CORRIGAN STORY OF MIXUP IN HOP

ST. ANDREWS, N. B., Aug. 1.—(AP)—While playing on the beach here Nancy Chandler, 6 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Chandler of North Attleboro, Mass., picked up a floating bottle containing the following undated note:

"Flying 6,000 feet above Nova Scotia. Tail wind taking me about 120 miles per hour. Should sight Ireland about 5 a. m. tomorrow at that rate. CORRIGAN."

Douglas Corrigan landed at Dublin on July 18, asserting he thought he was flying toward California.

Now He's Studying Navigation.

New York, Aug. 1.—[Special.]—Douglas Corrigan, who flew the Atlantic in a $900 obsolete plane, stood steadfast today in his contention that he made a mistake in navigation which caused him to land in Ireland when he aimed for California. In a telephone conversation from the liner Manhattan, from which he expects to land early Thursday afternoon, the flyer said he was studying navigation under the ship's captain, but was making very little progress.

RESCUERS CALL, TO FIND BATHING BEAUTY IS OUT

A bathing beauty returning from the lake dropped her beach ball yesterday. It rolled into the Jackson park lagoon. She waded in after it, slipped, and sank. That was the moment when some one in the Museum of Science and Industry looked out. He thought she was drowning and summoned the police and firemen.

While he was telephoning she recovered her ball, waded out, and went on home. When the firemen and the police arrived she was out of sight. Like the lady, the story comes out all right. But she might like to know. And so might the fellow who telephoned.

Kaiser Ignores Day He Hurled Nation to War

DOORN, The Netherlands, Aug. 1.—(AP)—The twenty-fourth anniversary of imperial Germany's declaration of war against Russia today found one of that drastic step's chief protagonists, former Kaiser Wilhelm II., an exile interested more in his family than in political reminiscence.

The anniversary of the fateful day—one of the steps which cost him his throne—passed without observance by the white bearded former emperor who will be 80 years old Jan. 27.

Reads of Grandson's Honeymoon.

Now one of his principal diversions is reading letters and clippings from the United States recording the progress of his grandson, Prince Louis Ferdinand, on his honeymoon trip around the world with former Grand Duchess Kira of Russia, member of a dynasty he once warred against.

The former kaiser was said to be pleased particularly by many letters from the United States saying what a fine impression the honeymooning Hohenzollerns made in America.

Wilhelm II. has survived most of the monarchs whose armies were sent to slaughter in 1914.

Old Hapsburg Ally Dead.

His old Hapsburg ally, Francis Josef of Austro-Hungary, died during the war; the latter's successor, Karl, died in exile; Czar Ferdinand of Bulgaria abdicated and lives in retirement in Coburg; his Turkish friend, Sultan Mohammed Reshad, did not outlast the war, and Kemal Ataturk rules in his place.

On the opposing side, Czar Nicholas II. of Russia was murdered with his family; King George V. of England is dead; so are President Wilson and the French "Tiger," Georges Clemenceau. Belgian and Rumanian thrones have new occupants.

And a world war corporal of the German army, Adolf Hitler, wields the power once possessed by Hohenzollerns.

Finger of Scorn Pointed at the Talkative Barber

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 1.—(AP)—The finger of scorn was pointed today at the barber who specializes in monologs as he clips your hair. "Remember, you are professional men, not gabby peddlers of gossip," Alden Warmelin of Chicago, national president of the Master Journeymen Barbers, told the Ohio state convention.

Although Dodd has denied communist leanings, the Daily Worker, spokesman of the communist party in America, announced his candidacy in laudatory fashion. His sponsorship by the Corcoran-Cohen group is pointed to as one indication of his sympathies.

The little radical group in congress has campaigned actively for Dodd. One of his speeches was inserted in the congressional record by a ruse. Representative John M. Coffee of Washington asked permission to insert a speech "by William E. Dodd." No objection was raised, members believing the former ambassador to Germany was referred to.

Thousands of reprints of the speech have been sent out under Coffee's congressional frank to voters in the district. Smith, who could have used his own congressional frank, paid postage.

A Preacher in Politics.

Campaign issues in the three other states voting tomorrow are widely varied.

KANSAS—The Rev. Gerald B. Winrod, pamphleteer and revivalist, has conducted a whirlwind campaign for the Republican nomination for the senate. He has been repudiated by Chairman John Hamilton of the Republican national committee, who declared Winrod "has dedicated himself to a course of intolerance."

William Allen White, Kansas editor, has castigated Winrod as a "peddler of racial and religious hatred—in short, the Nazi position."

Winrod termed the accusations "wild statements" and "vicious attempts to inflame passions for political purposes." He devoted much of his campaign to criticism of the Roosevelt administration. He is opposed by three candidates, including former Gov. Clyde M. Reed. The Republican candidate will oppose Senator George McGill, Democratic incumbent.

Presidential Straw in Wind.

MISSOURI—Senator Bennett Champ Clark is expected to win the Democratic nomination to succeed himself. Senator Clark was a notable foe of the President on several occasions, but there was no chance of the Roosevelt purge reaching him—he is too solidly entrenched with his constituents.

A primary sweep for the son of the famous Democratic house speaker, who came near winning the presidential nomination over Woodrow Wilson in 1912, would increase talk among anti-Roosevelt Democrats of putting him forward in 1940 as a "compromise" candidate to stop the President's man, whoever he may be. That makes the size of Clark's vote a matter of widespread interest.

Fight Is for State Control.

The campaign has been marked chiefly by the struggle between Gov. Lloyd C. Stark and Thomas J. Pendergast, Kansas City Democratic boss, for political control of the state. Their arena is a contest for a seat on the Missouri Supreme court.

Gov. Stark is supporting Judge James M. Douglas, who was appointed to the high bench sixteen months ago to fill a vacancy. Pendergast's candidate is Judge James V. Billings of the Circuit court of Dunklin county. His home is in Kennett.

Both Pendergast and Stark, however, are supporting Senator Clark for renomination. Joseph T. Davis of St. Louis and Willis H. Meredith of Popular Bluff are running against him as "100 per cent New Dealers."

Contest for State Control.

WEST VIRGINIA—The primary in West Virginia does not involve gubernatorial or senatorial vacancies, and the congressional contests have been relegated to the side lines by a battle for control of the state political machine. This is a test of strength between Gov. Homer A. Holt and Senator M. M. Neely. Neely is carrying the banner of Van A. Bittner, midwest regional director for the C. I. O. steel workers and vice president of the United Mine Workers of America.

The actual test will come on the nomination or defeat of rival slates for seventeen state senate seats and ninety-four seats in the state's lower house.

The hottest contest for the state's six seats in the national house of representatives is in the 1st district, embracing the heavily industrialized northern panhandle. Representative Robert L. Ramsay is seeking renomination.

William La Rondi, 34, 2239 Calumet avenue, was sentenced to serve six months for indecent exposure.

A CHEERFUL NOTE LAUNCHES G. O. P. ON PROGRAM TASK

Streamlined Elephant New Campaign Symbol.

BY PARKE BROWN.

The midsummer conference of the program committee of the Republican national committee, an innovation in American politics, began its work yesterday in a happy though thoughtful mood.

A cheerful note was thrown into the gathering of 150 men and women at their first public meeting. At a luncheon at the Lake Shore Athletic club, John Hamilton, chairman of the national G. O. P., was presented with a new party emblem which he accepted as an omen of party success.

A Charging Elephant.

It was a streamlined elephant to replace the solid looking animal that heretofore frequently has been used to represent the party. Instead of standing with all feet on the ground and trunk hanging low, the new elephant is charging, its legs in motion, its tusks thrust forward and its trunk aloft.

Across the pedestal was wording that, Chairman Hamilton suggested, may become a widely used slogan. It read:

"Let's G. O. Places!"

Chairman Hamilton was present merely to give the session his blessing as it tackled its labors. Dr. Glenn Frank, chairman of the program unit, introduced William Hard, secretary of his committee, to make a presentation to Hamilton on behalf of the program planners.

Displays Old Emblem.

Hard also displayed an example of old type of elephant, a small figure given him years ago by the late Medill McCormick, and contrasted the two bits of sculpture.

As a morning business session and afternoon round tables on agriculture and labor were not open to the public or the press, this cheerful incident held foremost attention until the evening meeting in Thorne hall on the Chicago campus of Northwestern university.

This meeting, open to the public, brought a thorough analysis of the present national agricultural program, a dissection that admitted good features of the Roosevelt planning but also pointed out its defects clearly.

That analysis was presented by Dr. Joseph S. Davis of Leland Stanford university. The speaker was one of the authors of the report of the Brookings institution on the agricultural adjustment act which aroused widespread attention. He explained that he never has identified himself with any political party.

Shortcomings Discussed.

The other speaker was John Brandt, president of the Land o' Lakes Creameries, Inc., the world's largest cooperative producing butter. Brandt presented his proposals for a plan to control for price surplus and production of farm products.

After commending several elements in the present national agricultural policy Prof. Davis discussed what he called the shortcomings of the policy.

"One is by no means new," he said. "At times significant research activities or their public expression seem to me unduly repressed or otherwise influenced by the prepossessions of top political figures.

"Another has accompanied the amazing farm programs developed since 1933. Too much of the energy of the research and extension services in the states is diverted from their primary functions to operation of these programs and propaganda in connection with them.

More Research Urged.

"A third defect is hardly yet recognized. We need more and more effective research on policy and planning for the long run, coresponding to what I gather is done in the general staf of the war department. We have altogether too much hasty improvisation when emergencies come, and our current procedures for drafting the elements of permanent legislation are woefully inadequate.

"The nation can rightly indorse a policy designed to check undue soil depletion otherwise than by erosion. But I am not satisfied that the policy has yet been thought through nor that the right soil conservation programs are now being pursued.

Pure Bonus Assailed.

"I have official testimony based on field observations in various states to the effect that soil conservation payments have already led to definite improvement in farming practices in these respects. From other quarters I learn that in very considerable measure these payments are pure bonuses, paying farmers for doing what they would do anyway, and that in some cases the required compliance is in the interest of neither the farmer nor the nation.

"I believe, however, that officials have greatly exaggerated the desirability of soil conservation and soil building measures, and that the dominant motive for developing the present system was the desire to continue the flow of federal money into farmers' pockets.

"Our present agricultural administrators are adept in putting a good face on things, calling things by appealing names—so much so that the truth is often obscured or distorted. Purified and far less ambitious and expensive programs could do more of what is really needed in soil conservation."

Experiments "Rash and Loose."

Prof. Davis said that to date both resettlement efforts and rehabilitation loans have included "rash and loose experiments, whether exceptional or representative."

He disapproved as ineffective some efforts to find new outlets for farm products and byproducts, including formal efforts to enlarge export markets for this purpose. He said that marketing agreements for special crops hold possibilities for both good and evil. Then he continued:

"Surplus-removal purchases through the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation, of which we have had a splurge in recent weeks, and disposition of these commodities as supplementary relief, do not commend themselves either in principle or as I observe the practice.

"If relief in kind is to be carried on, it should be to make relief dollars go farther and thus lighten the cost to public treasuries, and not to serve as a dumping ground for products bought primarily to support farm prices. In this respect, as in others, our relief policies have not been soundly worked out."

PLAN NATIONAL POLL OF YOUNG G. O. P. STRENGTH

The executive committee of the Young Republican National federation met yesterday in the Hotel Knickerbocker for a three day session to increase the efficiency of the organization.

Chairman Donald W. Hornbeck of Cleveland, O., announced that he is sending out a questionnaire to all states for a report on the condition of the Young Republican organization by counties. He appointed Barney Meyers of Des Moines, Ia., as general counsel for the committee. Wallace Stearns of Boston was named executive secretary and Richard Nowinson of Chicago was chosen director of publicity and public relations.

SEN. LEWIS SEES ROOSEVELT THIRD TERM RUIN PARTY

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Senator J. Hamilton Lewis [D., Ill.], an administration stalwart, said in an interview today that an attempt by President Roosevelt to obtain a third term would destroy the Democratic party.

The senator added that he knew the President was not the type of man to offer himself for a third term.

Extreme Radicalism.

Lewis said Mr. Roosevelt could be nominated only if a party of extreme radicalism sprang up, threatening government ownership of all enterprises and repudiation of all government securities, and business men urged that the President be renominated to run against it.

Such a party might arise, the senator said, adding: "In such prospects, the business interests will demand Roosevelt remain in power on the constitutional basis of his administration rather than risk the destruction and chaos that will follow a party in power which would put doctrines of communism or Fascism in control in the United States."

Split Into Two Parts.

If Mr. Roosevelt were presented by the Democratic convention as a third term candidate, Lewis said, the issue would split the Democratic party into two parts in the south and New England, and would drive the new western Democrats to the Socialist or Labor party—or create a new democracy in the west which would defeat the candidate of the convention and destroy the Democratic party.

SOLDIERS CLOSE MAYTAG LABOR BOARD HEARING

Charge Iowa Governor Plays Both Sides.

BY CHARLES PURVIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Newton, Ia., Aug. 1.—[Special.]—Iow. National Guardsmen forced the closing of a national labor relations board hearing today. The military acted on orders by Gov. Nels G. Kraschel. The board was investigating the C. I. O. strike at the Maytag Washing Machine company here.

Governor Kraschel was told tonight that labor board attorneys in Washington said he "didn't have a leg to stand on" in ordering his troops to close the hearing.

"I have one good leg to stand on," replied the governor, "the Iowa National Guard! If they want to test out the principle of state rights here is a damned good place for them to try it."

What Will Government Do?

What the government will do was awaited with interest. From Washington the labor board today ordered Madison Hill, the trial examiner, to suspend hearings for forty-eight hours without recognition of the validity of the governor's action.

The case is expected to provide a test as to whether state troops can halt a federal inquiry. Many believe the N. L. R. B. cannot afford to overlook the challenge to its authority.

Meanwhile Gov. Kraschel's motive for the stoppage order, issued in his capacity as commander-in-chief of the troops maintaining martial law here, was the matter of much speculation. Newton townsfolks expressed the belief he is using the Maytag strike as a political tool and is trying to "burn the candle at both ends."

Accused of Changing Front.

The governor has been accused of changing front several times during the three months that the Maytag labor dispute has harrassed this normally peaceful town. When he declared martial law and sent troops here thirteen days ago he was accused of favoring the C. I. O. by keeping the plant closed as the strikers desired. This action aroused the community and caused widespread criticism that the governor was becoming the tool of the C. I. O. in his fight for reelection this fall.

The hearing of the strikers' charges of unfair labor practices by the company had provided the C. I. O. an opportunity to make a show of strength. The governor's latest order halting the hearing is considered by Newton townspeople an indication the chief executive fears he has alienated the strong farm vote and that he now is making a play to win it back.

Some persons believe his order to stop the federal hearing was designed to popularize himself with Iowans as a man who isn't afraid to stand up to the government.

Notified by Guard Officers.

An hour and a half before the hearing was scheduled to open at 10 a. m. today, Examiner Hill was notified formally by National Guard officers that the governor had ordered the inquiry closed.

"I am directed by Gov. Kraschel," the order stated, "to close the national labor relations board hearing being conducted in Newton, Ia., and of which you are trial examiner. For the purpose of defining the territory adjacent to the city of Newton [previously placed under martial law] you are advised that the same includes the territorial limits of the state of Iowa.

"You are therefore ordered to close the said N. L. R. B. hearing forthwith upon the service of this order upon you. You are authorized, in the presence only of attorneys of record before said hearing and your staf, to make such record as you desire in compliance with this order."

Hill, instead of terminating the inquiry, recessed it for forty-eight hours. The examiner said he had been advised by his superiors in Washington to take that procedure. The inquiry record takes no cognizance of the military order stopping the hearing. This leaves the way open for the N. L. R. B. to take any opposing action it may see fit.

"It is indicated that a meeting between the two sides is now in order," said E. W. Ford, attorney for the Maytag company. "However, no conferences are being held and I have no immediate plans for any."

Wilbert Allison, president of the United Electrical, Radio, and Machine Workers, the C. I. O. union on strike, said the union is "still awaiting the company's pleasure."

U.S. COURT DEFIED IN TENNESSEE BY GOV. BROWNING

Insists He Can Send Troops to Memphis Primary.

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Gov. Gordon Browning defied before cheering thousands tonight a federal court injunction to prevent his moving National Guard troops into the city for Thursday's Democratic primary.

Gov. Browning speaking defiance to court order.
[A. P. Wirephoto.]

"The idea of letting a federal injunction deter me from handling the state's troops is silly and absurd," he said in his first speech of the campaign in the stronghold of his political foe and former ally, E. H. Crump, Democratic boss of Memphis.

Browning ridiculed attorneys employed by Crump and Mayor Watkins Overton for seeking the injunction when no troops were in Memphis. He said in a statement last night the troops, now concentrated in other cities, would not be sent in unless he changed his mind.

Withholds Final Decision.

The governor added the attorneys were "trying to sew up a place before it was ripped," and said his final decision on troop movements would have no relation to any injunction.

Federal Judge John D. Martin issued the injunction earlier today.

It was served on Browning shortly after he arrived in Memphis with a sound truck blaring forth the tune, "I Want to Meet the Bully of the Town."

Judge Martin directed the United States marshal to bring to his assistance sufficient power to resist an invasion and said:

"It is my opinion that the remedy is in resistance of invasion and does not concern the matter of a citation against the governor.'

The petition, signed by 40 persons headed by Sheriff Guy Joyner, charged there was no threat of a violation of the 14th, 15th and 19th amendments to the federal constitution.

Crump Explains Split.

Crump charges he split with Browning because he "broke his campaign promises, added new taxes, and gave us the worst administration in history."

Crump's support two years ago brought Browning 59,874 votes in Shelby county to 825 for his opponent, Burgin Dossett. The Shelby leader now is supporting State Senator Prentice Cooper of Shelbyville against Browning. Roy Wallace, former state controler, also is seeking the governorship.

The senate race, second in state interest to the gubernatorial fight, finds Browning appointed Senator George L. Berry seeking nomination over A. T. [Tom] Stewart, supported by Crump and senior Senator K. D. McKellar, Representative J. Ridley Mitchell, running as an independent, Dr. John R. Neal of Knoxville, and C. L. Powell of Hendersonville.

The senate campaign expenditures committee announced in Washington today that it had received a report from Senator Berry listing expenditures of $6,030.91 and no contributions. Stewart listed a nominal receipts and disbursements in a report last week.

PRESIDENT'S PARTY FISHES, BUT SHARKS GET A BIGGER HAUL

ABOARD U. S. S. HOUSTON, Cocos Island, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Members of President Roosevelt's fishing party returned aboard tonight blaming sharks for their failure to catch fish in greater numbers. Time after time, when game fish were hooked, only their heads were pulled in, members of the party reported.

The President took his small boat well out to the windward side of the island, though other members of the group elected to stay in the more calm waters on the sheltered side. They experienced the worst interference from sharks, and when the catch was weighed and counted honors for the biggest fish and the most fish went to the President and his boat.

The Houston remained at anchor off Cocos Island tonight. The Houston will proceed to Balboa, Canal Zone, at 2 p. m. Wednesday.

GIVES SISTERS A LIFT; CHARGES PANTS ROBBERY

Summerdale police were given the problem early today of whether a joke is a robbery or a robbery is a joke. Two girls and a retired business man were involved.

The retired business man, Arthur J. Stayart, 45 years old, 1143 Waveland avenue, was driving home when he saw Miss Gene Jordan, 21, and Miss Connie Jordan, 18, her sister, both of 4152 Kenmore avenue, at Sheridan road and Buena avenue. He offered them a lift. Later he bought them a few drinks in a tavern in the 1200 block of Carmen avenue.

As they were getting back into his car, he said, Connie pointed a finger at him as if she had a gun, and Gene took $47 from his pockets. Then, he said, they told him to take off his trousers. Instead he pulled Connie out of the car, he said, recovered his money, and called police. Policemen Thomas Dunderdale, Gus Ring, and William Loquist came up and arrested the girls. "It was all a joke," they insisted. Stayart held differently. He signed robbery complaints against them.

PENN ASSEMBLY DENIED RIGHT TO HALT EARLE QUIZ

Judge Clears Way for Grand Jury to Act.

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Judge Paul N. Schaeffer denied the Pennsylvania legislature today the right to suspend a grand jury investigation of charges of extortion and fraud against Gov. George H. Earle and other Democratic leaders.

Judge Paul Schaeffer.
[A. P. Wirephoto.]

Judge Schaeffer said the general assembly has a right to conduct its own investigation, but said it should not interfere with the court inquiry starting here next Monday.

The Reading judge, assigned to the grand jury case by the state Supreme court, impounded all evidence in possession of District Attorney Carl B. Shelley. He ordered Shelley and witnesses under subpena for the grand jury not to appear before the legislature until after the court inquiry.

Expect Court Fight.

"I believe the legislature is without power to compel a disclosure of testimony now in possession of the district attorney to be laid before a grand jury," Judge Schaeffer said. He also declared "there is no means by which an indictment can be presented or obeyed without a grand jury."

Many Democrats and Republicans expect a long court fight over the case. Gov. Earle fought the state Supreme court to halt the grand jury inquiry before summoning the legislature to act.

Silent on Plans.

The governor and his advisors, who last week pushed through legislation designed to halt the grand jury and permit the legislature to take over the inquiry, were silent on plans for any counterattack.

Among the first witnesses scheduled to be heard by the legislative investigating committee are Shelley and former Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti, who first made the charges of blackmail, extortion, and coercion for political purposes against Earle and other leaders.

MASKED BANDITS ROB HOUSEWIFE OF $6,000 GEMS

Mrs. Laurence W. Moore, 35 years old, wife of an Evanston real estate operator, lost $6,000 in jewelry to two masked bandits last night, but saved $10,000 more by a ruse.

The holdup occurred at the rear entrance of Mrs. Moore's third floor apartment at 146 Clyde avenue, Evanston. Mrs. Moore and her husband had been to a movie. He drove her home and then continued on, taking the car to the garage.

Mrs. Moore started to go up the rear stairs when she saw two men near by. One called, "Just a minute, Mrs. Moore." Frightened, she ran upstairs. At the same time she loosened a diamond and emerald bracelet, valued at $10,000. She threw the bracelet into a refuse can on the second floor. Then she ran to the third floor. The two men were behind her. They seized her and took a diamond wrist watch, which cost $1,000; a diamond ring of 3½ carats, valued at $5,000, and $5 in cash. They missed the bracelet.

DEAR ALBEN SAYS NO PUBLIC FUNDS BACK HIM IN RACE

Barkley Tells Senate He Has Spent Only $2,180.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt's "Dear Alben" Barkley told the senate campaign expenditures committee today that no public funds or political patronage had been used in his behalf. Barkley reported contributions of $1,915 and expenditures of $2,180. He is the senate majority leader and a candidate for renomination in the Kentucky primary next Saturday.

For months the Kentucky primary campaign has been enlivened by charges and countercharges concerning the use of patronage and public funds to coerce voters. Gov. A. B. [Happy] Chandler, Barkley's opponent, charged that WPA had been converted into a political machine for Barkley. The senate committee, headed by Senator Morriss Sheppard [D., Tex.], has had several investigators in Kentucky and their report is expected to be made public next Wednesday.

President Reads the Cash Book.

In his speech at Covington, Ky., on July 8 President Roosevelt reminded the voters that his administration had spent $280,000,000 for relief, work relief, public works, the education of youth, farm rehabilitation, crop benefit payments, etc., in Kentucky.

The President said an additional $50,000,000 went to Kentucky in the form of grants on a matching basis for highway construction and flood control, and that many other millions were represented by homeowners' and farm mortgage loans.

Senator Barkley said nothing about the administration's beneficence in his reply to the senate committee's questionnaire. He answered with a simple "no" the question: "Have any public funds or political patronage, with your knowledge and consent, been used by others in behalf of your nomination or election to the United States senate?"

Knows Naught of Coercion.

Barkley replied "no" to the question: "Do you know of any specific instance in which any person receiving compensation from the federal government has been intimidated or coerced, or in which any attempt has been made to intimidate or coerce such person in any manner designed to affect the result of any primary, convention, or election in behalf of your candidacy for the United States senate?"

Barkley led the fight in the senate against amendments to the 3¾ billion dollar relief and pump priming bill to prohibit political activity on the part of WPA administrators and supervisory personnel. He defended the use of the WPA relief workers' army for political purposes on the ground that state governors—meaning Mr. Chandler—had their own pay roll machines and made use of federal old age pension and highway funds.

SHERIF'S EX-DEPUTY IS PLACED ON TRIAL AS DOCTOR'S KILLER

South Paris, Me., Aug. 1.—[Special.]—Francis M. Carroll, former deputy sherif, went on trial here today for the murder of an elderly physician despite the fact that Paul Dwyer, 18 years old, is serving a life prison term for the crime.

[A. P. Wirephoto.] Francis M. Carroll.

The murder victim was Dr. James G. Littlefield. Young Dwyer, a sweetheart of Carroll's daughter, Barbara, confessed he killed the physician and strangled Dr. Littlefield's wife. The bodies of the two were found in the physician's car, with Dwyer asleep at wheel. He had driven across six states in three days with the bodies.

The youth, who repudiated the confession and implicated his sweetheart's father, is to appear as a witness against Carroll. Ralph M. Ingalls, special assistant attorney general, said the state will contend that in a meeting of the doctor, Carroll, and the Dwyer boy, Carroll and not the youth killed the physician.

BULKLEY IS GIVEN EDGE IN OHIO RACE FOR SENATE SEAT

Expect Sales Tax Grudge to Give Him Victory.

Columbus, O., Aug. 1.—[Special.]—Two candidates for Democratic nominations in Ohio's primary election next Tuesday, Aug. 9, are proclaiming their loyalty to the Roosevelt administration as one of the issues in the contest. They are United States Senator Robert J. Bulkley, opposed for renomination by former Gov. George White, and Charles E. Sawyer, former lieutenant governor, who is opposing Gov. Martin L. Davey.

Bulkley received the Roosevelt blessing recently when the President crossed the country to embark on his fishing cruise. The President mentioned Bulkley as a friend when he spoke in White's home town, Marietta. White's name was omitted significantly.

Bulkley today reported to the senate campaign expenditures committee, headed by Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas, that contributions to his campaign total $20,691 and his expenditures $16,083.

Sales Tax May Swing Tide.

Enactment of Ohio's sale tax law when White was governor is being used by his opponents as an argument for the reëlection of Bulkley. Observers say the sales tax still rankles voters so much that Bulkley's renomination is likely.

Gov. Davey's chances are not counted so good as Bulkley's, despite the governor's great list of payrollers in the highway, liquor, and pension departments. Grand juries and state senatorial committees have investigated charges against Davey in connection with all three bureaus.

Sawyer has promised the voters he will clean up the Democratic party in Ohio if nominated and elected, and reminds them he would not be hampered in his actions by such charges as hang over Davey.

Davey has conducted a state-wide mail campaign and tells the voters the principal issue in the governorship race is indorsement of Sawyer by John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization.

G. O. P. Primary Quiet Affair.

Little excitement has been stirred by the Republican primary race. John W. Bricker, former attorney general, is unopposed for the gubernatorial nomination. Bricker was defeated by Gov. Davey two years ago.

Until a few days ago the race between Supreme Court Judge Arthur H. Day of Cleveland and Robert A. Taft of Cincinnati for the Republican senatorial nomination, was a polite contest. Then Judge Day charged that Taft was trying to buy his way into the United States senate.

Taft replied by calling the judge's charges ridiculous and reporting to the United States senate campaign expenditures committee that he has spent $16,684 up to yesterday, a sum he termed reasonable and wholly within the law.

an admission from the witness that TVA had not recommended to congress that particular land purchase and that the minutes of the board of March 15 had nothing to show that diversion of funds had been authorized.

Wolverton emphasized that previous testimony by Blandford and TVA Director Harcourt A. Morgan showed that the phosphate land purchases had been left entirely in the hands of Dr. Curtis, and he said he wanted to hear further explanations from Dr. Curtis. He also demanded that Ager's file on the phosphate land deals be placed in the hands of W. O. Heffernan, secretary to the committee.

Describes Life Under TVA.

In his testimony Blandford described the "benevolent dictatorship" practiced by the Tennessee Valley Authority at Norris, Tenn., the TVA town near Norris dam. Among the facts he related were these:

Norris' 1,250 residents elect a mayor and town council who serve merely in an advisory capacity, the real government being the town manager and school superintendent [one position] and TVA properties manager. Residents have no power to remove the town manager or TVA properties manager. Wolverton declared this disfranchises the citizens and deprives them of home rule.

TVA spent $18,000 for a filling station but nothing for a community church.

A dairy herd bought by TVA for $10,000 to demonstrate dairying methods and supply Norris residents with milk was sold at a loss of $1,000, after an even larger operating loss.

KENTUCKY LABOR TRIAL ENDS AS JURY DISAGREES

London, Ky., Aug. 1.—[Special.]—The jury in the Harlan anti-labor conspiracy trial reported it was hopelessly deadlocked, and U. S. Judge H. Church Ford declared a nontrial this afternoon.

The case involved thirty-nine individuals and sixteen corporations charged in indictments with conspiring to prevent the unionization of the Harlan coal fields under the Wagner act.

The case went to the jury Saturday.

ASK MINNESOTA QUIZ ON SCHOOL CONTRACT COSTS

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 1.—[Special.]—Gov. Elmer A. Benson today asked Michael F. Kinkead, Ramsey county attorney, to summon a special grand jury for investigation of the letting of contracts for construction of a teachers' college building at Bemidji.

The governor acted after charges were made against his commission of administration and finance by a committee of architects. The architects said there was evidence certain contractors had been favored through a method of limited bidding.

According to the committee, no publication was made of request for bids.

SIDLEY AUTOPSY DOCTORS READY TO GIVE REPORT

Will Say Horlick Heiress Had Brain Disease.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 1.—[Special.]—Mrs. Mabelle Horlick Sidley, malted milk heiress, lived in a dream world for months prior to her death here on July 6. This will be the report of medical experts who have completed their postmortem examinations. The reports will say she suffered from an advanced and virulent form of brain disease. The disease also virtually paralyzed her vocal chords and hands.

The gist of these reports were made public here today by crown attorneys. The crown is prepared to begin a court battle tomorrow to prevent the Ontario courts from prohibiting the holding of an inquest into Mrs. Sidley's death. The physicians' reports will be submitted in full for the coroner's records if and when the inquest is resumed, the attorneys said.

Progress of Disease Determined.

The doctors were able to determine to their own satisfaction the approximate date upon which the disease completed its work of undermining Mrs. Sidley's mental faculties. They are prepared to testify, according to the crown representatives, to their findings which are based upon their exhaustive studies of the eccentric heiress' brain, spinal cord, throat and tongue muscles and nerves, and the nerves of her arms and hands.

Four out of five executors of the will made by Mrs. Sidley last April 8 are opposing an inquest. The will was drawn while Mrs. Sidley was living here as a guest in the home of William Perkins Bull, barrister and financier. Mrs. Sidley had been a friend of Bull for years and had lived in his home for more than a year previous to her death.

Under the will Mrs. Sidley made Bull an equal beneficiary with her only son, William Sidley. Each of them would share about $850,000 from her three million dollar estate. William Sidley, the fifth executor, and Alexander J. Horlick, one of Mrs. Sidley's two brothers, indicated after terms of the will had become known that they would contest the document and try to probate one of three earlier wills.

Assail Motives of Inquest.

Attorneys for Bull and the four executors friendly to him—among them Mrs. Sidley's second brother, William Horlick—charged during the brief inquest hearing last July 26, that witnesses were being called "only to bring out evidence concerning Mrs. Sidley's mental competency."

They frankly admit that they are anxious to prevent the recording of testimony regarding Mrs. Sidley's mental state in any formal governmental hearing. If the question of Mrs. Sidley's competency arises in a will contest, they say, evidence to support the contention can be produced then.

The doctors who made the postmortem studies were headed by Prof. W. L. Robinson, pathologist at Banting institute, Toronto university. His assistants were Dr. G. W. Lougheed and Dr. E. A. Linell, both of them eminent neuropathologists.

Examination of Brain.

Their findings will contend that Mrs. Sidley's brain was considerably shrunken at the time of her death, the frontal lobes in particular—the portions of the brain controling movement of the hands and of speech—were affected. The doctors have dissected various organs taken from Mrs. Sidley's body and have recorded their findings in a series of laboratory photographs.

It is understood here that the doctors arrived at an opinion on the approximate time when Mrs. Sidley's faculties began to fail her by staining the cells of the brain and spinal cord and examining them under microscopes. The cells are clearly shown by this method and the rate of progress of the disease can, consequently, be determined with some exactitude, the experts will say.

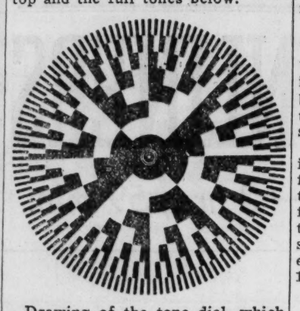
Tomorrow, Attorney W. J. McCarthy, representing the executors who are plaintifs in the injunction proceedings, and crown attorneys will confer with Justice Wilfred D. Roach. The judge may allow the evidence and arguments on the petition to be presented for his ruling during the afternoon or he may fix a time later in the week. His ruling, however, whether it allows the inquest to be continued or prohibits it, will probably be appealed to the Ontario court of appeals. A ruling upon such an appeal cannot be obtained until fall because the appeals court is closed for the vacation period.

In case Justice Roach refuses to prevent the inquest hearing, Coroner Smirle Lawson will attempt to resume the taking of evidence at once. He already has subpenaed more than fifty witnesses. The hearing had been scheduled to be resumed tomorrow but it was postponed indefinitly by agreement of the crown attorneys with the Ontario courts.

Tells True Tone

(Story in adjoining column.)

Chromatic stroboscope, which registers true tone quality. Behind the two rows of small windows are lighted tone dials, the half tones at top and the full tones below.



Drawing of the tone dial, which spins to the right when the note is flat and to the left when the note is sharp. When the tone is on true pitch the dial is motionless.

A TONE MACHINE COMES TO AID OF MAN'S FRAIL EAR

It Spins Like Mad if Your "A" Is Off Pitch.

With the appearance yesterday of the chromatic stroboscope, the mechanical age made another encroachment upon mankind's imperfections.

The stroboscope, introduced at the thirty-seventh annual Music Industries convention at the Stevens hotel, is as formidable as it sounds. It is a black machine with twelve red dials that spin like mad when a musical sound is off pitch.

What it does, to quote its makers, is to take the burden of error away from the human ear. The human ear, they say, although quite praiseworthy for purely auditory purposes, is notably frail when it comes to musical sounds. It can't perceive much difference between a good note and one 1-100 of a half tone inferior.

But the stroboscope can.

A Help to Piano Tuners.

The stroboscope's primary function, when invented, was to help the lowly piano tuner. Even he, with ears that spend years listening to musical notes, often misses. Instead of tuning concert A on a piano to the standard 440 vibrations per second, he might easily tune it to 439. Which, they say, is bad for good music.

"Even the best piano tuner can't be consistent in his tuning," an official explained. "Under different condition, he hears tones differently."

To the inanimate stroboscope, though, all tones get a set treatment. If flat, the red dial in the "A" window [there is a dial for each note on the scale] spins to the right. If sharp, it spins to the left. If just right, it sobers down to a standstill.

Other Uses Found.

Further investigation, they say, has proved it to have a wide variety of uses. By using it, for instance, the soprano may correct her habit of singing "I Love Life" off key. The violinist may tune his fiddle directly from the disk. Even the clarinetist may find, to his amazement—as one did yesterday at the show—that what he thought was a perfect scale he had just played, turns out to be flat except G.

Just what effect this will have on midnight renditions of "Sweet Adeline" by the Alcoholic Four is inestimable. You have to be able, of course, to watch the dials.

OPEN LAST TRIAL OF 2 DETECTIVES IN SCANDAL CASE

Charges Are Aired Again Before Police Board.

The Town Hall police scandal entered its final phase yesterday with Police Commissioner Allman as an interested spectator. Earl Flannery and Frank McKune, suspended detectives, went before the police trial board on six charges connected with the alleged attempted robbery of a handbook employé.

The two detectives have been acquitted by a jury in Criminal court of charges that they permitted the escape of two prisoners turned over to them by uniformed policemen. Another jury convicted Kenneth Peters, central figure in the case, on a charge of assault; he was fined $100.

Companion Still Missing.

Peters and a man known as Tip, still a fugitive, allegedly were in the act of robbing James J. Burke, a handbook employé, when they were arrested last Feb. 26. McKune and Flannery offered to take the prisoners to the Town Hall station and they were surrendered by the uniformed police. The state charged in the trial that Peters and Tip were later given "a pass" [freed] by McKune and Flannery.

The trial board is hearing the following charges against the detectives: conduct unbecoming an officer, neglect of duty, violation of a criminal law, disobedience of orders, making a false official report, and neglecting to turn in all property taken from prisoners.

Woman Is Reluctant Witness.

One of the witnesses before the board yesterday was Mrs. Mabel LeRoy, 4608 Malden avenue, who appeared to be reluctant to tell her story. Urged by Earl Downes, an assistant corporation counsel, she said Burke had been taking her and a friend, Mrs. Joseph Powers, 4606 Malden avenue, to their homes.

At Dover street and Leland avenue, she said, the automobile was halted by two men. Mrs. LeRoy said she got out and ran away. She was not sure just wny she ran. Finally she said she was following the lead of Mrs. Powers, who had fled to safeguard a valuable fur coat she was wearing. Half a block away, Mrs. LeRoy testified, she heard some one shout "robbery!"

Policemen Repeat Testimony.

Other witnesses yesterday were Capt. Patrick O'Connell, the district commander; Lieut. Michael Ahern, the uniformed policemen, Peter Frank, and Harold Thompson, and Burke. They gave the same testimony heard in the Criminal court trials.

The hearing is expected to be concluded tomorrow. Then the trial board will take the case under consideration.

KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT.

Bloomington, Ill., Aug. 1.—[Special.]—Funeral services for Mrs. Paul Pratt, 26 years old, who was killed in an automobile accident near Emden late Saturday, will be held in Armington tomorrow. Her husband, injured in the same accident, is in a local hospital.

Moving Forward

Marshall Field & Company presents here each day observations and opinions intended to be of interest and value to those it seeks to serve.

IN THE BALANCE

By CALEB

THE TRAPEZE performer high up in a circus tent swings through space with accustomed ease. At the appointed moment he relinquishes his hold on the first trapeze—but never unless he is certain that another will be swung within his reach at precisely the right moment.

He could scarcely be regarded as other than stupid were he to let go the trapeze in his hand without any particular idea of what his next step was to be, or from whence and what direction his new hand hold would be swung. He would be justified in delaying his take-off until plans and technique had been advanced sufficiently to assure a successful landing.

It is not surprising that seasoned performers should hesitate at being asked to let go their hand hold, substituting a leap in the dark for an established routine well grounded in experience. And yet, today, many of us are being asked to do precisely that in the realm of old ideals, established customs, proved recipes.

One of the challenging elements in life today is the sharp scrutiny to which these old ideals and customs are being subjected. Things to which we have accustomed ourselves by long use and familiarity are assailed and sometimes swept aside.

It often happens that the suddenness of these changes—wholesome though they may be—leaves a sense of loss and confusion because nothing is immediately advanced to replace the tried and proven beliefs that are upset.

Today the sensation of standing thus without a familiar routine of conduct is common to many phases of life. The situation calls for self-control, straight thinking, and, most of all—deliberation. More by usage and custom than by legislation, the familiar paths of thought in many important phases of life are being altered. It requires more than ordinary keenness and resistance to continue in paths of established soundness.

The temptation to substitute overnight a triple somersault for the less spectacular but more certain single one is steadily present—particularly for the younger man or woman. Each one is faced with the task of deciding for or against these drastic changes in the routine of life, and only time and experience can dictate the answer. It is a long way down to the sawdust, and in life there is no net below!

TERUEL PERILED ANEW BY QUICK LOYALIST DRIVE

Rebels Rush Fresh Troops to New Danger Spot.

HENDAYE, France [at the Spanish Frontier], Aug. 1.—(AP)—Gen. José Miaja's central Spanish government army stormed and captured the strategic "Bluff of Camarena" thirteen miles south of Teruel today, forcing rebel Generalissimo Francisco Franco to rush troops from other fronts to defend his Teruel lines.

Dispatches from both sides agreed that Miaja's moves were designed to catch the rebels off guard at the moment they were using every available man to protect Gandesa, 100 miles northeast of Teruel, against government offensives from Catalonia.

The high promontory at Camarena dominates a dozen villages and hamlets, including Valacloche, Cubla, and Casante, all a few miles to the north.

Menace Highway to the Sea.

The advance brought government guns close to Teruel, capital of the province of Teruel, which the government seized and lost less than six months ago. The advance also menaces the Teruel-Sagunto highway to the coast. Camarena is six miles southwest of the highway.

There was intense activity behind both fronts during the last forty-eight hours. The government was transferring men and material across the Ebro into the newly conquered zone before Gandesa.

Gen. Franco was trying to defend both the Teruel and Ebro sectors, at the same time pushing his own counterattacks in the northern and southern Ebro zones.

Feverish preparations near Falset and Tortosa indicated a renewed loyalist drive in an effort to smash through and establish positions on the Gandesa-Alcaniz highway, completing the encirclement of Gandesa.

Draw Attention of Rebels.

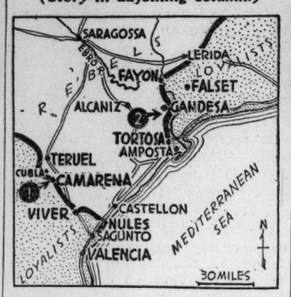
Government sources at the frontier announced that a detachment of the international brigade made a sacrifice which enabled the government army to cross the Ebro at the start of its offensive a week ago.

They said several hundred internationals crossed the river first, near Amposta, before dawn on July 25 and drew the attention of the rebels. They fought for hours while thousands of other government troops during this diversion crossed farther north for the attack on Gandesa.

Rebel commanders called reserves from other points along the Ebro to combat the internationals, these government sources said, and drove them back about sundown only to find strong government forces firmly established in a score of other points along the river. Many members of the international brigade were killed.

Keep Rebels on Jump

(Story in adjoining column.)



Spanish loyalists yesterday attacked on a new front, capturing Camarena ridge (1). Rebels were forced to send reinforcements to the area and were prevented from counter attacking to break the deadlock at Gandesa (2).

U. S. COURT HOLDS LIMITED UNION IS VALID BARGAINER

New York, Aug. 1.—[Special.]—A union limited in membership to the employés of a single business concern is as valid under the Wagner labor act as any A. F. of L. or C. I. O. union, the United States Circuit Court of Appeals held today. The decision overruled an order of the National Labor Relations board which recently held that an employés' association of the Ballston-Stillwater Knitting company was, in effect, a company union.

The court declared the organization in question, the Employés Welfare and Protective association, which came into being in May, 1937, shortly after a C. I. O. union had made demands on the company, was in fact the bargaining agency of the company's employés.

The court's opinion disagreed with the labor board's ruling that the employés' association had been organized at the inspiration of the company. The ruling upset the labor board's order to the company to rehire discharged C. I. O. employés.

Australia Fears Japan; Rushes Armament Program

LITHGOW, New South Wales, Aug. 1.—Australia, worried by the Rising Sun of Japan, is digging deep into its pockets to pay for a $12,500,000 three year armament program. In a small arms factory here work is being rushed on machine guns for both anti-aircraft and infantry use. It is proposed to mount light Vickers machine guns in proposed fleet of 198 battle planes.

SEIZED IN DOUBLE SHOOTING.

Albert Bell, colored, of 124 East Garfield boulevard, was arrested yesterday at Garfield boulevard and State street after, police say, he shot and wounded two other Negroes, William Ceril, 5019 Prairie avenue, and Oliver Sanford, 409 Oakwood boulevard.

assumed to mean outside the region claimed by the Japanese.

"We do not want soviet territory but we are prepared to prevent them from encroaching on Manchukuo and Corea," said a foreign office spokesman.

Both the war office and the foreign office indicated Japan was satisfied with the territory now possessed along the Siberian frontier and would not push further claims.

Claim Whole Division Used.

MOSCOW, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Details of a sanguinary battle for possession of Changkufeng, on the Siberian-Manchukuan-Corean border, in which Japanese hurled a whole division against soviet Russian forces, was disclosed in an official communique tonight.

Japanese losses were given as upward of 400 killed and wounded in the bitterly fought attempt of Japanese to capture the strategic heights in the Possiet bay region which Russian forces began fortifying on July 11. Tanks, planes, and artillery were brought into the battle for the disputed territory.

One soviet scouting plane was brought down and the announcement said it was believed the pilot was captured after he took to his parachute. [Japanese reports said five soviet planes were shot down.]

The battle ranks as the biggest clash on the soviet-Manchukuo frontier since the beginning in 1931 of the long series of boundary incidents, numbering thousands.

Artillery Used in Battle.

Foreign military observers here who previously were inclined to view the situation as only another of these incidents were beginning to take a graver view of the encounter.

Thirteen Russian soldiers were reported killed and fifty-five wounded. The Russians captured five artillery pieces and fourteen machine guns and lost a tank and a field piece themselves.

The official account of the battle said Japanese concentrated one division against Zaozernaya [Changkufeng] after they were repulsed in an attack on a nearby hill last Friday and on Sunday opened the battle unexpectedly with an artillery barrage. They were driven back.

Soviet troops did not cross the Manchukuo border, it was explained, and so were unable to encircle the Japanese or make a flank attack upon them.

Prior to the official announcement little mention was made here of the trouble with Japan as massmeetings of soviet workers celebrated anti-war day and pledged resistance to any invader.

At Khabarovsk, 400 miles north of the tense border district a mass meeting of communist youth appealed to the populace of the far eastern area to perfect their military knowledge in preparation for defense of the nation's borders.

Independent Action?

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

SHANGHAI, Aug. 2.—[Tuesday.]—Startling reports from Seoul, Corea, and Tokio to the effect that soviet planes bombed and machine-gunned Changkufeng as well as nearby points inside Corea had an electrifying effect here, where Russian retaliations for the Japanese capture of Changkufeng were not expected.

The conviction obtains here that the Japanese army contingent which attacked and recaptured Changkufeng acted without orders and without permission from Tokio.

If major hostilities develop on the Manchukuo-Mongolian borders between Japan and the soviet the whole outlook of the China campaign would be changed overnight. It is believed the soviet would almost immediately augment China's depleted air force, whereupon all the major centers of Japanese occupation, especially Shanghai, probably would be subject to Chinese-soviet air raids.

Foreign observers are dismayed at the prospect of large scale Russo-Japanese hostilities. They believe this will certainly prolong the war interminably as well as align resurgent China irrevocably as an ally of Moscow, with a rapid decline in American and British prestige and influence.

U. S. Ambassador Leaves Hankow for Safer Haven

HANKOW, China, Aug. 2 [Tuesday].—(AP)—United States Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson and six members of his staf left Hankow today for Chungking, to which the Chinese foreign office has moved because of the Japanese offensive directed toward this city. The Yangtze patrol flagship Luzon and the gunboat Tutuila carried the embassy staf, which moved here last November when the Japanese approached the capital, Nanking.

FRESH CHINESE TROOPS RUSHED TO HANKOW LINE

Battles Rage on Both Sides of Yangtze River.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 2. [Tuesday].—(AP)—One of the biggest battles of the Chinese-Japanese war in central China appeared to be under way today on both sides of the Yangtze river in the vicinity of Kiukiang, 135 miles down stream from Hankow.

The Japanese, whose forces are driving up the Yangtze toward the Chinese provisional capital, last night said they had defeated eight Chinese divisions south of the river since July 23, date of the beginning of an offensive about Kiukiang.

Kiukiang fell on the 26th. Until last night the Japanese had reported encountering and defeating only three Chinese divisions.

Chinese Line Unbroken

Despite large scale fighting in which Japan's combined land, naval and air forces hammered at the Chinese defenders, the Japanese admitted a fierce conflict still was continuing south of Kiukiang, with the Chinese line unbroken.

A Japanese spokesman said the Chinese were throwing troops from Hankow into the Kiukiang battle, "hoping to stave off the Japanese thrust into Hankow but simultaneously weakening defenses about Hankow and vicinity."

The Japanese said their forces were pounding forward north of the river in the Kiukiang area, but they admitted gains were small.

British Protest to Japs.

Great Britain protested to Japanese authorities yesterday against what was called the "increasingly belligerent attitude" of sentries guarding bridges from the international settlement into Japanese controlled sections of Shanghai.

The protest, delivered by Consul General Herbert Phillips, was the outgrowth of the alleged rough treatment of Miss Dorothea Lintilhac when she crossed the Garden bridge on the wrong side of the street.

Miss Lintilhac and her mother later were arrested and detained four hours when, attempting to avoid repetition of the incident, they used the Chapoo bridge. They said they were walking on the wrong side of the bridges because of barbed wire entanglements and dangerous traffic.

HAWAIIAN POLICE FIGHT C. I. O. SHIP RIOT; 36 INJURED

HILO, Hawaii, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Fighting between police and 500 water front strikers and sympathizers resulted in the injury of thirty-six persons today, five of them critically, amid showers of buckshot and the use of at least one bayonet.

Two women were among those slightly injured. A longshoreman was stabbed in the side with a bayonet. Several others were peppered about the head and face with buckshot. The disorder was precipitated by arrival from Honolulu of the steamship Waialeale, operated by the Inter-Island Navigation company, against which C. I. O. longshoremen called a strike May 27 when contract negotiations collapsed.

Slain in Mystery

[A. P. Wirephoto.]

Augustus W. Roil, bachelor farmer and artist who was found beaten to death in his home near Algonac, Mich. (indicated by large arrow). Police questioned four persons at Port Huron, the county seat (small arrow).

Algonac, Mich., Aug. 1.—(AP)—A finger print found on a blood stained club and a few wisps of hair were clews today to the slayer of Augustus W. Roil, bachelor-farmer and amateur artist, who was found beaten to death yesterday at his home.

In search of further information that might throw light on the slaying, state police took four persons to Port Huron, the county seat, for additional questioning.

Among them were Deputy Sheriff Frank Sharrow, Parley Gouelette and Linus Case, the three men whose visit to the Roil farm yesterday resulted in the discovery of the body of the recluse in a chicken house. The fourth person was Mrs. Case.

The fingerprint was discovered at the state police laboratory in East Lansing on a piece of a hoe handle which presumably was shattered by the first blow struck by the slayer.

Motive for the crime was obscure. An early theory that Roil was killed by a robber was discounted when $515 was found in the house. Sheriff William L. Van Antwerp said Roil had corresponded with women in California through a matrimonial agency and his letters were being scanned.

Little was known of Roil, although he had lived here for 14 years. He was 45 years old. A former telegraph messenger recalled that he delivered a telegram to Roil from Hamilton, Ont., three years ago notifying him he had inherited $20,000.

CZECHS SWITCH; BECOME HOSTILE TO PEACEMAKER

Say British Mediator Was Forced on Them.

BY ALEX SMALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 1.—Premier Milan Hodza is preparing a statement which is expected to inform negotiators whether discussions over Czechoslovakia's minorities will continue as before or whether the coming of Viscount Runciman of Great Britain as a mediator has introduced such a new element into the situation that discussions must go back to the very beginning.

Premier Milan Hodza.

The premier's statement will be his answer to a series of questions put to him Saturday by Deputy Ernst Kundt, chief of the Sudeten German delegation. It is understood Hodza's answer will be that all the work accomplished on the projects for minorities legislation will stand and that Runciman's presence will not send the negotiators back to zero.

See Drawn Out Negotiations.

It might, therefore, appear that the vexing problem could be quickly settled and Czechoslovakia return to a tranquil status in the near future. Indications, however, are to the contrary.

Parliament will meet Tuesday, but it is certain that minority legislation will not be submitted to it as originally planned. Instead it will be busy with routine affairs of no international importance.

In government circles hostility toward Runciman's mission after some days of polite acquiescense is now openly expressed. The semi-official newspaper Lidove Noviny, which is credited with being the mouthpiece of President Eduard Benes, said that the idea of sending a neutral observer originated in London and was forced on Prague. Runciman was reminded that he must not consider the government and the Sudeten German [Nazi] party on the same level.

Runciman Is Warned.

He was warned that Czechoslovakia has no intention of sacrificing what she considers her vital interests. The newspaper forecast the government's intention of playing off the German Social Democrats and other small dissenting German groups against Konrad Henlein, leader of the Sudeten German party.

The consensus in government circles is that by sending Runciman to Prague the British have overstepped the limits permissible in dealings between sovereign states. The real purpose of the mission is interpreted as a face-saving move on behalf of Reichsfuehrer Hitler. It is believed he now will have an excuse for failing to take action when and if the minority legislation is found to be unsatisfactory by the Sudeten Germans.

Temporarily, at least, Runciman is bringing to Prague a feeling of greater ease. The approval which his mission has won in Berlin is interpreted as meaning nothing drastic will happen during his presence in Prague.

To Confer with Leaders.

Runciman's activities immediately after his arrival on Wednesday have been roughly mapped out. On Thursday and Friday the "peacemaker" will confer with President Benes, Premier Hodza, and Foreign Minister Dr. Kamil Krofta, and possibly Henlein.

Between these scheduled conversations, Runciman will be assailed with demands for hearings from other minorities, including Hungarians, Poles, Rumanians, Ruthenians, and Jews.

The news of his mission, coupled with the gratuitous assumption that he is going to be the redressor of wrongs, has unleashed an outburst of romantic nationalism such as Europe has not seen since President Wilson was besieged at the Paris peace conference by delegates from every minority in the world.

PROPOSE STORK DERBY TO BOOST AUSTRALIA'S FALLING BIRTH RATE

SYDNEY, Australia, Aug. 1.—(AP)—A "stork derby" with sweepstakes prizes for prolific parents was proposed in the New South Wales legislature today to boost Australia's falling birth rate.

F. Burke, socialist member of the house of assembly, suggested that the government sponsor such a race patterned after the Toronto derby which ended in October, 1936.

A five or ten year period for the race would be suitable, Burke thought.

BROTHERS LIKE TASTE OF ARMY LIFE, SO THEY JOIN FOR 3 MORE YEARS

Service in the 32d division of the Michigan National Guard gave two brothers a taste of army life which called for more. Yesterday the brothers, Anthony Basch, 25, and James, 21, of 1645 North Fairfield avenue, enlisted in the 14th cavalry for three years.

The brothers reported to Col. William W. Edwards, chief recruiting officer of the Chicago district, who assigned them to Fort Sheridan. Previously the brothers had served in the 106th cavalry of the National Guard.

THIS NEW MILITARISM IN AMERICA.

The wilful use of troops as Prætorians for partisan purposes, disguised in some pretext of public emergency, has so increased in the last two years as to become significant and symptomatic. Until a few years ago the National Guard of a state was ordered out only when disorders had become too serious for the local law officers to handle and when the public security was in great danger. Then the troops appeared to protect lives and property.

In Iowa, Gov. Kraschel ordered units of the National Guard to close the Maytag factory at Newton and prevent workers from trying to go through the C. I. O. picket lines. He said the plant would not reopen until the management and the strikers had reached an agreement. If he had honored his oath of office and done his constitutional duty the troops, if they were used, would have seen that no violence was offered peaceable citizens.

When the governor had thus acted as a partisan and not as a law enforcement officer, he endeavored to square his circle by putting the entire state under martial law for the purpose of stopping the National Labor board's hearings under the labor act. He said the labor board was increasing the public disorders and preventing the restoration of peaceable conditions. The prejudiced and partisan conduct of the hearings justifies the governor's statement but his conduct illustrates the strangeness of the uses to which military force is being put in the United States.

In Tennessee, Gov. Browning ordered out his troops to supervise the voting on Thursday of this week in the Democratic primaries, which have been conducted in such a violent and corrupt manner that the Shepherd congressional committee appointed to keep an eye on this year's election scandals already has said that any candidates for congress who get their credentials this year in the Tennessee elections will undoubtedly have to purge themselves before they can prove their qualifications for a seat. Gov. Browning, as head of one of the state Democratic factions, is using the state soldiers ostensibly to protect the honesty of the vote and the count.

Precedent for Iowa and Tennessee was set up last year in Michigan, Ohio, and Pennsylvania, where the Governors Murphy, Davey, and Earle used the National Guard to protect lawbreakers illegally occupying factories and to support lawless men against the local law enforcement officers. Gov. Davey of Ohio came to his senses quickly, but Gov. Murphy's troops prevented the serving of court orders. Mr. Murphy later exclaimed bitterly against the communistic anarchy which he had turned loose in the state, as if he had had nothing to do with it. Mme. Perkins of the labor department expressed the hope that the governor of Indiana would use Indiana troops to keep plants closed but the governor did not construe the lady's wish as an order.

In Rhode Island, Gov. Quinn put a detachment of the National Guard around the Narragansett race track to keep it closed, in spite of a court order, to drive his political opponent, O'Hara, the race track man, out of the state and to take his investment away from him. Rhode Island went under the dictator when the Supreme court was thrown out by a rump legislature from which the Republicans had been violently purged. Huey Long, in Louisiana, used the militia to put over his fantastic but likewise practical imitation of a Roman emperor at his worst.

Each exhibition of this militarism, taken by itself, may seem to mean nothing more than a flurry of partisan excess in a single state, but when all the episodes are put together they form a pattern stamped out of autocracy. Such use of troops is contrary to English speaking tradition of what government may do to the citizens. The National Guard, necessarily obedient to the orders of its commander-in-chief, becomes a body of storm troopers to enforce a dictatorial policy. The people can't fight the troops but they can impeach or defeat their governors.

THE BAILIF AND THE JOBS.

The sentencing of Bailif Horan for contempt doesn't seem to have upset the citizenry too much. Mr. Horan, who belongs to the governor's faction of the Democratic party, fired fifty-five deputy bailifs before the spring primary. They were not his brand of Democrats. The judges of the Municipal court, most of whom belong to the other Democratic faction, acted no doubt from the most exalted and disinterested of motives in ordering their fifty-five boys reinstated. Bailif Horan paid no attention. Now he has a contempt sentence hanging over his head, voted by 25 of the 27 judges who considered his case en banc.

The indifference of the citizenry is understandable. The incident is of importance only in the sense that it illuminates a few matters which were already evident to the discerning. For one thing, it discloses how sincere are the protestations of peace and friendship between the rival factions of the Democratic party. It throws light, also, on the sense of dignity and propriety prevailing among certain of the public servants in this community. They will conduct themselves with decorum just so long as a few jobs are not at stake. The smell of patronage is what drives them wild. With that scent coming down wind they'd take off their pants at the corner of State and Madison streets and dance a fandango if they thought it would land the jobs.

PROSECUTING THE DOCTORS.

The department of justice has announced its intention of proceeding against the American Medical association and its affiliated Washington society as a conspiracy in restraint of trade. The evidence is about to be presented to a federal grand jury for appropriate action.

Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general in charge of monopoly prosecutions, has issued a statement of his reason for the present action. Mr. Arnold says that some 2,500 government pay rollers in Washington have joined what they called Group Health Association, Inc. The members pay a flat fee and in return receive medical services as needed. The medical society disapproved the plan. Physicians in Washington were put on notice that if they accept employment from Group Health association they would be dismissed from the society. Likewise, physicians who were summoned into consultation by the Group Health staf were to be expelled. According to Mr. Arnold that meant, in turn, that their hospital connections would be severed. The experience of the physicians led by Dr. Louis Schmidt who were disciplined by the Chicago Medical society for coöperating with a number of low cost medical clinics in Chicago no doubt served as a precedent for the action of the Washington branch.

A great many persons, including a substantial number of medical men, believe the doctors' societies have been too zealous in preserving the traditional professional relationship. It is not necessary to go into the merits of that controversy. The worst that can be said of the medical societies—and it has been said often—is that they have been following trade union practices. Members have been subjected to regulations which forbid them, under penalty of expulsion from their union, from freely contracting for their services.

The American Medical association, in short, is facing prosecution as a trade union. This is curious because trade unions are specifically exempt from the operations of the anti-trust laws. It is doubly curious because of all the trade unions ever known the medical association is the one which has been the least selfish, the most public spirited.

There is no union scale for doctors. There are no union hours. The ablest medical men in every community give their services without pay to the poor as a matter of course. Few doctors are rich and many an able physician earns little more than a bare livelihood. Thanks largely to their trade union, the standards of training and competence in the profession have risen steadily with the years. Eight or ten years of strenuous study and apprenticeship are required before a doctor is permitted to earn a thin dime.

This administration in Washington has given every encouragement to C. I. O. unionism, characterized by the grossest kind of coercion. The C. I. O. has been egged on to crack the skulls of workmen who didn't care to join its ranks; to seize and hold property in violation of law and justice; to wreck factories, resist the police, intimidate local officials. The aim was to deny to the man who refused to join the C. I. O. every chance to work. All this and much more like it has had the full blessing of the administration. Indeed, the labor board has repeatedly ordered the reëmployment of C. I. O. men guilty of rioting.

But when the doctors in pursuit of an ideal of the proper relation of physician to patient have done no more than expel from their society members who refused to accept its rules of ethics, the medical association is haled into the courts almost as a common criminal.

To earn the regard of this administration the American Medical association should have ordered its members to accept no less than $10 for a call, cash in advance, and to refuse treatment except on those terms; should have picketed the offices of doctors who refused to accept its scale of wages and hours; should have brought in plug-uglies armed with baseball bats to wreck the laboratories of Group Health association and brain any one attempting to enter the place.

The kind of trade unionism represented by the A. M. A., which establishes high professional standards for its members, continually raises those standards, publishes important scientific journals, and demands of every member that he put his patient's interest above his own is criminal in the Washington of 1938.

MR. ICKES GOES TO ALASKA.

Mr. Ickes is a big fish but an elusive one. Mayor Kelly has been fishing in his waters for several years but Mr. Ickes always gets away. He's been landed by other fishermen, but the Illinois Democratic rod and reel club comes home without anything on the string or in the creel. Odd, too, because the bait and the casting have seemed to be all right.

Mayor Kelly had Mr. Ickes right up to the surface on the subway line. Apparently here was a sure strike proposition, a sound PWA improvement and good depression medicine. Mr. Ickes has held that a project was not without honor save in his own home state, but he was warming up to the subway proposals.

Mayor Kelly almost had him when he shied away. He is going to Alaska for two months. Meanwhile engineers will study the plan for a two track subway. If they agree that two tracks will be adequate they will so report to him in October. The elections will be about a month in the future then and Mr. Ickes will be studying the report.

THE GREENER GRASS.

[New Haven (Conn.) Register.]

Like the grass that is nearly always greener on the other side of the fence, the direct primary has been praised several times lately in Connecticut, one of the few states to adopt a wait-and-see attitude. Texas, where Democratic nomination is about equivalent to election, has now provided another opportunity for seeing.

What has been seen was a free-for-all fight, with the main winner coming out on top with a campaign featuring a "billy band," promises for pensions for all over 65, although no proof of possible delivery, and compliments for the Decalogue, which nearly everybody approves even though not everybody lives up to it. Some other candidates campaigned more or less in comparable form. One of the principal victims, who lately pointed to a federal grant of millions as evidence of excellence of what he stood for, claimed that money defeated him.

It is possible that such considerations might be made to sway a convention, but hardly probable. But even so, where are the "high standards" of the direct primary, and the direct public voice on clearly drawn, crucial issues?

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

Jascha Heifetz's first remark when he arrived in town for his Ravinia appearance was "Have they got a ping-pong table at the hotel?" And as he drove off to the Moraine hotel in Highland Park with Ralph Poole he commented that if there were one he might miss rehersal. He is as good as a professional at ping-pong. He and Conductor Eugene Ormandy played a match while they were in town.

The great violinist played in an amateur string ensemble before he took a midnight plane for the west. It was at the home of the Francis M. Knights in Highland Park where both Heifetz and Conductor Ormandy were guests at a buffet supper after the Sunday concert. Heifetz made a fourth when an amateur string quartet that included the host played Mozart's Hunting Quartet. After he left, Ormandy tood his place and played in a Haydn quartet. Said he hadn't played a violin for fifteen years.

Artur Rodzinski told a story about Heifetz's prowess at ping-pong when he was here conducting at Ravinia. He and Heifetz and their wives crossed on the same ship with the victims of the ill-fated Hindenburg. A benefit concert was arranged for them at which Heifetz played, and some $3,000 was raised for the sufferers. Afterwards a woman rushed up to the violinist and said, "You play so well you should be a professional!" "But madam, I am," protested Heifetz. "O, I didn't know," the woman continued, "but my son who is a ping-pong champion says you play such a fine game you should be a professional at that, too."

AUGUST.

Now sultry doldrums hold the breeze,
And shocks of wheat rest at their ease.
This is the time when Summer's breath
Is held as in the clasp of death;
It is the pause before the burst
Of grain, and corn, and fruits that thirst
To reach fulfillment that the earth
May be the richer for their birth.

Memories of a Grandmother.

The old fashioned grandmother is still here. The children have gone riding in their streamlined automobile and left her on the screened porch—

A streamlined railway train shoots across the landscape, but that is a prairie schooner just over the fence there, and the prairie wind fans their campfire to a glow.

Right over there is where the old white horse walked in a circle all day to saw wood for the first Chicago and North Western railway engine. The train runs once a day when the snowdrifts are not too high, and the men are saying: "They are going to string a second wire to these telegraph poles almost any day." Johnny Raymond and Dan Holton are the conductors on this train.

It was Katie who lived in a dugout and pulled an old plank table to the doorway to get light to cut her first baby clothes, and when it was suddenly darkened looked into the faces of Indians.

Are you one of her brave descendants? Well, help yourself to two cookies out of the stone crock and go to bed. That's where I am going, because it is 9 o'clock, and the prairie chickens are calling their mates over in the tall grass on the creek.

Grandmother.

Another Grandmother Heard from—

"I have five grandchildren; I make regular visits to the beauty parlor, smoke if I care to, play bridge, and still find time to make animal cookies with colored sugar, to color eggs at Easter time, to sew on buttons and knit sweaters for my grandchildren while listening to Charlie McCarthy.

"Yours for better and more modern grandmothers, A. B. I."

We've begun to think this column is read largely by grandmothers. Dozens of letters from them, and we're sorry we can't print them all.

Martin K. Ash says a local dialectician boasts that in school they are teaching the story of his life: "Mine poy's teacher is telling him to read De Last of De Moe E. Kahns."

A Line o' Type or Two finally has located the John Bunyan tankard. It belongs to Earl H. Bach, insurance company executive in Indianapolis, who has forwarded photographs of the tankard and its inscription to Frank Mott Harrison, Ph. D., of London, who hoped to establish the correct date of the printing of Pilgrim's Progress by means of it. The cup was given to Elizabeth, wife of John Bunyan, by Ponder, the printer of Pilgrim's Progress, in 1671. Mr. Bach also owns the Bible, dated 1587, that was used by Bunyan during his term in prison.

EXERCISE AND CHEST PAIN.

THE other day I received a letter from a man in middle life who stated that, whenever he walked rapidly or indulged in any special exertion, he experienced a pain in the chest which spread to his left shoulder and down that arm. All distress ceased after a brief rest—in fact, it passed away promptly after he was seated. There was no shortness of breath.

This is a fairly accurate description of what is known as "angina of effort." Moderate activity is necessary to produce the symptoms, and relief comes when one is still. It never appears when the individual is lying down or at ease. Nevertheless the condition differs substantially from spasmodic angina, which also may be initiated by exercise, but which increases in intensity or persists for some time after quiet has been enforced. Again, both forms must be distinguished from coronary thrombosis, in which pain of great severity strikes suddenly, lessens gradually, and may continue for many hours.

The first attack or two of the "effort" type is rarely serious—it may be merely a twinge. But if care is not taken to relax sufficiently its incidence may become increasingly alarming. All one need do for immediate respite is to avoid overstrain. However, much study may be required to achieve a permanent cure.

What is the cause? Obviously there must be some interference with the flow of blood through the vessels which supply the heart, as the muscle fibers are receiving too little nourishment. Besides, the arteries may have lost considerable elasticity, which further hampers their function. Thus we can understand why movement that is rather more strenuous than usual may cause the difficulty. The heart obtains plenty of blood for ordinary circumstances, but if it is called upon for greater response the vessels may be utterly unable to furnish enough vital fluid. Consequently there is pain, due to anemia of the muscular tissues. In other words, the distress felt by the patient is a cry for more nutrition. When the ailment is recognized it is incumbent upon the sufferer to arrange a program which his heart can support.

Just where the ache localizes is not important. It may be felt in the middle of the chest, to the left of the sternum [breast bone], occasionally on the right side, and now and then in the stomach area. If exercise is taken following a meal it is quite likely to precipitate a seizure, which may be mistaken for dyspepsia. In the so-called spasmodic variety the pain is far more violent and may be so extreme that the victim will stop in his tracks, obsessed with the fear of death. Identifying the beginning of the "effort" signs may enable the patient to plan his affairs so that his heart will be relieved of the necessity of performing more labor than it is capable of without protest.

No one subject to chest pain need be unduly apprehensive, as there are many possible causes, apart from trouble with the heart, such as intercostal neuralgia, a neurosis, arthritis, gallstones, anemia, and a number of others. At the same time it is well to make sure that there is no cardiac involvement. This means a cereful physical examination with exercise tests. The electrocardiograph will be of help, and a general checking of the entire circulatory system will aid in determining arteriosclerosis should that tendency be present.

Effective treatment has been advanced greatly in the last dozen years. Tissue extracts, particularly those of the pancreas, have been used in numerous instances with excellent results. Such drugs as nitroglycerin are of great service, as they bring about rapid dilatation of the arteries. In some cases removal of the thyroid gland has been followed by notable improvement. A sound rule, however, is to increase the amount of rest or, conversely, decrease the work load.

KEEPING WEIGHT IN CHECK.

A. A. writes: I am a girl 22 years old and blessed with an extremely good appetite. Of course, every one would say this is a sign of excellent health, but it worries me, for I will increase my weight much more than I want to. What remedy could I find in order to satiate my appetite after dinner and thus be immune from temptation whenever I pass by the kitchen?

REPLY.

Many articles in this column have stressed the importance of diet and exercise in keeping down the pounds. Immunity from temptation in eating, as well as in other phases of life, is brought about by habits of self-control. Satiation of appetite is not altogether desirable. Certain foods, however, will prove filling, but not particularly nourishing. Send stamped, addressed envelope for list of low caloric edibles.

CAUSE OF BOWLEGS.

Mrs. R. G. writes: My daughter, aged 12, has become very bowlegged in the last year or two. Can anything be done to correct this deformity?

REPLY.

The probable cause is rickets, although other bone diseases should not be overlooked. Suitable braces or even plaster casts may be applied. At her age, surgery may be necessary. Consult a skilled orthopedist. We can prevent rickets easily through the administration of vitamin D to young children.

PREGNANCY.

Mrs. R. S. C. writes: During the early months of pregnancy is it unusual for one to feel weak and dizzy at times?

REPLY.

Pregnancy often causes abnormal reactions of one kind or another. If they are intermittent and of short duration they probably are of little consequence. However, every symptom—no matter how trivial—should be reported to your physician.

STUTTERING.

R. T. writes: My youngster is troubled with stuttering. Are there any books which I can study in order to help him?

REPLY.

Yes. Send a stamped, addressed envelope for list of books as well as for leaflet on the subject of speech defects.

EXPOSED TUMORS.

G. M. writes: Should a fatty tumor be removed from the elbow? It does not seem to be growing.

REPLY.

Fatty tumors rarely become malignant, but, because of their prominent locations—exposing them to injury and inflammation—removal is sometimes advised.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—France suddenly has become alive to the possibility of getting more gold mined in her colonies, perhaps four or five times the present amount. Premier Edouard Daladier has turned over nearly $3,000,000 by decree to the "gold office," a bureau created by Georges Mandel, minister of colonies, for further exploitation of the yellow metal, notably in French Guiana, French West Africa, French Equatorial Africa, Madagascar, and Indo-China.

The accent is to be on careful investigation of potentialities, subsidies, organization of hitherto haphazard attempts, and introduction of modern equipment.

France ranks fifteenth in world gold production. The $3,000,000 given the "gold office" will be used to finance prospecting and to equip and operate mines and placers.

In the order of their importance as gold producers the French colonies are, first, the vast expanse of land stretching from the Mediterranean to the Gulf of Guinea, including the Sahara desert and Timbuctoo, known as French West Africa. The top three-fourths of this section produce next to no gold, but the lower fourth, which includes Guinea, Senegal, the Sudan, and the ivory coast, makes French West Africa the most valuable in regard to the precious metal. Guinea ranks highest with an output of about two tons of gold a year. Senegal and the Sudan follow with a combined yield of 800 kilograms.

After French West Africa comes French Guiana, in South America, otherwise famous for the nearby Devil's Island. Exploitation of gold in French Guiana has been particularly haphazard. What is said to be a rich vein near Cayenne has not been operated since 1932. A vein at Adieu-Vat is said to test 20 grams to the cubic meter. The total yearly output is 1,600 kilograms.

Next, and youngest, of the gold producing colonies is French Equatorial Africa, which lies just north of the Congo river. Gold was not discovered in this region until 1912. It was not worked until 1929. The average grade of the ore is said to run between 0.7 and 3 grams to the cubic meter, while occasionally it hits a high of 120.

In certain parts of this territory nuggets weighing 1,600 grams have been found. In the eastern portion of Cameroon, which is part of French Equatorial Africa and which formerly belonged to Germany, gold deposits are known to exist, but to date the territory has not been worked seriously.

In Madagascar gold was encountered by European navigators in the eighteenth century, but was not exploited until shortly before the French conquest of the island in 1895. From 1897 to 1932 Madagascar supplied the world with forty-five tons of the metal. Today it exports about 500 kilograms a year.

Indo-China was tapped for gold centuries before the French entered by Chinese, Annamites, and Cambodians. Today it produces the least gold of all the French colonies. However, an ancient mine probably will be reopened soon.

DECEASED'S ESTATE.

Chicago, July 30.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—It will be four years in August since my father died. Mother is also dead and has been for twenty years. Seven children survive. Father died suddenly and left no will, leaving a business and two story house and had money and different investment papers in his safe, such as stocks and cemetery lots and papers of different kinds. We have always been a family that never had any trouble and things just went on and on, one trusting the other. I am the only one in bad circumstances, the rest having steady incomes. I have five children and things are hard for us.

My brother has been taking things in his own hands and [1] as far as I know has sold the house and has in his possession all valuable papers, and he told me everything would be settled last month, but now says the only way we could divide the money would be, [2] so he says his lawyer tells him, to put up his home as security.

Isn't there some place we could go to find out if there were any liens, as we all know there is no such thing as a lien, as my father did not owe a penny when he died. He lived in this home for 51 years. 3. He now says we have to wait three years more and then everything will be all right. J. S.

1. The mere fact that he is administrator would not give him power to sell the house.
2. Apparently you have left out some wording essential to the sense at this point.
3. If the estate is being probated it would be closed up shortly after the expiration of the year allowed for filing claims. If you are trying to dispense with probate then the claim would not be barred short of seven years. Your facts are not clear enough to place us in a position to advise you to advantage.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

LEGALITY OF WILL.

Peoria, Ill., July 29.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Several years ago, before my marriage, I made a will in Illinois in favor of my mother and had it witnessed by my two sisters, without employing a lawyer. I am not certain whether or not I destroyed the will after my marriage, but I think I did.

1. If I should die would the will stand if it should be found?

2. Should I make a new will in favor of my husband and our child?

3. What I have now is in joint ownership with my husband, who had some of it before our marriage. We have one child, a minor. H. J. K.

1. In general, marriage revokes a prior will unless the will expressly makes contrary provisions.

2. We would consider it a wise precaution in order to remove all possible ground for question. In substance it would merely mean that your husband would hold the new will in his possession to use if he desired to use it.

3. The presence or absence of a will would be immaterial as far as the joint tenancy property is concerned. On the death of a joint tenant the property passes to the survivor without necessity for probate and to the exclusion of heirs or devisees of the one who dies first. [33 Corpus Juris 908, 915.]

REDISTRICTING? WHEN?

Chicago, July 29.—The law of Illinois provides for a redistricting of senatorial and congressional districts every ten years. In Chicago we have not had a redistricting in more than fifty years. The result is that the 25th senatorial district on the northwest side, which has a larger population than Arizona, Delaware, Wyoming, New Mexico, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Vermont, Utah or New Hampshire, is not sufficiently represented in either Springfield or Washington. It takes 19 registered voters in the 25th senatorial district to equal one voter in the 17th senatorial district. The politicians have here an excellent means of controlling voting power.

THE TRIBUNE would be doing the public a great service by calling the northwest side voters' attention to these facts.

AUSTEN DOE.

ON THE LAKE FRONT ROCKS.

Chicago, July 28.—For years I have spent my Sunday afternoons down at the rocks that stretch along the lake front between Belmont harbor and Montrose avenue. I am one of the thousands who regularly enjoy their summers at the rocks.

Young folks have the time of their lives swimming and diving. Other people find a flat rock and just sit and sun themselves. On a Sunday afternoon hundreds of people are continually strolling along the narrow road; parents with their babies, young and old couples, children with their dogs. The rocks have long been one of the favorite recreation spots of the north side.

But lately a danger has arisen down there that has imperiled not a few and frightened every one. I am referring to the horseback riding on the crowded foot path.

Without belittling the intelligence horses and riders are said to have, they are dangerous actors at the rocks. The horses are naturally bewildered by so many people and really cannot be blamed for their unpredictable behavior. On the last three Sundays I have seen three horses completely out of control, and a scared horse with a terrified rider clinging to his back, galloping down a narrow, crowded dirt road, is no stunt to smile at.

I am hoping that some of these thoughtless riders will read this letter and realize the danger they are causing. Horseback riding should be confined to the wide open spaces or the regular bridle paths, where a rider can break his neck to his heart's content without mowing down a dozen peaceful swimmers with him. GRACE JOHNSON.

GOOD OLD UNCLE SAM.

Chicago, July 29.—Recently I have read much about our Mexican neighbor and the New Dealers' declaration that the United States intends to defend its citizens and their legitimate interests in any part of the world.

We heard the same declaration five years ago when the New Dealers clasped their arms around the Russian bear for a 30 million dollar trade agreement, and forgot to defend the citizens' legitimate interests of 450 million dollars.

There is only one easy going Uncle Sam—he forgives our foreign debtors and raises the money by taxing everybody. Anyway, it will not take long. We will all get a shovel and a steady employer. A. SASSUR.

RESPECTS TO THE JITTERBUG.

Chicago, July 30.—The reaction of the "jitterbug" to "swing" [mentioned in your editorial] is analogous to that of a certain type of small boy to the passing of a fire engine. The boy has an irresistible impulse to dance up and down in the street and whistle through his teeth; the "jitterbug" craves to hop up and down on a dance floor to the frantic, imbecile tooting of a horn.

Both are victims of a sort of joyful, ebullient hysteria. The jitterbug has an excess of primitive incontinent emotion.

PROPOSES ANOTHER TAG DAY.

Chicago, July 29.—I protest against the grave injustice being done to the Chicago Surface Lines. It is a shame for a large, rich city like Chicago to pick on the poor company and expect it to pay the exorbitant fee of 3 per cent. Robbery, that's what it is!

I suggest a tag day for the poor, downtrodden company, turning the entire proceeds over to the surface lines. I'm sure every one will be more than willing to aid in this worthy cause.

R. C. S.

WRIGHT AND LANGLEY COMPARED.

Chicago, July 30.—Your editorial regarding the controversy between friends of Langley and Orville Wright is interesting, but there are some things that have apparently been overlooked.

The Langley machine did not fly because Prof. Langley was not a flyer, whereas the Wright machine did fly because both of the Wrights had become expert flyers and knew how to ride the air. The Wright machine used the same fundamental principles that Langley used in his machine, and the Wrights profited by Langley's experience.

The Langley machine, therefore, should be labeled "First heavier than air machine capable of sustaining the weight of a man in control thereof."

The Wright machine should be labeled "First heavier than air machine to actually fly with the weight of a man in control thereof," for this machine is in fact the first one to fly successfully with a man in control thereof.

The Wrights were the first to learn to fly, and they hold a high place in the estimate of the world, and Chicago would be proud to be the possessor of the first airplane in which they actually flew. The Wrights had become expert flyers, in a sense, by the time they built their first power machine, because they had been doing glider work at Kitty Hawk and had learned how to plane the air and how to control a plane riding the air.

On the other hand, Prof. Langley had never done anything of that kind, and the result was that his plane flopped into the Potomac river when it struck a gust of wind. A. F. DURAND.

WHAT ABOUT LOMBARD?

Chicago, July 29.—It looks as if the town of Lombard is run by union gangsters. Who in the world are they? Who put them in office? Nobody voted for them and I think nobody would.

What is the sheriff there for? Just to sit around? Knowing trouble was brewing there he should have been "Johnny on the Spot." But no, he's afraid, just like the rest of them. Where were the cops? I'll tell you where; joyriding.

It's about time Lombard got next to itself and did away with such primitive ways and let land owners build more and thereby create work. What would the union men do if people who could afford to build would hoard the money instead of building? A BUILDER.

REVENUE.

Chicago, July 27.—Revenue from reserved seats at Grant park concerts?

Revenue from reserved seats in the reading rooms of our public libraries?

Revenue from rail seats at the zoos?

Revenue from curb seats at Michigan avenue parades?

Revenue from reserved seats on the park benches?

FINNEGAN.

NOISE IN PARK MANOR.

Chicago, July 28.—If the people near the Gresham station of the Rock Island railroad get only one and a half hours' sleep they are fortunate. We [in Park Manor, 68th and South Park avenue] are lucky to get any sleep day or night. The banging of the cars, the puffing, chugging of the engines, and the brakes screeching almost constantly are enough to drive folks crazy. Is there no way the Lake Shore railroad could be made to make less noise? S. M. T.

PREDICTS EVERY GERMAN WORKER WILL OWN A CAR

New Nazi 'People's Auto' to Cost $380.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—By 1945, Germany's new, huge, national automobile plant will turn out one million and a half volkswagen or "people's cars," a year, Dr. Robert Ley, chief of the Labor Front, announced today. He spoke at the main factory of the German dye trust in Leverkusen on the seventy-fifth anniversary of the foundation of Germany's first big chemical plant.

Ley described the volkswagen as "concrete evidence of the new Nazi Socialism," according to which all luxuries of life are to be made available to the entire population—provided the population works at top speed.

He said a special savings bank will be opened by the Labor Front to enable workers to save for the automobile which will cost about $380. The workers will be allowed to pay for it in weekly instalments of $2, which include insurance costs.

Average Income Is $10.60.

According to official German statistics, the average weekly income of German workers for 1937 was $10.60. Realizing that on their present budgets it will be impossible for them to save $2 a week for the new car, Ley assured his countrymen they would be able to afford one by pooling their resources.

Since the car will seat four to five persons, the Labor Front expressed the hope it would help to raise the birthrate by inducing German families "to have four or five children to fill it."

"This very year," he said, "the first section of the factory for an annual production of 450,000 cars will have a roof overhead. By the end of 1939 regular production will be started. When the factory is completed in 1945 annual production will be 1,500,000 cars if nothing happens to prevent it. In ten years from now there won't be any working man in Germany who doesn't have or can't have his car."

Runs 40 Miles on a Gallon.

Ley, in disclosing details of the volkswagen, said it will travel at a speed of 62½ miles an hour and will run about 40 miles on a gallon of gasoline.

The chief of 25,000,000 workers and employers analyzed Reichsfuehrer Hitler's socialism in the course of his address. He said it is "not weakly but manly socialism," in which better living conditions are to be achieved by more work and greater production of goods.

"Man must work for what he wants in the way of food, clothing, and lodging," Ley said. "No manna falls from heaven. If you want socialistic advantages you must fight for them."

BRICK SLAYING CONFESSION PUT BEFORE JURORS

The confession of Robert Nixon, colored, that he was present at the brick murder of Mrs. Florence Johnson was read to a jury in the Criminal court late yesterday. It was admitted into evidence by Judge John C. Lewe.

Defense attorneys thus lost an important point. On Friday they began a fight against giving the confession to the jury. They argued that it was obtained by force and threats. Nixon testified yesterday that he was beaten by detectives. He said they also held him out of the eleventh floor window of the detective bureau and threatened to drop him.

State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney testified yesterday that Nixon told him on May 28 that he had been well treated by police. A dozen detectives who had been with Nixon also took the stand to deny the defense charges. Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley clinched his argument with a question to defense lawyers: "If Nixon was beaten to confess, why didn't he admit he killed the woman?"

The jury has been qualified to inflict the death penalty. Earl Hicks, colored, will testify that Nixon did kill her.

PROSECUTORS GO TO CLASS, STUDY CRIME DETECTION

Fifty prosecuting attorneys from nearly half the states in the union gathered in Chicago yesterday to attend opening sessions of the third annual course sponsored by the scientific crime detection laboratory of Northwestern university.

The classwork is intended to familiarize the prosecutors with the newest methods of crime investigation and to teach them the proper way to construct and present a case. Many of them have attended one or both of the preceding courses. Sessions will be held daily through Saturday in Lincoln hall on the university's Chicago campus.

Speakers yesterday included C. W. Muehlberger, toxicologist connected with the Cook county coroner's office; Prof. Leon Green, dean of the Northwestern law school; Leonarde Keeler, head of the crime detection laboratory, and Charles M. Wilson, firearms identification expert.

HELP STOMACH DIGEST FOOD
Without Laxatives—and You'll Eat Everything from Soup to Nuts

The stomach should digest two pounds of food daily. When you eat heavy, greasy, coarse or rich foods or when you are nervous, hurried or chew poorly—your stomach pours out too much fluid. Your food doesn't digest and you have gas, heartburn, gauses, pain or sour stomach. You feel sour, sick and upset all over.

Doctors say never take a laxative for stomach pain. It is dangerous and foolish. It takes those little black tablets called Bell-ans for Indigestion to make the excess stomach fluids harmless, relieve distress in 5 minutes and put you back on your feet. Relief is so quick it is amazing and one 25c package proves it. Ask for Bell-ans for Indigestion.

Allies Back Old Enemy

(Story in adjoining column.)

The allied powers of the world war, principally France and Great Britain, yesterday approved the Balkan entente's action freeing Bulgaria from post-war treaty restrictions on arms and armies. Bulgaria, indicated by black area on map, was one of the wartime central powers.

POLICEMAN SHOT AS FRIEND'S GUN DROPS IN AUTO

Policeman John Gallagher, 41 years old, was shot in the right leg yesterday in a freak accident. He was driving home with John Shanahan, 8855 Yale avenue, a ticket agent. In making a turn at 69th street and Indiana avenue, Shanahan's pistol slipped from behind the sun visor where he kept it. The gun fell to the floor and was discharged, wounding Gallagher. The policeman was taken to the Jackson Park hospital. Shanahan was booked for having a gun in his automobile within reach of the owner.

BULGARIA'S FOES IN WAR APPROVE RIGHT TO REARM

LONDON, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Bulgaria's old enemies, the allied powers of the world war, today chorused approval of Balkan action freeing Bulgaria from post-war treaty restrictions on armaments and armies.

At the same time there appeared to be no bar to similar action by Hungary, the only nation still nominally bound by the restrictions imposed by the victorious allies.

Others of the wartime central powers—Germany and Turkey—already have thrown off rearmament bonds.

In a pact signed yesterday at Saloniki, Greece, the Balkan entente—Greece, Turkey, Rumania, and Jugo-Slavia—gave Bulgaria equality in maintaining her army, navy, and air force and at the same time established a nonaggression agreement among the participating nations.

Balkan Entente Gives Approval.

The move was regarded as regularization of Bulgaria's rearmament which long has existed in fact.

To abrogate armaments clauses of the post-war treaty of Neuilly, Bulgaria first obtained approval of the Balkan entente and then off the record approval from treaty signatories—principally Britain and France.

Official approval of the signatories is expected to be asked soon and then the matter will be laid before the league of nations assembly for formal legalization.

Though a "back door" method of legal revision, Bulgaria's method contrasted sharply with Germany's dramatic scrapping of the Versailles treaty which imposed similar restrictions on the reich.

Feared Offending Bulgaria.

Informed sources said modification of the Neuilly treaty through the league was not pressed by the world war allies for fear of offending Bulgaria and perhaps causing her to break with the league.

British sources said the government warmly welcomed any understanding between nations which would minimize the chances of war. French sources echoed the sentiment.

Observers in Italy believed Bulgaria was assured an Italian benediction while Italy would work for similar freedom for Hungary.

The treaty of Trianon stripped Hungary of arms, as did the Neuilly treaty for Bulgaria.

The new step heartened Hungary, where a strong treaty revisionist movement exists. In the British view there was no reason why Hungary should not rearm legally provided nullification of the Trianon treaty were carried out around a conference table with Hungary's neighbors participating.

Both Britain and France believe it is better to have their former enemies moderately rearmed in the open than heavily fortified clandestinely.

IS CHICAGO TRIBUNE PULLING POWER

ON SUNDAY afternoon, July 17, more than 70,000 persons gathered in Soldiers' Field on Chicago's lake front to witness a program of fire and crime fighting methods presented by Chicago firemen and policemen, with the cooperation of the park district board.

From every neighborhood and suburb of Chicago they came. A trafic survey showed that the majority arrived by street car, bus, elevated and suburban train.

Large as it was, this audience was only a fraction of the Tribune readers who, every day of the week, make up Chicago's largest constant audience. Day in and day out, over 690,000 city and suburban families turn to the Tribune for the news and its interpretation. This is from 242,000 to 477,000 more than can be reached by other Chicago newspapers. These 690,000 families depend on the Tribune to give them ideas about men and women in the public eye, events, fashion and business, health and food and beauty . . . all they want to know.

The Tribune built its circulation and continues to increase its circulation because it plays a vital and intimate part in the lives and thinking of the people of Chicago. As a result, it reaches practically as many families in metropolitan Chicago as the next two newspapers combined. It is the only newspaper with majority coverage of all families in Chicago and suburbs.

Are you taking full advantage of the opportunity which the Tribune offers to increase the sale of your product or merchandise to this friendly, responsive audience?

When you advertise in the Tribune, you address people who are accustomed to turn to the Tribune for buying ideas about practically everything sold at retail. Chicago department stores and specialty shops during the first six months of this year placed 63.5% more advertising in the Tribune than they placed in any other Chicago newspaper. General advertisers placed 49.9% more advertising in the Tribune than in any other Chicago newspaper.

The editorial qualities which have built for the Tribune deepest interest among the men and women of Chicago get best returns for advertisers. You can make more sales by building your advertising program around the Tribune. Rates per 100,000 circulation are among the lowest in America.

103 ARE INDICTED AS N. Y. MEMBERS OF BOOTLEG RING

Police and U. S. Agents Included.

New York, Aug. 1.—[Special.]—A city-wide bootleg ring of 103 persons, including policemen, treasury agents, doctors, druggists, and dentists were indicted today by a federal grand jury. They are charged with defrauding the federal government out of $1,800,000 in taxes. The indictment accuses the men of manufacturing brandy, alcohol, and "slivowitz" out of sugar, shoe blacking, and dry cleaning solutions.

As soon as the indictment was handed up to Federal Judge T. Whitfield Davidson, eighty-six of the men were arrested and held in bail of $500 to $3,000 and bench warants issued for the others.

Government prosecutors and members of Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine's confidential squad worked on the case for ten months. The ring's illicit business in manufacturing and dispensing 10,000 gallons of spirits a week was described as the largest in the history of the country.

Used Luciano's Former Office.

The men responsible for the creation of the ring and its efficient operation since 1934, government prosecutors said, are Charles and Frank Pelligrino. They used a flat in Mulberry street as headquarters. The same address was once used as the "home office" of Charles [Lucky] Luciano, imprisoned vice czar.

The Pelligrinos are brothers of Michael Pelligrino, former New York city alderman, Assistant United States Attorney W. Mahlon Dickerson told reporters. Ald. Pelligrino represented the 2d aldermanic district controled by former County Clerk Albert Marinelli, who quit office after District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey accused him of consorting with criminals.

Other men who played a prominent part in the alleged conspiracy are Joseph and Peter De Palmeiro, of Manhattan, and John Lavigna, of Brooklyn, according to Dickerson.

Shakedown After Sales.

So smoothly geared did the combination work that the members were able not only to make a handsome profit on the tax free alcohol but were able to "shake down" the very customers to whom they sold five gallons of spirits at an average cost of $15, it was charged.

The profit in bootleg alcohol can be estimated when it is considered that a five-gallon can of tax paid alcohol sells for about $33, of which half the price represents the tax. The federal tax has been $2 a proof gallon of 100 proof and the state tax is $1 a gallon. Since alcohol ranges between 180-190 proof, the federal tax alone is close to $4 a gallon.

The policemen and treasury agents, the indictment said, were used to afford protection for the fourteen garages used as "drops" and for the trucks that made the deliveries. In return for their services they were regularly given the names of the bigger customers and staged raids soon after deliveries were made, according to the government. Then another agent would appear at just the right time and persuade the police or federal agents to drop the case for a consideration.

Policemen Suspended.

The indicted policemen were arrested this morning, stripped of their shields, suspended, and turned over to federal agents. They are:

Sergeant Irving Bloom of the Bronx, Patrolmen Frederick V. Bradley of Manhattan, John P. Feltman of Brooklyn, William C. Jones of Brooklyn, and William M. McEnery of Queens.

The indicted treasury agents are: Edward P. Flynn of Queens, Charles M. Forbes of Brooklyn, Thomas J. McGivney of Long Island, Joseph M. Frucht of the Bronx, William L. Oettinger of City Island; and Francis V. Thornton of Long Island. The last three named, who had not been arrested previously, were taken into custody today after the indictment was filed.

The defendants, if convicted, face a maximum penalty of two years' imprisonment and $10,000 fine. If all the defendants are convicted the court could impose fines totaling $1,030,000.

'DUPED,' PASTOR SAYS; DROPS LAKE COUNTY VICE WAR

Thinks Rival Gamblers or Politicians Started It.

A Waukegan minister yesterday withdrew from the Lake county gambling investigation which he had been actively supporting. He charged he had been duped and declared that the reform drive originally had been initiated either by a political faction or an interested lawless group, or both.

The minister, Dr. J. W. F. Davies, pastor of the First Congregational church, added: "But I have complete faith in Mr. Charles E. Jack, who has been appointed by Judge Ralph J. Dady. He is wholeheartedly concerned to drive the lawless element out of the county."

Reads Withdrawal from Pulpit.

Dr. Davies read his pronouncement to his congregation Sunday and then left for a month's vacation at Egg Harbor, Wis. As soon as it became known yesterday it aroused surprise among his colleagues and speculation as to the source of his information.

On July 9 raiders acting independently of the sherif and State's Attorney Charles E. Mason began a series of surprise raids. More than thirty persons were arrested. Scores of gambling devices were seized in taverns and roadhouses.

Soon after the reformists demanded that a special prosecutor be appointed. Mr. Mason objected, but later acquiesced when Judge Dady appointed Mr. Jack, president of the Lake County Bar association.

Pledges War on Higher-ups.

On Aug. 9, Attorney Jack will ask the Lake county board to appropriate $7,500 for the investigation, which he promises will be complete. Mr. Jack has stated he intends to break the gambling industry by going after the higher-ups.

At the time the raids started, two rumors were current. One blamed the Democrats for a scheme to defeat Republican office holders in the fall. The other credited the William Johnson-William Skidmore gambling syndicate, hitherto unsuccessful in an attempt to gain a foothold in the county, with a subtle method of approach.

Refuses to Amplify Charges.

Dr. Davies refused to amplify his statement further. He said it was purely personal, that the evidence he has was not the kind that could be presented to a grand jury, but that Mr. Jack would soon find out about it in his investigation.

Among those who expressed surprise were the Rev. Edward A. Voorhees of the St. Paul Lutheran church, the Rev. Edward R. Hamme of St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church, and Mrs. Frank H. James of the Women's Christian Temperance union. They had supported the anti-gambling crusade. All expressed a belief that Dr. Davies had been misinformed.

4 BANDITS WALK INTO N. Y. BANK AND GET $65,000

New York, Aug. 1.—[Special.]—Four armed men walked briskly into a branch of the Banco Di Napoli Trust company at Twelfth street and First avenue at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon. They drove fourteen customers and several employés into a cowed huddle. Then they walked briskly out again with a bag containing $65,000.

The outlaws entered, took the money and vanished in less than five minutes. The bandits apparently knew that the bank was to send out money by an armored car. The satchel with the money was on the floor under the stool of Peter Cocuzza, the cashier. The leader warned Cocuzza not to press an alarm button and picked up the satchel and took $250 on the counter.

Police said they had picked up an automobile believed to have been used in the robbery and a man who they suspect participated in the stickup.

HEADLINES like those above have appeared in newspapers throughout the country.

They have stemmed from the activities of 1241 local Chambers of Commerce which have made it their job to acquaint people in their local communities with what business means to them.

And where do these businessmen get their inspiration and information?

You will find an eloquent answer in the pages of NATION'S BUSINESS, which has crusaded for years through its editorial columns for better business understanding.

310,000 businessmen are subscribers (all net paid) and the best proof of their interest in this magazine is this: circulation is now near the highest point in history, up 28% since 1936.

Here is something for advertisers and advertising agents to think about, if they have something businessmen will buy.

Here is a magazine which gets action from its readers—and includes among its readers such a blue chip coverage as this:

More than twice as many businessmen as the next largest business magazine has total subscribers!

—almost as many executive subscribers as all other general business magazines combined!

—almost as many manufacturer subscribers as the total circulation of any other business magazine!

—more subscribers in large cities than any other business magazine has in all the cities, towns and villages in the land!

—an advertising rate based on a guaranteed net paid circulation of 280,000—with 310,000 actually delivered!

—a cost per thousand readers which is about one-half the cost of the next business paper!

ILLINOIS GUARD STARTS ANNUAL WAR TRAINING

Camp Grant, Ill., Aug. 1.—[Special.]—Hundreds of doughboys, with fixed bayonet charging across a fog covered drill field opened the first day of field training for the soldiers of the 33d Division and attached troops of the Illinois National Guard, here for the annual two weeks encampment.

By nightfall all of the 9,400 officers and men in camp had tired muscles and a greater knowledge of what real soldiering means. They face much more of the same thing during the next two weeks, with sports and recreational program as an offset.

Congressman Scott W. Lucas, who is a colonel and judge advocate general of Illinois, arrived in camp last night. He said he had postponed work on his campaign for United States senator.

ASKS U. S. PROBE MEDICAL PLAN IN MILWAUKEE

Labor Cites Expulsion of Seven Doctors.

BY THORNTON SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 1.—[Special.] Organized labor in Milwaukee today asked Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general in Washington, to include an investigation of the expulsion of seven leaders of the Milwaukee Medical center from the Milwaukee county and the American Medical associations. Arnold announced yesterday that a District of Columbia grand jury would investigate monopoly charges against the American Medical association.

Asked to Testify At Capitol.

The medical center here was one of the first coöperative medical groups. It has been in operation since April, 1936. Its medical chiefs were ousted from membership in the Milwaukee County Medical society and were defeated in their appeal to the American Medical association from the action of the local unit.

Dr. H. C. Dallwig, spokesman for the center said that Arnold had asked them to send representatives to testify before the Washington grand jury. The Milwaukee center also has been deprived of the use of Milwaukee hospital facilities, Dr. Dallwig said, except for one or two of the small institutions which are not graded under the American Hospital association direction. Mrs. E. S. Danielson, office manager for the medical center said that pressure was put upon the hospitals to compel them to deny their facilities to patients of the center.

3,000 Enroll As Patients.

The medical center here has about 3,000 heads of families as patients, Mrs. Danielson said. They pay for medical and surgical service for six months in advance at the rate of $1 per month for individuals, $2 per month for a man and wife and $3 per month for family units regardless of the number of children.

Dr. Rock Sleyster, Wauwatosa, president elect of the American Medical association, defended the association's right to fix the qualifications of its membership and deciared the federal charges were unfounded.

"The American Medical association has the right to fix the requirements of its membership," said Dr. Sleyster, and to expel members who fail to comply with them. I wonder if the government would be raising as much fuss if the C. I. O. rather than the American Medical association was involved."

CUMMINGS BACKS U. S. SUIT AGAINST 'DOCTORS' TRUST'

Fights Oppressive Measure, He Says.

Attorney General Homer S. Cummings defended the department of justice plan to prosecute the American Medical association as a monopoly in a statement issued here yesterday.

The association replied to the government's charges with the accusation that the federal government is trying to use the laws and the courts to mold the people of the United States to its beliefs.

Cummings issued his statement after a conference with Michael L. Igoe, United States attorney. He said:

"The reasons for the procedure in brief are to prevent oppressive measures which interfere with the opportunity of lower salaried people to get proper medical attendance."

Medical Associations' Reply.

The reply by officials of the medical association said:

"In the statement issued to the press, the assistant attorney general apparently offers to the American Medical association and to the others concerned an opportunity to avoid trial by agreeing to consent decrees which will assure the coöperation of the medical assocition in the operation of coöperative clinics.

"It becomes apparent that the department of justice feels that organized medicine should have nothing to say about methods of payment for medical services; it is even proposed that hospitals shall have nothing to say as to who may or may not practice within their walls. The statement by the assistant attorney general is in accord with the point of view which he has held for some time in relationship to our government.

Physicians Are Reassured.

"Apparently it remains to be determined whether the federal administration can use the laws and the courts to mold the people of the United States to its belief in every phase of life and living, or whether fundamental principles of common justice which have prevailed in this country in the past are to be relegated into the limbo of forgotten things.

"Until the courts have spoken, physicians need have no fear as to the legality of the service which they render or as to the place which the American Medical association occupies in our national economy."

Plans for prosecuting the association under the anti-trust laws were announced in Washington on Sunday by Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general.

2 BACK MOTHER'S CLAIM IN ESTATE BATTLE OF WIVES

Testimony to support the claim of Mrs. Laura Brainard, 605 Ashland avenue, River Forest, that she was married in 1929 to the late Charles H. Brainard, was given yesterday in a hearing before Master-in-Chancery John A. Sbarbaro.

Miss Donna Hathaway, 3932 North Cicero avenue, told Attorney Lloyd Moody, representing Mrs. Laura Brainard, that she was told by the Brainards in November, 1929, that they were married. Under cross-examination by Attorney George W. Dammann, representing Brainard's brothers and sisters, she admitted she had not known it earlier. Another witness testified that Brainard told her in July, 1930, when Charlotte Brainard was born, that he had been married about a year.

Brainard, a construction engineer, was killed in a mine accident in March, 1937. Mrs. Laura Brainard seeks two-thirds of his $100,000 estate for her two children, Charlotte, 8, and Patricia, 6. Mrs. Gertrude Brainard, 428 Rex avenue, Elmhurst, whom Brainard married in 1900, and six brothers and sisters, contest her claim.

RULING THWARTS NEIGHBORS' MOVE TO OUST CHINESE

There can be no ordinance aimed against Mr. and Mrs. Silas Fung, American born Chinese. Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes gave this opinion yesterday to Ald. William J. Cowhey [41st].

The couple and their two children moved into Cowhey's ward at 5719 Eastwood avenue several weeks ago. About a hundred neighbors gathered on their lawn and warned them to expect trouble. Ald. Cowhey asked Hodes whether an ordinance could be drafted to bar Chinese from certain neighborhoods.

"Under the constitution, no city could adopt any ordinance designed to prevent persons of certain races, whether oriental, Negro, or Caucasian, from living where they choose, under the same terms as persons of any other race," Hodes wrote. He cited rulings by the United States Supreme court.

Get Wise to Constipation!

When you're constipated, it's a great temptation to be satisfied with quick relief. But physics may become a habit. And they don't keep constipation from returning. It's so much better to get at the cause of the trouble.

If you eat what most people do, chances are the only thing the matter is you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean how much you eat. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

What to do? Eat a little Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day and drink plenty of water. This crunchy toasted cereal is not only rich in "bulk"—it also contains the natural intestinal tonic, vitamin B_1. All-Bran is made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

SEIZE SECOND MAN IN LOMBARD LABOR SLUGGING

Carpenter Identified by Bolton; Freed.

A second man was arrested last night in connection with the slugging last week of Warren B. Bolton, a trucking contractor in Lombard. The slugging brought to a head the terrorism which has effectively stopped construction on two Lombard homes.

The man seized is William Oetke, 50 years old, 24 Hickory road, Lombard, a carpenter, and said to be a member of the carpenters' union. Roy Leverenz, a business agent of the Du Page Building Trades council, was arrested a few days ago.

Identified by Victim.

Deputies from the office of Sherif Arthur Bennett seized Oetke in his home. They had a warant charging assault and battery. Bolton was with the deputies. He immediately identified Oetke. The latter declined to talk. He was taken before Justice of the Peace Alfred Watts and freed on on bond of $2,000 put up by William Stock, 104 North Park avenue, Lombard. Oetke and Leverenz will be arraigned on Aug. 6.

Sherif Bennett's men, after arresting Oetke, went to Villa Park in search of a man named Shannon. Sherif Bennett said that Shannon was not at home and that a woman at the house said Shannon would not return "until the trouble is over."

Injunction Hearing Today.

The Lombard labor trouble will be further aired today before Judge William J. Fulton on two petitions for injunctions. One was filed by William Wallace, contractor putting up the two Lombard homes, and the other by officials of the trades council.

Wallace is a member of the Landis Award Employers' association. In his plea for injunction he charged that several of his employés and subcontractors had been slugged. He asserted that the trades council pickets had halted construction work. He specifically named certain officials of the union as behind the trouble.

The union denied the charges and filed a counterplea for an injunction to restrain Wallace from interfering with the pickets.

460 ACCEPT PAY CUT AT FOUNDRY, SCENE OF STRIKE

The 460 employés of the Chicago Hardware Foundry company at North Chicago yesterday accepted a 10 per cent pay cut. This was part of the agreement reached two weeks ago to end the C. I. O. inspired strike. Previously the employés had taken a 5 per cent cut for one week. Negotiations for a six months' contract with the union, which were to have been resumed yesterday, were deferred until today because of the absence of John Riffe, subregional director of the Steel Workers Organizing committee of the C. I. O.

Injured in Wreck

Mrs. Mary Brown of Winnetka (left) and Mrs. Helen Brown Haggerty, who were injured in New York Central train wreck at Rocky Ridge, O.

Rocky Ridge, O., Aug. 1.—[Special.]—Government and railroad officials yesterday began an investigation into the cause of the crash of two fast trains of the New York Central railroad here last night. At least fifty persons were injured when the Commodore Vanderbilt plowed into the rear of the Mercury, a Detroit-Cleveland express.

The most seriously injured is Lewis M. Osborne, 46 years old, 820 Mulford street, Evanston. He suffered internal injuries and severe shock. Five other Chicagoans were hurt. They included Mrs. John Brown and her sister, Mrs. Helen Brown Haggerty of 1186 Spruce street, Winnetka. They are sisters of Edward Eagle Brown, president of the First National bank.

The accident occurred when the Mercury crew stopped to investigate a minor collision with an automobile. As the Commodore approached, B. C. Callon, engineer, applied the brakes but the wheels skidded on rails wet from rain.

DROWNS IN LAKE AS COMPANION SWIMS FOR HELP

Despite heroic rescue efforts by his companion, Roman Wood, 21 years old, 5431 Aberdeen street, drowned yesterday when his rowboat overturned in Lake Michigan near Foss park in North Chicago. He and Eugene Redding, 19, of 1636 Jackson street, North Chicago, were about a mile off shore when the craft was tipped over by a sudden gust of wind.

Placing Wood atop the overturned boat, Redding swam back to shore. There he notified life guards, police, and sailors from the Great Lakes Naval Training station. Searchers found the boat still afloat, but Wood had drowned. His body had not been recovered last night.

The victim was employed as a clerk in the Chicago office of Balaban and Katz theaters.

Ald. Louis Rose of North Chicago, whose sons own the boat, said he will ask that the Foss park board investigate the tardiness of life guards in rowing to Wood's rescue. The guards were delayed because their boat was leaky, according to Rose. He said he will demand that their boat be replaced with a motor boat.

OUST EX-BANKER AS EXECUTIVE OF AURORA ESTATE

William George, 77 years old, a former Aurora banker, was removed yesterday as executive trustee of the estate of Mrs. Fannie Bishop Henderson of Aurora. She died in 1931 at the age of 77, leaving a fortune estimated at from $600,000 to $1,000,000.

The removal order was signed by Judge William K. Fulton, sitting at Geneva. It was based on charges of mismanagement brought by the Illinois attorney general's office. George was accused of investing estate funds in property owned by himself.

Judge Fulton pointed out that the acts complained of have been corrected, and added in the long run the estate has not suffered. He allowed George six months to clear up his accounts. He indicated he would name an Aurora bank as trustee. The bulk of Mrs. Henderson's estate was left to found a home for aged couples.

August Brings the Big Rush to Vacation Spots

BY JUDITH CASS.

AUGUST is the nation's most popular vacation month. "The first two weeks . . . the last two weeks" friends tell each other they will be away. Some lucky ones are able to take the whole month away from home and work.

Most men whose wives and families are vacationing for the entire summer at sea or lakeside resorts try to spend August with them. Resorts that are within week-end commuting distance are especially appealing to these families, for then the head of the house can be with his family at least for a day or two each week until vacation time.

Consequently every week-end is gay at Michigan and Wisconsin resorts where Chicago families have summer homes. Intervening days, minus husbands and beaux, the summer colonies settle down to a routine of golf, tennis, swimming, bridge, and the movies.

Elliott Donnelley is the latest to join the ranks of commuting husbands. Mrs. Donnelley and their four children, Myra, Tommy, Ginny and Robert, who was born in March, and their cousin, Billy Cody of Cleveland, who has been visiting the Donnelleys, left yesterday for Bent Camp at Land o' Lakes, Wis. Mr. Donnelley will go north for week-ends.

Mrs. William Burry Jr. left Sunday by train for Desbarats, Ont. Mr. Burry and their sons motored north yesterday. The Solomon B. Smiths will spend the week-end of Aug. 13 with the Burrys. The Adlai E. Stevensons, the Ambrose C. Cramers, and other friends will go up for other week-ends during the summer.

The Keith Carpenters, who own a home jointly with the Burrys at Desbarats, returned to Lake Forest yesterday. The Edison Dicks have just returned from a visit with the Carpenters.

Ronald Boardmans Will Leave Aug. 20.

The Ronald P. Boardmans are leaving Aug. 20 for the Adirondacks, stopping en route to pick up their son, Ronnie, who is at camp at Culver, Ind. From the Adirondacks the trio will go to Martha's Vineyard to visit Mr. Boardman's mother, Mrs. Harry Boardman. From there the Boardmans will go to Newfoundland for fishing. They will be away for three weeks.

Also bound for the Adirondacks are the Waldo Allens, Waldo Jr., and Mary, who will spend three weeks with Mr. Allen's parents, the Hubert Allens, at their camp on Long lake. The younger Allens will leave Aug. 12. During the absence of the Allens the Alexander W. Knotts will occupy the Allen home in Lake Forest.

The A. Watson Armours enjoy week-ending in the north woods. They and their son, Charles, will spend the coming week-end at the Coleman Lake club.

Lawrence Dunlap Smith is leaving Friday to join his wife and their daughter, Anita, who are motoring in California.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus H. Adams are leaving this week for their summer home at Charlevoix to be away until after Labor day. Mrs. Gilbert H. Robinson, who was with her parents, the Francis R. Dickinsons in Charlevoix, has gone to the Seigniory club in Montebello, Que., with her husband. They stopped at the Thousand Islands on the way north to spend a week with Miss Eleanor McNally and her parents, the Andrew McNallys, at their summer home.

Miss Suzanne Morris at Thousand Islands.

Theodore Shaw has gone to Charlevoix to join Arthur Taylor of Cincinnati and cruise for two weeks in Georgian bay on Mr. Taylor's new yacht. Arthur Bendelari, a cousin of Mrs. Shaw, is one of the group on the fishing trip.

Mrs. John J. Borland II. is leaving Friday to join her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Hutchins, at their summer home in Camden, Me. Mr. Borland will join them later.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Stuart Stone and their children are leaving the middle of the month for the wilds of Canada to be away until after Labor day. Trout fishing is their objective.

Miss Denyse Root and a friend, Miss Suzanne Budge, leave Chicago tomorrow to sail on Saturday for the Riviera. They will stay with Miss Root's mother, Mrs. Dudley Root, at her villa on Cap d'Ail.

Miss Root has been spending a few months with her father, John Root, in Chicago. Miss Root's grandmother, Mrs. Peter Dudley, will sail on Aug. 18 for the Riviera.

Kellogg Fairbanks Visiting in East.

Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank are visiting Mr. and Mrs. H. de Forest Lockwood of Boston at the Lockwoods' summer home in North Haven, Me. Mr. Fairbank will return next week, but Mrs. Fairbank will stay in the east for two more weeks.

Miss Eleanor Wetten, who has been at Banff and Lake Louise in Canada, is now vacationing at Glacier Park. Miss Elizabeth Newland of Philadelphia, Pa., who is traveling with Miss Wetten, may return with her to Chicago later this month.

Mrs. Alvin E. Bastien and her two daughters, the Misses Barbara and Nancy Bastien, leave this week for a ranch in Montana. They will be away until the middle of September.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert B. Dick and their daughter and son, Helen and Albert B. III., are taking a three

Spending Summer at Mackinac

The models, both child and adult, will display the same merchandise at a breakfast clinic in the mart this morning, when the women's, children's, and infants' wear and accessories market opens.

One blonde, curly haired model, 2½ years old, walked unsteadily down a runway apparently oblivious of the fancy marine blue snow suit trimmed with real white angora that she wore.

"Whee! There's daddy!" she whooped, and made for an embarrassed man seated at an adjacent luncheon table between fashion experts.

A duet was announced. The new "safety legion" suits for boys and girls would be shown. Judie, another blonde, slightly older, came out alone. She sauntered forth in fine beige corduroy slacks and jacket with an impressive button in her lapel saying she stopped, looked, and listened before crossing streets. She appeared very pleased with her beret and suit, and strode about enjoying the effect she made.

"Dickie," urged the announcer of fashions, "please come out."

"No, I won't!" yelled Dickie from backstage.

After considerably more urging Dickie appeared, belligerent, dressed in a beautiful matching corduroy suit with two safety legion buttons on it. Reluctantly, eyeing the beaming fashion experts with hostility, he advanced. When told he could go back he broke into double quick time.

The older girls made up in poise what the younger models lacked. A glowing brunette wore a black velvet dress with a modified derndl waist, tight and gathered, short puff sleeves and an off-the-shoulder or daguerreotype neckline. The neck was stitched with elastic thread, and remained wherever put. She adjusted it, put in two clips, and it became square.

A copper colored satin dress had an elastic-stitched bodice which extended down to the hips, flaring skirt, and low décolletage.

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

Passing Show

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 1. — Forty miles out from Beverly Hills, on the way to San Francisco, is Hidden Valley, fertile land in the shadow of mountains that burst through faults in the earth centuries ago. In Hidden Valley, if you know where to look, you will find four white horses, distinct from all other horses in this country because on their side is the royal brand of the Austrian Hapsburgs, a crown burned into the flesh. The horses belong to Maria Jeritza, famous wife of famous Winnie Sheehan, and were given to her by the Hapsburgs when she sang at Vienna.

These horses are of the same breed of equine aristocrats that were bred for 500 years to supply mounts for Austrian royalty. They saw service in all of the wars of Europe. Napoleon rode upon one of them. Austria has gone, its glories forgotten. The white horses browse peacefully in Hidden Valley, with the crown of the Hapsburgs on their side, happier than any of the Hapsburgs because a horse does not feed upon memories.

Olvera street, in Los Angeles, has caught and imprisoned the old romance of California. All tourists go there. A white-haired lady, born in Ireland, tells your fortune if you know where to look. She is independently wealthy, and her doll house and curios are worth close to $25,000. She has willed most of the pieces of her collections to famous museums. She likes to tell fortunes on Olvera street, and turns over the money to charity.

Now that Norma Shearer has turned down the rôle of Scarlett O'Hara, who will play it? "Katharine Hepburn or Bette Davis could do it spendidly," said Miss Shearer. Not long ago I talked to Bette Davis about the rôle. "Once upon a time I would have gone to them on my knees and begged for it," said Bette. "Now I'm not so certain." Actresses will tell you that the character of Scarlett, up a certain point, is an acting "natural." Beyond that they say that the character strays away from the line. The answer being, probably, that Margaret Mitchell had to finish her book.

Is Baron von Cramm still alive or was he taken out of his prison cell and liquidated? He's probably still alive, but the tennis players here whisper that he has been killed.

Lucille Ball of Butte, Mont., and Ann Sheridan of Dallas, Tex., photograph most strikingly of the younger crop of actresses who are going places. The Ball girl has the high cheekbones and slender cheekline that are sympathetic to photography. Katharine Hepburn's facial construction is the ideal. Dietrich has the same construction of face. Cameras focus on that type of face and secure an image that is almost startling in its photographic effectiveness. Hepburn's image almost seems to leap out of the screen at you, achieving depth that is almost third dimensional.

Miss Ball, the Montana girl who posed as a commercial model on Broadway, photographs something like Miss Hepburn. . . . You'll see Ann Sheridan in "Letter of Introduction" playing the femme lead opposite Adolphe Menjou. She is supposed to be part Indian. That is entirely believeable, from her screen pictures. When she walks into a scene she stands out. On such things are stars made. Texas girls have something that other sections of the country cannot rival. Perhaps it's the air or the water that accomplishes it. John Robert Powers, who has seen all of the famous beauties of the country for years, as head of an agency that engages girls for all sorts of advertisments, will tell you that the greatest beauties come from Texas.

Claudette Colbert told me something once which is very true. "Very few stars could get a job in the movies if they had to pass the scrutiny of talent scouts. According to movie standards, our faces are all wrong." She's right, too. Their cheeks are too high, their mouths too wide or too narrow, their noses too aquiline or too full. You can't regiment personalities.

Telephone call dept.: "Hello, Ed, this is Paul Muni. There is nothing lower than a book-stealer, if I may coin an indictment." All right, all right, I'll bring the book back to him if he's going to adopt such a narrow attitude.

Park Concerts Offer Another Music Climax

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Chicago has had many opportunities to hear its distinguished son, Albert Spalding, in Orchestra hall. Not until last evening did the world famous violinist ever lug his Guarnerius out to Grant park. He appeared as soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra under Hans Lange, and sent the lake front August off to the brightest kind of a start.

An audience numbered in the tens of thousands filled benches and lawns between the drives. Feeling ran high as the superb singing of the famous fiddle floated evenly out into the windless night. Cries of "More! More!" gave variety to the steady palm pounding with which the more conventional members of the throng vented their enthusiasm.

A summer music season which is turning out to be very rich in climaxes swelled toward another peak last evening when this quiet, military appearing violinist presented the Wilhelmj arrangement for G string of the Bach Air. Even the switch engines, had they ears to hear and hearts to beat, would have hushed their chuffing during these four or five minutes of superlative music making.

Here was a performance which preserved the infinite dignity of the music, yet became personal in high degree. A subtle rubato here, an exciting intensification of tone there —effects like these, applied with a delicate hand, punctuated the movement of the tremendous tune and helped give it that air of immediacy and of huge, fully realized importance that its greatness deserves. Listening one was inclined to wonder how many more profound musical ideas than this have ever flowed from any pen—even Bach's—onto ruled copy paper.

Preceding the Bach Mr. Spalding offered four movements of the Spanish symphony of Lalo but did not reveal the work as much more than a patchwork of sorry, badly worn melodies. There was consolation, however, in the reflection that music of this sort justifies one in isolating effects and studying them for their own sensuous beauty. Such a proceeding would be quite impertinent in cases where such effects do not exist for their own sake but are merely some of the means by which the piece's musical significance is disclosed.

In the Lalo last evening were tonal triumphs which ranged from the broad, darkly tinted solemnity of the symphony's more lyrical passages to the fine, high placed crying of its most gypsyish sequences. In Mr. Spalding's final scheduled offering came one of the season's nicest rhythmic effects, when the Rondo Capriccioso of Saint-Saëns got off to such a confident, debonair start.

The Chicago Symphony orchestra, playing the first of its eight Grant park engagements of the year, began a Beethoven cycle in whose course all of the Beethoven symphonies except the ninth will come to performance. Although the series will not be strictly chronological, it began conventionally enough with the first.

Other purely orchestral offerings were the overture to "Der Freischütz" [Weber], Liadow's "Enchanted Lake" and "Baba Yaga," the St. Anne's Fugue of Bach in Frederick Stock's transcription, and Chabrier's Spanish Rhapsody.

Last night's printed program carried announcement of the Aug. 8 appearance at the band shell of Moriz Rosenthal, Polish pianist, whose career has extended from the days of Liszt to the present time.

One of the simplest pick-up treatments for the tired woman whose complexion needs toning is the use of an "ice lotion," cool and fragrant, that stimulates and refreshes.

In our list of summer "old faithfuls" a preparation known as "ice lotion" stands very high. It is, for some skins, the simplest kind of a pickup to be used in a quick home treatment.

Here is an excellent bracer treatment when you must freshen up in rather a hurry: Give your face and neck a thorough cleansing with cleansing cream. Remove this and apply your ice lotion with a pad of cotton moistened in cold water. Slap it on rather briskly. Your skin will be stimulated and will look so much prettier and fresher you'll feel like a girl again. It really enlivens dull skins.

Naturally, as with all stimulating preparations, you have to feel your way a bit because skins react differently. Unless the skin is strong and inclined to be oily, don't use it full strength. If it's just normal, wet the pad with water and put on a generous amount of the ice lotion. If it is very sensitive, use plenty of cold water on the pad and cut down on the amount of the stimulant.

People with oily skin will be particularly fond of this; the astringent quality of it will retard the flow of excess oil. And since oily skin is inclined to look drab, this serves a double purpose by toning it up quickly.

The use of this constitutes one of the simplest refreshing treatments we have ever discovered. We've seen tired business women use this before leaving the office and go out the door transformed! ELEANOR NANGLE.

Good Morning!

"The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse"! Catchy title, isn't it?

Catchy picture, too. Tells an odd and interesting story about a doctor of repute who becomes a thief among thieves in order that he may learn what makes a criminal mind tick, the effect of crime practice upon the anatomy of the practicer, and, his research completed, write a book on his findings.

Ingenuously winning the confidence of a gang of jewel thieves, the good doctor gets along swimmingly for awhile. He has a keen mind that enables him always to keep one lap ahead of his associates. The fact that one of his best friends is a police inspector gives him a valuable "in."

But, crime doesn't pay, even when the criminal sins with good intentions, and Dr. Clitterhouse finds that he has woven a tangled web in which he himself is almost inextricably enmeshed.

The tale is a deftly knit affair and Edward G. Robinson portrays Clitterhouse with zest and a captivating suggestion of tongue-in-cheek—which was the only way to handle the rôle. Lovely Claire Trevor—looking awfully thin—plays a desperate lady crook exactly as she should. Gale Page is lovely as the doctor's efficient nurse assistant. Humphrey Bogart is a snarling and scary head crook, Donald Crisp is excellent as Inspector Lane and the rest of the cast is up and coming.

Smart direction and fitting dialog help along.

See you tomorrow.

SYNOPSIS.

On board the S. S. Panama Queen, sailing from Los Angeles to New York, via Panama, are Anne Sydney, who has a part in a Broadway play, and her crippled and embittered sister, Mena; Arnold Vernon, elderly, rich, English motion picture producer, and his coldly beautiful wife, Claire; Isobel Butler, who has a stateroom next to the Vernon suite, and hopes to get in pictures through him; and Alex Reed, young surgeon returning to work after two years' illness. Isobel meets and arouses Vernon's interest. Anne and Alex are mutually attracted. Mena spitefully tells Alex that Anne is a heartless flirt. Pride causes Anne to hold herself aloof from him. Dr. Neil Andrews, a friend of Alex's, joins the ship in Mexico. He wants to get married and thinks Anne meets his ideals. Isobel and Arnold Vernon fall in love. He tries to buy his freedom from Claire. When she refuses he threatens to make a new will disinheriting her. The ship fights through a terrific hurricane. Isobel finds Vernon in her cabin, unconscious, hit by a storm tossed trunk. She sends Claire to him and struggles to find a doctor. Claire takes a loaded pistol, wrapped in a towel, from the purser's suite and shoots her husband, leaving the weapon in Isobel's wardrobe. She then tells Alex she found her husband wounded in Isobel's cabin. Flagg, the purser, reveals that the day before Vernon had made a new will leaving everything to Isobel. Alex operates on Vernon. The captain starts an inquiry. The stewardess reports that she found a towel of the purser's in Claire's room and that Claire had given her an emerald ring to keep silent. Claire charges the stewardess stole the ring. Anne agrees to give Neil an answer to his proposal in a month. Neil tells Alex that he and Anne are secretly engaged. A color photograph Anne took of Claire proves Claire had the emerald ring after the date she said it was missing. Claire insinuates she has other emerald rings.

INSTALMENT XXXVIII.

A FIGHTING CHANCE.

The captain let Claire go—baffled and on the verge of using strong language to a lady.

"Yon's the kind of vixen turns men into wife-beaters," he remarked, as the chart room door closed after her.

"I agree," said Flagg, "but don't you think, sir, you ought to have her under guard? Now she knows about this evidence I mean. If it hits the right spot, she might be up to something—"

The captain laughed derisively. "She wouldn't step off into the cold wet sea, me lad. She isn't the type."

"Maybe you're right. But suppose she did?"

The captain glared at Flagg from under his bushy brows. "Well, she won't do that unless she's the guilty one—which I know she isn't. If she were she wouldn't have the nerve to hand me all that sauce. She knows she's on the right side—that's why she's refusing to talk. I know human nature, me boy—I never made a mistake."

THE FOURTEENTH DAY.

Arnold Vernon was still alive. His survival was due to Alex's skill in the first place, and even more afterwards to his dogged determination not to let his patient slip away.

It was in the small hours of the Sunday morning before arrival in port that Vernon regained complete consciousness. He opened eyes clear with reason on the small white isolation ward to see Alex sitting beside him.

"Well, here I am," he said faintly.

"Fine," said Alex, tingling with the joy of conquest, "and here you stay."

"I'm not so sure about that part," responded Vernon almost inaudibly—and a look of bleak disillusionment and misery as memory returned to him wiped the wavering smile from his face.

Alex remembered Isobel's anguish as if her husky voice spoke in his ears. He said—"but you're going to be. I have a message for you from a woman who loves you."

"Don't tell it to me. I can't stand any more hypocrisy——"

"You can stand this. It isn't from your wife. Isobel said I was to say—'don't run out on me. I need you.'"

Vernon turned his head slightly to search the surgeon's eyes. "She said that? I need you. Is that true?"

"On my honor. And she meant it. She nearly went out of her mind kidding herself you were going to die."

Alex saw a change take place in Vernon's face—an intangible movement in the muscles as if he were gathering his forces. His voice was no louder when he spoke, but there was decision in it.

"Very well, I'll stay," he said.

"O splendid! Won't that message gladden her heart."

Alex lifted the limp wasted wrist and laid his finger on the pulse. Already it was perceptibly stronger with the magic power of the will.

Alex met Flagg outside the doctor's office on his way there to make a report. "Good news, I see," said the purser.

"It's Mr. Vernon. He's in his right mind and determined to put up a fight. You can often pull off a miracle if the patient is on your side."

"That's swell news. Do you mind if I go along and tell the captain? He's been fretting about it so badly I'd like to hurry with the news."

When Claire left the chart room she went immediately to her suite, shut herself in and turned the slip bolt against intrusion.

She was found out—she was found out. And by such a foolish—stupid—imbecile mistake of her own. Why had she given the woman that one ring when she had so many others?

Claire crossed the floor with legs that sagged under her and collapsed on the divan. Think—think, she must think. Well, she hadn't committed herself, she hadn't betrayed her frightful internal confusion. That mental preparation for shocks and hazards had worked—when confronted with the unanswerable—say nothing. But she had said something. What was it? What was it?

She had to reconstruct her visit to the chart room from the time the deck steward found her before she could remember. Ah yes—there's a ring. And how do you know how many emerald rings I have? So simple—all she had to do to confuse them in turn was to produce another emerald ring and wear it.

But she did not have another one. There was the black fire opal rimmed with rubies, the star sapphire, the round pearl, the diamond cluster, the oblong ruby, and the big square diamond.

The only other emerald she had was the one in the big triangular clip. Hopeless! She couldn't make that look like a ring—certainly not like the simple single stone ring in the photograph. Damn that officious girl and her imbecile photography!

Claire got up, went into the bedroom, unlocked her wardrobe trunk and took out her jewel case as if handling the things and looking at them would help her to a solution. It did.

She noticed something she had never noticed before. The ruby in the ring and the emerald in the clip were exactly the same shape and size. Why if she got the emerald out, she could fix it in the place of the ruby. Feverishly excited she set to work with the points of her manicure scissors on the platinum claws.

It was not easy. The claws were hard and strong, fragile and insecure as they looked. The scissors slipped and once she tore a finger tip, once thrust them under a nail But she worked on oblivious of pain.

Finally both stones were out. Getting the emerald into the setting of the ring was even less easy. As fast as she fixed it in place ready to bend the claws in on it with her inadequate manicure implements, it fiendishly slipped out again. Of course, she was eager—too excited.

She put her head down on the dressing table at which she sat and burst into exasperated weeping. After a little while she was calm and her hands were steadier. Finally she accomplished it. She slipped the ring on her finger with exultation. She had counted on this so much, this wonderful idea, that it was as if it were the answer to everything and she was free from suspicion again.

Now that she was wearing an emerald ring—in her churning mind, the emerald ring, what was the next thing to be done? She stood in the middle of the quiet drawing room. Loneliness—silence. She would stroll around the decks wearing the ring, sit in her chair and read her book.

But the sudden plunge of her heart told her she could not. If Mr. Flagg knew, other of the officers knew. If they knew some of the passengers knew. If some of the passengers—soon they would all know.

If she went up there in the free windy blue air, whispers would follow her—looks—she would feel the scorn of those inferior people and have no weapon of pride against them—she would feel their hostile eyes like arrows in her back.

Mah-Jongg Is Staging Comeback with Rules to Speed Up the Game

Mah-jongg is back—streamlined.

A fast paced version of the ancient and leisurely Chinese game is reported to be making rapid headway. Even contract addicts are said to waver.

Three weeks ago an Illinois branch of the National Mah-jongg league was organized. More than 200 already have enrolled and officers expect to have 1,000 members within another month.

A luncheon to speed the cause will be given tomorrow at the Chicago Beach hotel, with every one interested invited. Mrs. Viola Cecil of New York, who founded the National Mah-jongg league, will speak.

"The new mah-jongg's really exciting—in fact, when we return to contract, it seems slow," commented Mrs. Mortimer E. Stern, 1157 East 52d street. She is president of the league's Illinois branch. New and more intricate hands, with "flowers" wild, make this version a game of skill and initiative, she explained.

A tablecloth of Irish made spun rayon, perfected after a year's experiment by weavers, is among the exhibits from 18 countries. Several hundred buyers registered yesterday, the opening day.

WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER: One Never Knows

Laugh Often with Children; They Love It

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

She's one of a big family—grown up now, and on her own. One of the things she likes to tell me about is the fun they all used to have with their mother.

"We'd go on picnics—just we children and mother. She was just like one of us, full of fun and jokes and laughing. We'd all go in the brook and we'd make fires and come home at night so tired, but so happy."

"You boys all liked Mr. Stevenson in the eighth grade, didn't you?" said a father one day when he and his son were reminiscing.

"Yes, he was our favorite, I guess," replied the boy. "He had such a swell sense of humor. Even when he had to call us down hard, he'd do it in a kind of 'ribbing' way—not cutting but funny. You'd even laugh at yourself. We did an awful lot of laughing in that class, but we learned a lot, too."

Children simply adore to laugh—children of any and every age. We, who are their parents, don't laugh half enough. Sometimes it's because we're so troubled we don't feel like it, but most of the time it's because we've just let ourselves lose the magic of laughter. And we shouldn't. It's a wonderful thing—just for yourself—to laugh. But it's even more wonderful for children to have parents who laugh with them.

And don't you love to hear them laugh, whether it's the utterly musical, carefree laughter of a little child, the merry noisy chortling of a 10 year old, or the great, deep, shouting laughter of an 18 year old? Children love so to laugh that they laugh at nothing, or make excuses to laugh.

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Aug. 1.—George Bernard Shaw's new play, "Geneva," which opened the tenth annual Malvern theater festival tonight, is a riotous criticism of the methods of Geneva.

The satire, which flashes about the European scene with all the old Shavian brilliance, points out the salient inconsistencies of the league of nations politics.

"Man is a failure as a political animal," says Shaw. "His efforts to reach international agreement by means of discussion make a comedy of face saving."

His English foreign secretary regards thinking as a habit peculiarly un-English. The lovelorn and irresponsible Begonia Brown, in sole charge of the intellectual coöperation committee, sets in motion league machinery which results in a great international trial. In an extremely long last act dictators address the judge.

Is Suspicious Girl a Good Marriage Bet?

BY DORIS BLAKE.

For the past three years Jenny has been going out with a man 37 years old. She is planning to marry him in two months, but——

"The other day I found a letter in a book he loaned me. It was from another girl. In it she thanked him for the lovely time he had given her four months previously, and reminded him of his promise to visit her in Philadelphia some week-end.

"When I handed him the letter, he asked What else did you find? His explanation was that he knew the girl before he took her out. When she came to town, she telephoned him. Not wanting to tell her over the telephone he was no longer interested he took her out to explain.

"His remark 'What else did you find,' and his promise to visit her some week-end made me wonder whether he hadn't been cheating these three years. His attitude toward me is very devoted, but how can a man be in love with one woman and go out with another? I am wondering whether he is the right man for me. How can I be sure that any time an old flame calls him up he won't take her out to explain that his time now is thoroughly occupied?

"JENNY."

Jenny's fiancé may be the right or wrong man for her, but it is a question whether a suspicious, prying fiancée will make a good wife for any one. Reading other people's letters is cheating and dishonorable, too.

A jealous wife or sweetheart who holds her man with a tight rein may drive him to infidelity. The wife who trusts her husband takes half the kick out of a flirtation. He no longer has the thrill of a secret escapade.

Jenny's fiancé was guilty of chivalry in letting down an old flame easily, and chivalry isn't such a bad quality in a husband. It is up to her to match it by believing whole heartedly in his devotion and sincerity. People have a way of living up to what we expect of them.

Concert at Commons.

The National Youth administration orchestra, Herbert F. Pyne directing, will give a concert tonight at Chicago commons, 955 Grand avenue. The program starts at 8 o'clock and is open free to the public.

The Housewife

If you spend a lot of time on the beach or just under a tree in your own back yard you'll want to get several of the pillows we saw the other day. They are square in shape and have handles of the material on the sides, so you can carry them about. They are rainproof and do not fade easily, being covered in a heavy lackered fabric. You'll like the green ones and the bright red and blue ones. And they are not expensive.

Cabbage Joins Ground Meat in Good Duet

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Ground meat means economy in cooking. Many of our favorite ground meat concoctions have a slightly foreign flavor and certainly are none the less good for that.

Our way of cooking cabbage isn't consistent with the manner in which this vegetable is treated in Scandinavian cabbage and ground meat combinations, for a long cooking period for cabbage violates all our rules of speed in cabbage cookery. But meat requires time to tenderize and, if cabbage is to form its casing, as it does in these two recipes, then cabbage must be overcooked. This overcooking isn't objectionable when it's done "a-purpose." No one can deny that stuffed cabbage and cabbage rolls are very good indeed.

Norwegian Stuffed Cabbage.

[Serves Six.]

1 medium head cabbage
1½ pounds ground beef
½ pound ground fresh pork
1 onion, chopped
1 cup dry bread or cracker crums
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 eggs, beaten

Slice the top from the cabbage and, using a sharp knife, cut out the center. Combine beef, pork, onion, crackers, and seasonings with beaten eggs, and pack into the hollowed cabbage. Place the top piece on as a cover, and tie in place with string. Wrap the cabbage head in cheesecloth or a clean dish towel, tying the ends of the cloth together. Cover the head with boiling water and allow to simmer until the meat is done, approximately an hour. To serve, remove cabbage from cloth and take off string. Cut into slices, and serve with white sauce as gravy. The white sauce may be seasoned with a little catsup or chili sauce if desired.

A Swedish variation of this same cooking theme, cabbage and ground meat, is baked instead of simmered. Swedish cabbage rolls include rice and tomatoes in their makeup.

Swedish Cabbage Rolls.

[Serves Four.]

1 pound ground beef
½ cup cooked rice
1 small onion, chopped
1¼ teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 large tomatoes or 1 cup canned tomatoes
8 large leaves of cabbage

Combine ground beef, rice, onion, and seasonings. Soak the cabbage leaves in hot water for a few minutes to take some of the crispness out of them. Place a heaping teaspoonful of the meat mixture on each leaf, and roll. Place the rolls in a baking pan and place over them the sliced fresh tomatoes or canned ones. Bake for an hour in a moderate oven, 350 degrees. Serve with a plain white sauce.

Another inexpensive meat dish with a foreign flavor is the ever popular Mexican chili con carne. This one isn't overspiced, as so many chilis are.

Chili con Carne.

[Serves Six.]

1½ pounds ground beef
1 tablespoon fat
1 onion, chopped
1 clove garlic [optional]
1 tablespoon flour
1 pound chili beans or 1 can kidney beans
2 cups canned tomatoes
2 teaspoons salt [test amount by taste]
¼ teaspoon chili powder

To prepare the chili beans, soak them overnight, cover with water, add a pinch of soda, and cook until tender, about three hours. Brown the meat in the fat and add chopped onion and garlic. Sprinkle with flour and stir until blended. Add beans, tomatoes, and seasonings. Cook until the flavors are blended, about thirty minutes. Garlic may be removed after five or ten minutes if only a suggestion of its flavor is wanted.

All kinds of sandwiches, from picnic to party, have been compiled in Mary Meade's booklet "The New Sandwich Maker." The booklet will be mailed for 5 cents in stamps or may be picked up for 3 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower. Address mail requests to Mary Meade.

Write to Sally Now for Place at Film Party

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Tribune Charities, Inc.]

Like music and singing and tapdancing, kids? Do you think Shirley Temple is about the best star on the screen? Does Jimmy Durante's nose make you laugh? If the answer to these questions is "Yes," you'd better see if you can win an invitation to come with me to enjoy "Little Miss Broadway" on Aug. 11.

Fifty boys and fifty girls will see this gay new musical film at the Roosevelt theater one week from Thursday.

Any boy or girl who thinks this party is just right may try for an invitation. It's very easy to do—all your letter must do is convince me that you'd really enjoy a treat like this.

You must remember when writing that I want to hear what you think about the party—not what your mother or big brother writes for you. Each child must send in his own request, and you may not ask for invitations for friends. Be sure to tell me who you are and where you live. If you forget any one of these items you won't see your name in the list of winners which will be printed in next SUNDAY'S TRIBUNE.

All letters must be in not later than next Thursday morning, because final selections will be made on that day. The address is Sally Joy Brown, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

For Vacationing Housewives

WOMAN'S AND MISS' HOME FROCK.

This is the month of all months for vacationing. Families are moving en masse to their country houses, which means that the homemaker must be equipped with a wide variety of simple and washable frocks to keep her comfortable and smart at all times, particularly when she is deluged with week-ending friends from the city. The pattern we're offering today is a wrap-around model with immense chic. It has a V neckline on which there is a wide, notched lapel collar. A pocket adorns the skirt and buttons fasten the dress at the side of the skirt, also adding their own share of smartness. Sleeves may be either long or short.

All types of the inexpensive cottons make up well in this dress for country or city home life. The collar may be bound in a contrasting color or be dressed up with a bit of embroidery. There is a lovely pattern for this stitching, No. E-757, available for 10 cents extra.

This simple frock is one even the tyro dressmaker can make in no time at all.

Style No. 2110 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material, with five-eighths yard of 35 inch contrasting and 2¾ yards of binding.

CLOTILDE PATTERNS ARE 10 CENTS EACH

Swartz-Moody Nuptials Today.

The wedding of Mrs. Jane Ross Swartz and William Leroy Moody will take place at 4 o'clock today at the home of Mrs. Swartz's father, Alexander Mackenzie Ross. The Rev. Thomas Anderson will officiate. Just the members of the family will witness the ceremony and a few friends have been invited to the reception at 5 o'clock.

Mr. Moody and his bride will go to Bermuda to spend two weeks and upon their return they will be at home in Libertyville where they have taken Mrs. Sarah Given Waller's house.

Miss Emily Ross will be her sister's only attendant. J. O. Bengston will be best man.

Mrs. Morris L. Greeley Jr. and her son, who was born on July 15 at the Evanston hospital, have returned to their home in Winnetka. The baby, who has been named William Richardson for Mrs. Greeley's father, has a sister and a brother, Sally Ann and Morris III.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Day Penfield [Henrietta Calkins] became the parents of their first son on Sunday at the Evanston hospital. The baby, who will be named for his father, has two sisters, Ann 4, and Nancy Day, 2½.

On view this week at the Little Traveler in Geneva are minatures collected by youngsters. Barbara Dole, daughter of the John L. Doles, is showing her collection of miniature slippers. Sally Bang's collection of miniature animals and Billy Pope's De Witt Clinton engine also are on display.

Wrinkles Thrive in a Tensed Face, So Please Look Serene!

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Here's an anti-wrinkle treatment you can use twenty-four hours a day, or at least during all the hours you are awake. It is easy and distinctly pleasant. Simply—relax your face.

You may have noticed how people on cruises seem to look much younger. It is easily explained. With miles of ocean between themselves and their cares and worries, they relax, and their lines and wrinkles seem to fade. Tension deepens creases without curing your problems.

Even if you are a mother with small, overactive children, a serene expression will make you less nervous. Whether you are on a boat or not, you can deliberately keep your face calm.

Half the battle against wrinkles is won if you don't keep emphasizing them. A tight mouth makes that grim line from nose to cheek. Unless you relax it may travel down under your chin.

If the midsummer sun is forcing you to squint, by all means wear a pair of dark glasses and relax. It often is short-sightedness rather than an ugly disposition that brings that scowl between the brows. Again put on your spectacles and save yourself strain.

If you catch yourself worrying, iron out the frown between your eyes. Relax and your woes will seem lighter.

Suppose you do give ten minutes a day to facial exercises. Maybe you're faithful in massaging those crow's feet fifteen minutes every day. Twice a week you don a face mask. All well and good.

But reckon it up for yourself. What good does it do to devote even an hour a day to fighting wrinkles with beauty treatments if the other sixteen hours you keep your face taut and deepen lines and add more?

Relax your face! Look serene! According to scientists, putting on an expression of happiness will make you feel happier.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.]

It usually is a mixed blessing when the declarer finds the outstanding cards of an important suit [trumps, for instance] banked against him in one defender's hand. He may curse the fate that divided them so unequally but, at the same time, he should reflect that it is something to know where they are! Once located, they often can be gently extracted, despite the best efforts of their owner. Note today's hand:

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 diamond	Pass	1 spade	Pass
2 diamonds	Pass	Pass	2 spades
3 diamonds	3 hearts	Double	Pass
Pass	3 spades	Double	Pass
Pass	Pass

North's part in this bidding sequence hardly could be called consistent. Fearing annihilation, he had restrained himself from overcalling the one diamond opening bid with one heart, and the two diamond bid with two hearts. Obviously, North was the type of player who leaves it to partner to initiate defensive bidding. Only after South, rebelling against the opponents' going game with a miserable two diamond contract, ventured to bid two-odd in a suit already bid by an opponent, did North become suddenly brave and mention his four card heart suit. His courage waned rapidly, however, when he heard East's double, and he hastily ran to spades, just as though he had splendid support for that suit.

West cashed the king and ace of diamonds, then shifted to the ace and another club. East won and played a third round. Declarer carefully ruffed with the eight spot and led a low heart to dummy, then led the spade seven through East, who covered with the jack. Declarer won with the queen, then reëntered dummy with a heart, to lead the spade six. The importance of declarer's having retained the five spot now becomes clear. If declarer's lowest trump at this point had been the eight, he would have had to overtake. Then his last heart would have been necessary as an entry to dummy and, with three tricks to go, declarer would have had the A 10 9 of trumps to East's K 4. On the next lead from dummy, East would merely discard a heart, since declarer would be forced to ruff. Then, concession would have to be made to East's trump king.

When dummy's six of trumps, however, could hold the lead, declarer getting under it with the five spot, it was quite a different story. Now declarer led a club [East discarding a heart] and deliberately shortened his own trump holding to equal East's by ruffing. Then, with only one heart and the A 10 of spades left, declarer led the heart to dummy. East had to follow and, on a club or heart lead from dummy, the K 4 of trumps was neatly trapped in front of the A 10.

By correct play, declarer had kept East from making a trump trick, and thus had fulfilled his doubled contract.

5 KILLED AS AUTO RUNS INTO TRAIN; WEEDS BLAMED

Indiana Crash Disables Broadway Limited.

Five persons were killed yesterday when their car collided with the Pennsylvania railroad's streamlined Broadway Limited on the eastern outskirts of Gary. None of the train passengers was injured, but the locomotive was so badly disabled that it was necessary to transfer the passengers to the Liberty Limited for the remainder of the trip to Chicago.

One of the victims was a Chicagoan, Miss Louise Kuntze, 40 years old, 4445 Maypole avenue. The others killed were Werner H. Boevers, 42, office manager for the American Can company in Cleveland, O.; his wife, Clara, who was Miss Kuntze's sister; the Boevers' daughter, June, 18, and a friend of the family, Mrs. Alice Wrede of Cleveland, who had come here to visit her husband, Albert, a patient in the Edward Hines Jr. hospital.

Auto Hits Side of Train.

Deputy Coroner Lowell Dupes of Lake county said he believed the automobile ran into the side of the locomotive. The crossing, on United States nighway 6, is somewhat obscured by trees and weeds, he said, but the flasher signals were working.

The Boevers family had been visiting Boevers' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Boevers of 211 South Fifth avenue, Maywood. The Cleveland man was a brother of H. G. Boevers, plant manager for the American Can company in Maywood.

John De Motto, the father of ten children, was fatally injured yesterday when struck by an automobile as he stepped from a street car at Halsted and Kinzie streets. De Motto, who was 65 years old, died in the County hospital. He lived at 758 Taylor street. The automobile was driven by Henry Kruse, 21 years old, of 5717 South Francisco avenue.

Hit-Run Victim Dies.

The supposed victim of a hit and run driver, Emil Zager died yesterday in the Little Company of Mary hospital. Zager, who was 45 years old, was found unconscious Sunday near his home at Troy and 87th street, Evergreen Park.

Frederick D. Breit Jr., 28 years old, was in a critical condition yesterday at Hillsboro, O., of injuries suffered in an automobile accident. Young Breit has been studying for the priesthood in St. Joseph's Dominican priory at Somerset, O. His father is president of the North Counties Hydro Electric company. The family home is at 1030 Ridge avenue, Evanston.

Nine Chicagoans Hurt.

Nine Chicagoans were injured, two seriously, in a collision early yesterday at the intersection of U. S. highways 12 and 212, near Michigan City, Ind. They were Mr. and Mrs. Emil Marmall; Neal, 5 years old, their son; George Finnerman, Abe Conwisher, Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Hildebrandt, Mrs. Mary Cagwin and her son, William. Their addresses were not learned. The nine were in two cars. The drivers were Finnerman and Hildebrandt. The crash was caused by a third motorist, who escaped. Mrs. Marmall and her son are not expected to live.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday, 478 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 368 were killed in Chicago, where 10,952 were injured in the same period.

DEFENDS DRIVER'S RELEASE

Judge Stephen Adamowski of the Safety court started an investigation yesterday to learn why more serious charges were not placed against Richard Calhoun when he was first arrested June 13. Calhoun's car fatally injured a man, 71 years old, last Friday night.

At the time of his first arrest, Calhoun, 21 years old, a Negro living at 2231 Lake street, was charged with reckless driving and failure to have city and state vehicle licenses. He was fined $100 on the first charge.

This would have sent him to the Bridewell for 200 days had he not paid the fine. On July 26 Judge Adamowski vacated the fine, and dismissed the other charges, when Calhoun assured the court he had disposed of his car.

After the last arrest the original arresting policeman said he had chased Calhoun through eight stop signs on June 13. Judge Adamowski said the court record disclosed that the policeman did not mention this but said merely that there was a chase through alleys.

The policeman said that a test showed Calhoun's car could not stop in less than 42 feet at 20 miles an hour. Calhoun will be arraigen today in the Felony court on charges of manslaughter, reckless driving, leaving the scene of an accident, and failure to have license plates. An inquest into the death of his victim, William Blie, 1818 Washington boulevard, was continued indefinitly.

Three other motorists were sent to jail and two were fined. All lost their driving privileges for varying periods.

Edward Kendzierski, 3036 Greenview avenue, was sentenced to 30 days in the Bridewell, and William Hale, colored, 3030 Prairie avenue, to 10 days on charges of leaving the scene of an accident. Horace Ridley, colored, 9521 South La Salle street, was sentenced to 10 days for drunken driving.

Those fined were John Davis, 433 Maple avenue, Wilmette, $10, and Charles Wikstrom, 33, 1115 Schubert avenue, $50. Each was charged with reckless driving.

WORK IS STARTED ON TRANSIT UNITY IN NEW ORDINANCE

Several Principles Agreed To at First Meeting.

BY WILLIAM BROMAGE.

Negotiations between city officials and traction company representatives for a unification ordinance began yesterday. All parties agreed to several principles on which the new franchise will be based.

Company officials met with the city council's committee on local transportation. Ald. James R. Quinn [50th], chairman of the committee, said the group will meet at least four days a week until the draft is completed.

A new ordinance, it was agreed yesterday, must provide for unification of the surface lines, elevated railways, and bus company under one management. There must be a system of universal transfers.

Other Agreements.

Other agreements provide for:

1. Local regulation under a new city transit commission.
2. Modernization and extension of facilities.
3. The right of the city to compensation for use of public property.
4. A reasonable valuation and reasonable fares.
5. Coördination of facilities with suburban railroad lines.
6. An option to the city to purchase the properties.

Shaw Report Being Used.

Ald. Quinn said the group is using a recent report of Walter A. Shaw, federal court traction adviser, to outline provisions of an ordinance. The points agreed on yesterday were taken from that report.

One important question to be taken up soon, he said, is the extent to which the city may aid in financing improvement of the elevated through the city traction fund. Another is whether compensation should be used only for traction purposes or go to the city's corporate fund.

The committee plans to finish its work within five or six weeks, Ald. Quinn added. It is Mayor Kelly's hope that it can be completed in time to submit the ordinance to a referendum at the November election.

1938 City Vehicle License Collections Show Gain

Collections from the sale of 1938 vehicle licenses in Chicago are running ahead of last year, City Collector Louis Rixmann said yesterday. In the first seven months $5,022,619 was collected, compared to $4,981,316 in the corresponding period last year. The revenue for all of 1937 was $5,086,639.

BIT OF CLOTH ON AUTO FENDER TRAPS SUSPECT IN TWO HIT-RUN CASES

On Sunday night Donald McKenna, 35, 1513 North Washtenaw avenue, was struck and seriously injured at North avenue and Pulaski road by a motorist who sped on without stopping.

Two other motorists jotted down the speeder's license number when he outdistanced them in a chase. At Pulaski road and Armitage avenue the fleeing motorist struck Abner Hansen, 34, 1953 North Keystone avenue. Hansen, who was slightly injured, also obtained the license number.

The number coincided in each case, and it was traced by police to James Willis, 34, 5810 North Maplewood avenue, a coal salesman. Willis, when arrested at home, denied that he had been driving Sunday night.

Police found a strip of cloth wedged deeply in a crack in a fender of his car. The bit of cloth matched McKenna's trousers. It was sent to a laboratory for chemical analysis and Willis was arrested.

SUBWAY BOARD POST ACCEPTED BY BRINCKERHOFF

New York, Aug. 1.—[Speical.]—Henry Brinckerhoff, one of four engineers named to study the Chicago subway plan, said today he had accepted the appointment. Brinckerhoff is awaiting word from Washington on the date of the first meeting of the board. The other members appointed by Harold L. Ickes, Public Works administrator, are Robert Ridgway, Col. Henry M. Waite, and Joshua D. Esposito. Each has had Chicago engineering experience.

On the outcome of their study, according to Ickes, depends whether Chicago will receive a PWA grant of $14,328,000.

HISTORY THROBS UNDER THE OAKS OF HARMS PARK

Old Settlers Meet for 64th Annual Picnic.

BY MARCIA WINN.

History throbbed and stirred under the great oaks of Harms park yesterday at the sixth-fourth annual Old Settlers' picnic.

Here, 1,000 strong, had gathered the last of those who were young at the start of Chicago's tumultuous history. All had had a part, unspectacular perhaps, in that history. Most of them came to talk of it—and of days gone by.

Mrs. Theresa Pfohl of 8205 South Hermitage avenue, for instance, has forty-two descendants. For that she received a medal. Jacob Bodenschatz of 4148 North Hermitage has worked for the same company fifty-seven years, and William Opal, who came to Chicago in '64, has lived at 736 Fair place for seventy-four years. They, too, got medals.

And Still More Medals.

And so it went. A medal to Peter Geogren, 5328 Argyle street, who was born here 90 years ago Sept. 1. A medal to Mrs. Sarah Donahue, 4741 North Kenneth avenue, who moved to Chicago from Wisconsin in 1850. These were the oldest settlers.

Erect, proud old men, and gay, sprightly little women, formal in white cotton gloves, came to dance the schottische, the polka, and the old waltz. Others came to drink beer and sing to the merry strains of an accordion. Others came to look for the friends of their youth and to sit in the sun and reminisce.

"It's strange," explained W. J. Palmer, 8942 Exchange avenue, pensioned steel blower who came to Chicago in 1857, "but it's not the exciting things you remember. It's the quiet little things.

"The fire of '71. It started just a half block away from our house and we were burned out. But what I remember was a sixteen foot board an inch thick all ablaze in the air——"

"And the birds," interrupted his little wife, Catherine, born here in 1861. "The birds came down like this——" whirling her hands toward the ground. "Whenever I see birds now I think of it—whirling, whirling."

Some Beautiful Sights.

Thus with all, a host of little memories. One settler, brown eyes shining, remembered what beautiful sights the new city hall and water works were. Another, a tiny, demure little figure in gray gingham, recalled her first opera, "The Forty Thieves," in 1868. A vigorous, spry man of 95 sighed for the horse cars. Mrs. Anna M. Enders, 121 East 71st street, who is 93, said slowly, after long meditation: "I remember when the cholery was here in '54. All in a week four of us died."

But Dennis C. Hart, who is 82, had the most surprising memory of all, for Mr. Hart remembered how, when he was steward of the fashionable old Calmet club at 20th street and Michigan avenue, he served the Old Settlers back in 1886.

"I thought maybe I'd find some of them still here today," he said wistfully. "It's strange, though, for now I see I'm an old settler, too."

LAYDEN MOVES INTO LEAD IN COACHES' POLL

GREY STREAK WINS HANDICAP AT HOMEWOOD

Fan Picks Six; Just Misses Prize.

BY FRENCH LANE.

More than 10,000 turf fans journeyed to Washington Park race course for the opening of the 1938 meeting yesterday afternoon looking for the pot of gold at the end of the $30,000 handicapping rainbow.

Not one of them found it, so the $1,000 prize at stake for the person who could pick the winners of the first seven races will be added to the thousand to be offered today, thus boosting the purse for today to $2,000. One person who remained eligible for the prize when the seventh race started trudged sadly out of the track after the last race had been run.

Robert Has a Headache.

The holder of the promising ticket was Robert Sampson of Wilmington, Ill. He had picked Weisenheimer to win the first race, Aba in the second, Boston Sound in the third, The Shingler in the fourth, Grey Streak in the fifth, and Stepahead in the sixth, and all had delivered for him.

The selection he made in the seventh race was Wild West. During the early stages Wild West ran second in a good contending position and he challenged on the lower bend but the threat was of short duration.

Fans Rush to Track.

It was the liveliest season's opening the Washington Park Jocky club ever has enjoyed and the handicapping contest no doubt had much to do with it.

The amateur handicappers' selections were dropped into large red boxes. At times fans stood in line anxiously waiting to cast their "ballots." Desks lined the inside of the clubhouse and grandstand sections so the customers could mark down their selections.

More than 1,000 selectors still were in the running after two heavily backed favorites won the first two races. Hundreds dropped out when the longshot Boston Sound beat the favorite Que Gato in the third race.

Going into the sixth race six of the customers still were in the running. Stepahead, the favorite, won that number. Five of the six eligible to the prize were eliminated when he won by a nose over Spanish Babe.

Grey Streak Wins.

The Steger handicap, opening day headliner, went to Grey Streak, a grey son of Pompey. He raced to a hard earned victory under the colors of Mrs. A. M. Creech, finding the slow track very much to his liking.

Throughout Grey Streak ran closely lapped on the speedy Silverette. Grey Streak moved to the front at the top of the stretch, but as he gayly took the lead Silverette started a new rally.

This leading pair was traveling along some four lengths in front of all the others as they thundered down the stretch inches apart. That old theory of "make 'em stop by looking 'em in the eye" failed completely in this instance. Grey Streak looked Silverette in the eye several times, but she did not stop. At the finish line they still were fighting it out.

Victor Pays $16.80.

Grey Streak paid $16.80 for a $2 ticket. He ran the six furlongs in 1:13 1-5, the best time of the afternoon.

Until the featured handicap was run, John Marsch of Chicago had threatened to steal the opening day show. His 2 year old Weisenheimer had won the first race in easy fashion after having been made a 7 to 10 favorite.

The Shingler, a son of Pennant-Susan Thatcher, carried the cardinal and green Marsch jacket to victory in the seven furlong fourth race after coming from far back in the stretch. In the Steger handicap, Marsch was represented by King's Blue which was one of the stoutly backed choices.

Noted as a speed horse, King's Blue failed to show any running ability in the early stages. He was making up some ground later, but was so far behind his rally was futile.

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

HENRY J. McCORMICK, sports editor of the Wisconsin State Journal, Madison, Wis., relates the following anecdote from the 1937 All-Star game. . . . Milt Gantenbein, a former University of Wisconsin player, was field captain for the Green Bay Packers. . . . Sammy Baugh of Texas Christian was captain for the All-Stars. . . . The game was played on a hot, sultry night. . . . As Gantenbein and Baugh met with the referee for the flip of the coin, Gantenbein remarked: "It certainly is a hot night, isn't it?" . . . "O, no," objected Baugh. "Where ah come from we'd call this cool." . . . "That burned me up," Gantenbein said. "He was trying to put the rib on me. I made up my mind to crack him so hard he'd regret it the first time he went back to pass, but you can take my word for it he's the hardest passer to jar that I ever have seen." . . . Gantenbein lost sixteen pounds in that game and most of the other Green Bay players lost from eight to fourteen pounds. . . . You will recall that Baugh clinched victory for the All-Stars by completing a pass to Gaynell Tinsley of Louisiana State for the only touchdown of the game. . . . This year Baugh will be trying to win for the other side, the Washington Redskins, champions of the National Professional league. . . .

James Fitzpatrick, Illinois athletic commissioner, is en route to California for a vacation. . . . Chairman Joe Triner already is on the west coast. . . . Bill Terry was the first to discover Buddy Lewis, the Senators' third baseman, and thought he had the youngster lined up, but Lewis chose Chattanooga rather than the Giants when he finished college. . . . A Toledo golfer eliminated himself from a match play tournament recently by whacking himself on the toe while attempting an explosion shot. . . . Eddie Collins, Red Sox business manager, says horse racing does not hurt baseball attendance when a team is winning. . . . Nick Cutlich, tackle on Northwestern's football team, is getting in shape by working on a fishing boat out of San Francisco. . . . The favorite pastime of Joe Gordon, the Yankees' slugging second baseman, is strumming a guitar. . . . Jake Wade, Tiger pitcher, is an amateur ventriloquist.

Sox Open Five Game Series with Athletics

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The White Sox, who came home a week ago with a bead on the first division only to have both eyes go slightly stigmatic, had their sight restored by rest yesterday. Their hopes to climb and their sight aren't in any great immediate danger. They have only the Athletics to face for the next three days, whereas the previous intruders were the third place Red Sox and the first place Yankees.

The way in which the Sox have conducted themselves since their home coming may make it necessary for Manager James J. Dykes to say a few harsh words. Their losses could be excused if it wasn't that most of them could be directly attributed to bits of fielding that lacked in energy or daring.

Pitching Is Problem.

Getting the Yankees out of town was such an effort that it not only cost the Sox four games but just about wrecked their pitching staf. Lee, Whitehead, and Rigney made two appearances each. Stratton, Lyons, and Knott each made one futile effort. But in the face of this calamity the manager thinks everything will be adjusted by assigning Stratton to the opener with the Athletics.

Even if Stratton gets by successfully today, Dykes' worries, if he has any, will only be starting. Tomorrow he must find a couple of pitchers for a double header against the Mackmen. The next day he must find another pair for a similar program.

Hank Will Be Back.

The wrist ailment which forced Henry Steinbacher to quit early in the first game with the Yanks on Sunday isn't severe, so he probably will be back in right field today in place of Jerry Walker, whose fielding indicates that he is playing for seven teams in the league, not including the Sox.

CUBS WILL SEND BRYANT AGAINST GIANTS TODAY

Herman May Be Ready to Play.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 1.—The Cubs, bruised and mystified but still as determined as they ever were, tomorrow will open a three game series with the second place New York Giants. All they have to do is sweep the series at the Polo grounds if they are to go into second place, an eminence they enjoyed for four or five hours no longer ago than last Wednesday evening.

Carl Hubbell is going to see what he can do about keeping Clay Bryant and the Cubs from winning the opener tomorrow. Hubbell will be after his thirteenth victory, a severe test especially for a left hander. Bryant will be after his tenth victory and isn't a bit afraid of the Giants.

Herman May Be Back.

Both teams will employ patched up lineups, due to injuries. Manager Gabby Hartnett this afternoon expressed the hope that Capt. Bill Herman will be able to return to service tomorrow. Augie Galan still is in Philadelphia doctoring his bum knee. This means the outfield, against left handed pitching, will be composed of Carl Reynolds, Joe Marty, and Frank Demaree, with Phil Cavarretta standing by if a right handed pitcher replaces Hubbell.

The Cubs were sorry to learn that Jo Jo Moore had ended his convalescence while still standing on one leg. Jo Jo, with only one good leg, batted .700 in the Cincinnati series, his first after a long absence. Moore always has been poison to the Cubs.

Bill Cissell, the $123,000 White Sox feller of a decade ago, who was purchased today from Baltimore, will be at second base for the Giants tomorrow it was announced here immediately after the purchase. Bill probably will relieve some of the anguish Manager Bill Terry has been suffering in second base, what with the nervous breakdown of Burgess Whitehead, the foldup of Alex Kampouris and the injury of Lou Chiozza.

The Cubs also will have an old man—recruit in uniform for the first time tomorrow. The 32 year old Vance Page, who has won fifteen games for Indianapolis this season, will be present and ready if invited to show that he is another Lou Fette or Jim Turner.

Some members of the Chicago party thought there would be one of those famous Cub panics with the return of the team to New York after the floppings in Philadelphia. So far as could be learned, however, there were no phrenological readings, no stethoscope soundings, or dream interpretations on orders from the Chicago office. Apparently no one ever looked at Dizzy Dean's tonsils, bunions, or crippled arm.

Manager Hartnett hung around the hotel most of the day. He spent some time second guessing the Philadelphia disaster and finally got things reduced to the point where he figured that three long fly outs, properly placed, would have swept the series against the Phils.

Gabby Elevates Self.

Sunday's split double-header offered Gabby some consolation, for he emerged from a long batting slump to make a double and four singles, all of which figured in run production. The skipper scored the winning run in the second game on a single by Charley Root. Gabby in the sixth inning had knocked his fourth straight single, stole second, his third base theft since 1931, and scored the fourth run in a 4 to 3 victory on the Root hit. As a reward for his own valorous conduct Gabby tomorrow will elevate himself from eighth place in the batting order to sixth, ahead of Marty, Collins, and Bryant.

Traynor and Gooch Play as Pirates Triumph, 5-0

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Manager Pie Traynor returned to third base today and his coach, Johnny Gooch, caught while the Pittsburgh Pirates were beating Springfield in an exhibition game, 5 to 0.

Halas Thinks Redskins Have Good Attack—He Should Know

[Head Coach, Chicago Bears.]

How would you like to be in the shoes of Ray Flaherty, coach of the Washington Redskins, with five of the outstanding college coaches of the country scheming against you, all seeking to grind your National league champions into the turf of Soldiers' field on Aug. 31?

Riley Smith.

Furthermore, how would you feel if you knew that that collegiate brain trust had the sixty-eight finest college players in the country at their disposal? On the All-Star squad are eighteen or twenty half backs, eleven tackles, eight quarter backs, and so on, with six or seven men available for every position on the team.

That numerical advantage counts heavily on an August evening, when the heat makes fresh replacements highly desirable.

But Don't Worry Too Much.

Before any crocodile tears are shed over Flaherty, however, let me state that that young fellow will not be dismayed by the imposing superstructure of the All-Stars. A word about Ray may be in order. During the years he played end for the New York Giants he was one of the most adept pass receivers in the league. It was Flaherty who worked out the maneuvers which, while they spring receivers in the open to take Sammy Baugh's passes, also give the Texan strong protection against the rushing tactics of the enemy.

Credit cannot be justly taken from Sammy Baugh as one of the greatest forward passers, probably the greatest, that football has known. I say "probably" because Sammy has performed only one season in the league. In our circle we are inclined to withhold final judgment until a player's stardom has extended over several seasons. Arnold Herber of Green Bay has proved his caliber over many seasons, and Benny Friedman and Harry Newman were stars for several years, even after every possible weakness of theirs had been ferreted out.

A Diversified Attack.

Be that as it may, the diversified passing attack which Ray Flaherty has built around Baugh is a thing of beauty and a joy to behold, if you happen to be a Washington supporter. Before this series is finished a number of the bewildering pass plays which Flaherty has worked out will be diagrammed. They will show how and why Redskins like Charley Malone, Wayne Millner, Riley Smith, and others suddenly break out into the open, take a well timed pass from Baugh and do not stop to pick daisies as they dash for the goal line.

SHARES STEEL DISTRICT VOTE WITH M'MILLIN

3,691,962 Fans Cast Ballots.

BY ARCH WARD.

Elmer Layden of Notre Dame has moved into first place in the heaviest voting Chicago's annual All-Star football game has developed. The former full back of the famous Four Horsemen passed Ducky Pond of Yale, Bo McMillin of Indiana, and Harry Kipke, unattached, in yesterday's returns.

Elmer Layden.

The poll being conducted by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and 150 associated newspapers and radio stations to pick a staf of coaches to lead the All-Stars against the Washington Redskins in Soldiers' field Aug. 31, has rolled up 3,691,962 votes. The contest ends at midnight Sunday.

Gary Likes Elmer.

Layden has little organized backing, but he is a strong favorite in the returns which have been filed directly to THE TRIBUNE. He also is polling a heavy vote in the populous steel mill district in and around Gary, where he shares the fans' support with Bo McMillin. Layden also is running ahead in Madison, Wis., home town of Harry Stuhldreher, another member of the Four Horsemen who is showing surprising strength throughout the middle west. Stuhldreher will be unable to accept a place on the board in the event he is elected because of previous commitments and his supporters in Madison are swinging their backing to Layden.

Layden is not the only candidate who is supported by former teammates. Norris Armstrong of Danville, Ky., captain of the 1921 Centre college team that whipped Harvard, yesterday, forwarded 2,000 votes for his old teammate, McMillin.

Kentucky Backs McMillin.

"Bo's old teammates are going to bat for him in the All-Star poll," Armstrong informed this department, "Gov. Chandler told me to come over next week and get his vote and those of all other state officials. Kentucky is solid for Bo."

Ernie Pinckert, blocking back of the Redskins, passed through Chicago yesterday en route to Washington, where the team will begin training for the All-Star game on Aug. 12. Pinckert cast a vote for his old coach, Howard Jones of Southern California.

Sam Chapman of California and Ace Parker of Duke, both of whom are playing with the Philadelphia Athletics, were on the air in Detroit Sunday night asking support for Harry Kipke, formerly of Michigan, and Stub Allison of California. Station WJR reported 32,705 votes for Kipke yesterday. Pond got 29,856 for second place.

Harry's Still Popular.

Michigan alumni in Cleveland are campaigning for Kipke. Radio station WGAR is using a series of spot announcements and special programs urging votes for him. A voting booth, manned by Michigan graduates, has been opened in a downtown hotel. Franklin Lewis, sports announcer for the radio station, reported 5,862 first place votes for Kipke yesterday.

The Crawfordsville, Ind., Journal and Review, which is sponsoring a campaign for Pete Vaughan of Wabash, turned over more than 4,000 votes to THE TRIBUNE Sunday. American Legion posts in Indiana and Kentucky are rallying behind Vaughan, a world war veteran.

Lynn Waldorf of Northwestern and A. J. Robertson of Bradley have moved ahead of Stub Allison of California in today's standings. While Allison is running ahead of all other Pacific coast coaches, he hasn't developed the sectional backing that characterized Slip Madigan's drive in 1935 or Jimmy Phelan's last year. Allison is gathering more votes in the middle west than he is in the far west.

Pond of Yale is far ahead of all other eastern candidates,

ATTENTION, MUSICIANS!

As in previous years, a 200 piece All-College band is being organized to play and maneuver between halves of the Washington Redskins College All-Americans football game in Soldiers' field on the night of Aug. 31. All college and university band men in Chicago and vicinity who have had experience in marching and maneuvering are eligible. Applications for membership in the band should be mailed to G. C. Bainum, Director, Northwestern University Band department, Fisk hall, Evanston, before Aug. 10.

NARRAGANSETT OPENS MEETING; 'ACCOLADE WINS

U. S. Track Stars Win in London Meet

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 1.—Rivals from 16 other nations were handed a defeat by America's picked track athletes in an international track meet in White City stadium today. The Americans won seven of the 14 events and piled up a wide point margin, although no official title was at stake.

The only double winner was Perrin Walker of the New York A. C., who took the 100 and 220 yard sprints. He defeated M. B. Osendarp of Holland, in the 100 yard dash, being timed in 9.9 seconds, and beat the same rival in the 220 in 21.7 seconds.

Fenske Takes Mile.

Charles Fenske of the University of Wisconsin, was disappointed when he did not meet England's world record holder, Sydney Wooderson in the mile. The American won easily in 4:19. Wooderson dropped out of his specialty to set a new British mark of 1:50.9 for the half mile.

Jack Patterson of Rice, Alan Tolmich of Wayne university, Cornelius Warmerdam of the San Francisco Athletic club, and Mel Walker, former Ohio State university colored high jumper, scored the other American victories.

A new British record of 53 seconds was set by Patterson in taking the 440 yard low hurdles. Tolmich scored an upset in beating Britain's D. O. Finaly in the 120 yard high hurdles in 14.6 seconds.

Warmerdam Wins Vault.

The pole vault was an American affair in which Warmerdam conquered his teammate, Richard Patterson of Princeton. Warmerdam cleared 14 feet to beat Patterson by nine inches.

The field events found the Americans making their poorest showing. Francis Ryan of Columbia, was defeated by 6 and one-fourth inches in the shot put by A. Kreek of Esthonia, whose best toss was 52 feet, one-fourth inch. G. Oberwerger of Italy, won the discus throw by more than two feet from Phil Levy of the San Francisco Olympic club. Oberwerger was two feet, two inches better than Levy with a toss of 164 feet, 11 and ¾ inches. N. V. Hansen of Norway won the broad jump at 23 feet, 9 and one-fourth inches. Anson Perina of Princeton was third in this event. A new javelin mark of 237 feet, 2 and three-fourths inches was set by J. Varszegi of Hungary.

In the 440 yard run a new British mark was set by Arthur Godfrey Brown of Great Britain who covered the distance in 47.6 seconds. Canada's W. Fritz was second and Jim Herbert of New York university third.

WEISENHEIMER, away well, kept up under a steadying hold in the early stages, came out after saving ground on the turn and weakened after taking command with a rush. Then held NONCONNAH safe. The latter had the most room after last turn, ground throughout and, holding on well, was getting to the winner in the late stages.

ABA, probably having an advantage in the soft footing that went to the front on the inside, was steadied on the same and fast when straightened in the stretch and had something left. CUP DEFENDER, fractious at the post but away well, went prominently from the start and held on with good courage.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse $800. Net value to winner, $600; second, $100; third, $75; fourth, $25.

BOSTON SOUND, racing improved and beginning fast, did not keep up when approaching the stretch but rallied to pressure when racing on the inside in the final quarter and weakened after getting up but lasted. QUE GATO, taken in hand after being rushed into command, raced wide throughout, failed to withstand the winner when under good pressure in the final eighth but was gaining at the end. BRISTLE, away slowly and taken out after reaching the turn, rallied when straight in the stretch and was rapidly wearing down the leaders. STAR BESS went evenly.

REVOLTA, VICTOR CARD 72 TO WIN PRO-SENIOR MEET

Kaiser-Barrett 63 Wins Low Net.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Two gents named John collaborated yesterday at the Skokie Country club to win the fourth annual pro-seniors tournament conducted by the Illinois Seniors' Golf association and the Illinois section of the professional golfers' association.

They were John Revolta of Evanston, just back from his victory in the St. Paul open on Sunday, and John H. Victor of Glenview. Between them they turned in a card of 35—37—72, even par for Skokie. A shot behind them were Jock Hutchison Jr., of North Shore and his senior partner, Harry V. Bishop of Glenview. They had 34—39—73.

Low net for the day went to Bill Kaiser of Louisville and Ed. E. Barrett of Beverly who came through with a 74—11—63, based on half of Mr. Barrett's club handicap of 22.

The field of 140 was the best of the year in professional-amateur tournaments.

Al Babartsky Signs Contract with Cardinals

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Albert Babartsky, who enjoyed a reputation as a block of granite at Fordham for three years, was added to the roster of the Chicago Cardinals yesterday when he returned his signed contract from his home in Shenandoah, Pa.

Babartsky, elected to the College All-Star squad in THE TRIBUNE'S nation-wide poll, has been one of the leading tackles in collegiate football for the last three seasons. The Cardinals selected him in the draft. The New York Giants and the Detroit Lions also sought him.

Coach Milan Creighton, who announced his signing yesterday, saw Babartsky in the East-West game last New Year's day and was impressed with his speed. He is unusually fast for a big man, Creighton said. He weighs 210 pounds and stands six feet, one inch.

Owen Praises Babartsky.

Eastern coaches have preferred Babartsky over the other six blocks of granite in Fordham's great line, although most of the publicity has gone to Ed Franco, the other tackle, and Alex Wojciechowicz, the center. Steve Owen, coach of the New York Giants, describes Babartsky as the finest defensive player in college football.

Babartsky was graduated from Fordham in June with a bachelor of science degree in economics. He finished fourth in the All-Star player poll behind Vic Markov of Washington, Marty Schreyer of Purdue, and Fred Shirey of Nebraska with a total of 886,327 votes. He will come to Chicago to join the All-Star squad at Northwestern on Aug. 12 and will report to the Cardinals on Sept. 1, the day after the All-Star game. At present he is getting in condition in Brandonville, Pa., where he is a councilor at a boys' camp.

Two Sign Bear Contracts.

George Halas, owner-coach of the Chicago Bears, yesterday announced receipt of signed contracts from Dick Plasman, 212 pound end from Vanderbilt, and Les McDonald, former Nebraska end, both members of last year's Bear squad. Plasman and McDonald gave impressive performances in the final games of the season and are expected to be the Bears' regular ends this year. Plasman brought his contract to the Bears office. He will remain in the city until the Bears go to camp at St. John's military academy in Delafield, Wis., next week.

King Kong Pins Grubmier in White City Feature

Dodgers, Cardinals to Use Yellow Ball in Game Today

New York, Aug. 1.—[Special.]—A baseball experiment will be tried in Ebbets field tomorrow when the Dodgers and the St. Louis Cardinals use a yellow ball in the first game of a double-header. This ball, for which greater visibility, hence greater safety, is claimed, is being used for the first time in a major league game.

Cards Sell Joe Stripp, Infield Veteran, to Bees

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Stripe of Joe Stripp, veteran third baseman, to the Boston Bees was announced today by the St. Louis Cardinals. That recent song hit, "This Is My First Affair, So Please Be Kind," doesn't ring true. As rendered by contemporary torch singers, one expects them to yowl, instead, "This Is My First Affair, How'm I Doin'?" or "This Is My First Affair, Come On, Big Boy, Get Rough."

Fading Giants Buy Cissell to Play 2d Base

New York, Aug. 1.—[Special.]—In an effort to shake off the slump which has thrown his men five games behind the league leading Pirates, Manager Bill Terry of the Giants today purchased the veteran Chalmer W. [Bill] Cissell from Baltimore of the International league to play second base.

Cissell, whose first major league experience was with the White Sox in 1928, will be at second when the Giants battle the Cubs in the Polo Grounds tomorrow afternoon.

Terry Has Troubles.

The Giants have been dogged by second base troubles all season. Lou Chiozza has been out with injuries most of the season, Blondy Ryan is hardly of big league caliber, and Alex Kampouris, who was obtained early this season from the Reds, has failed to live up to expectations.

Cissell comes to the Giants for $20,000 and Ryan, who was optioned to the Orioles to fill the vacancy.

Bill Cost Sox Plenty.

The late Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the Chicago White Sox, paid $15,000 in cash in addition to several players, to the Portland club for Cissell. He served four season in Chicago, averaging .261 with the bat. He later played with Cleveland, the Boston Red Sox, and the Athletics.

This Fills a Lot of Glasses
It's our full ½ Gallon Bottle for parties and when folks drop in
By RICHARD SEIBOLD, Meister Bräu Brewmaster
I believe in saving with this thrifty size bottle
BUT WE'LL NEVER ADD SUGARS and SYRUPS
to save time or money. We stick to the old all-grain brew.

I DON'T have any quarrel with modern methods—for some things. But I do not think they have any place in the brewing of good beer. I still insist on the old, slow method—the way we made Meister Bräu in 1891. Even if it does cost more. And here's why.

Maybe you remember the old-time brew. And wonder why good beer is so hard to get nowadays. I think the shortcuts of near-beer days had a lot to do with it.

One of the "new" ways is to use sugars or syrups in the beer. This saves time and work and makes a beer some people may like. But we prefer the old way.

And we could save money by using a cheaper grade of hops. But I found 25 years ago that makes a raw beer.

Our old methods keep the life in the beer—keep its natural foam and sparkle. Like in draft beer. Hence Meister Bräu has the true flavor of draft beer at its best.

Please try this old-time beer made the slow, careful way that brings perfection. We promise you'll prefer it as others do. Ask for Meister Bräu—in cans or bottles. That name assures you the true beer flavor.

MEMBER BANKS' LOANS TO TRADE AGAIN REDUCED

Recent Declines Smaller than Earlier in Year.

Loans made by member banks of the federal reserve system to commerce, industry, and agriculture declined moderately in the week ended July 27. This was shown yesterday in the weekly report of the federal reserve board on member bank conditions in 101 leading cities.

The decline last week was $9,000,000. In the preceding week the decline was $7,000,000. In the week ended July 13 there was a modest increase of $3,000,000. During the last four or five weeks declines in the amounts of loans outstanding have been comparatively small. In the earlier months of this year the declines were large.

Banks Ignore Jones' Warning.

Despite the recent statement by Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, that if the banks do not put out more money to help business the government may have to step into the credit situation, loans have not shown any upturn.

The total of such loans outstanding on July 27 was $3,869,000,000, a decrease of $556,000,000 from the amount outstanding on July 28, 1937.

Bank holdings of direct obligations of the federal government declined $37,000,000 to a total of $7,659,000,000. Holdings of fully guaranteed obligations increased 18 millions to a total of $1,640,000,000.

There was an increase of $33,000,000 in demand deposits, but time deposits declined $8,000,000.

Following are comparisons of the principal assets and liabilities of the weekly reporting member banks of the federal reserve system in 101 leading cities of the United States as at the close of business Wednesday:

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Frank Ridgway

Big Roundup Is On

Aug. 1, 1938.

AMERICAN scientists and farmers are now rounding up the greatest herd of diseased cattle ever assembled and sent to slaughter. Outbreaks of foot and mouth disease, the campaign against tuberculosis, and the shooting of drouth-stricken beasts never called for the wholesale slaughtering that is being done today in the nationwide drive against Bang's disease.

Bang's disease is on the run. Eradicators will not stop until all animals infected with abortion germ, known as Brucellus abortus, are killed, immunized, or placed under control. A million and a half already have gone to slaughter and many thousands more must go over the bridge of sighs annually in packing towns all over the nation.

Cowboys Hunt Germs.

The public will hear more and more during the next few years about this great ride of the cowboy germ hunters. Confusion will be avoided by becoming familiar with some of the facts concerning Bang's disease and its relation to health of humans and farm animals.

Bang's disease has existed for centuries, but little has been known about it until within the last fifty years. It has been a big puzzler to live stock farmers recently.

It takes its name from its discoverer, Prof. Bernard Bang of the Royal Veterinary and Agricultural college, Copenhagen, Denmark. He died in 1932. Prof. Bang discovered the abortion germ in 1897. The germ that causes undulant fever, or Malta fever, was discovered in 1887, ten years before, by David Bruce, a surgeon in the British army. The abortion and undulant fever germs are named in honor of Bruce.

Back in 1918, twenty-one years after Bang's discovery, Alice C. Evans, an employé of the United States department of agriculture, noticed that the germs discovered by Bang and Bruce bore an unusually close resemblance.

Scientists Isoalte Germs.

Bruce isolated his germs from humans who had succumbed to the disease known as Malta or undulant fever, while Bang later isolated his germs from the carcass of an aborted calf.

Today the different types of germs that cause abortion in live stock are known as Brucella abortus [bovine], which affect cattle, and Brucella abortus [porcine], found in hogs. Brucella melitensis is the name given to the germ that is found in goats and causes Malta fever in human beings.

The Brucellus abortion germ in cattle and hogs also causes undulant fever in man.

Federal investigators say that no drug or medicinal compound has proved to be effective in the cure or prevention of Bang's disease.

Vaccine Being Tried.

Veterinarians are now spending their time in attempting to put the disease under control through the test and slaughter method and also are experimenting with vaccine.

A. J. Glover, a Wisconsin dairy cattle owner and editor of Hoard's Dairyman, said recently, "We must recognize, as live stock breeders, that Bang's disease is both an economic and health problem. It is my opinion that we are overestimating the danger of contracting undulant fever by drinking milk produced by infected cows. We breeders and dairy farmers can't afford to keep Bang's disease infection in our herds. We cannot argue that a cow suffering from Bang's disease should be maintained in our herds for the production of the best food for human beings."

SEC TAKES HAND IN ALLEGHANY'S CONTROL FIGHT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1.—The federal government today entered the bitter fight over control of the Alleghany corporation, top holding company of the former Van Sweringen railroad empire. The Securities and Exchange commission ordered an investigation into alleged false and misleading financial statements for 1934 to 1937, inclusive.

E. R. Young, whose fight for control may be handicapped.

The penalty in case of true findings will be suspension or complete delisting of 200 million dollars in securities, par value, now listed on the New York Stock exchange.

Starts With Public Quiz.

The order today calls only for a public investigation of the charges of false and misleading statements. If the charges are proved true, then a second hearing may follow on an SEC order to show cause why the corporation's securities should not be suspended or withdrawn from listing on the New York Stock exchange.

This is the penalty provided by the Securities Exchange act of 1934, under which the order was issued. The SEC plans to subpena officers and directors of the corporation at the time the statements in question were filed.

The 1934 act does not provide for any action against officers and directors for the filing of false and misleading statements. But stockholders could take civil action if it is found that assets were wasted by the management.

Another Rail Case Pending.

In a similar action recently the SEC ordered hearings on an order to show cause why common and preferred stocks of the Missouri Pacific railroad company, subsidiary of Alleghany corporation, should not be removed from listing on the New York Stock exchange, also on the basis of misleading and false statements. The trial examiner recommended removal. A decision is now pending before the commission. The action in that case was much more direct than the one now undertaken in the Alleghany corporation's affairs.

This new procedure will necessarily prolong hearings, delay action and add to the costs of the investigation and defense unless attorneys for both sides accept the facts presented in the first hearing and let it go at that.

May Aid Young's Foes.

If the SEC's charges against Alleghany are proved it is believed here they will provide ammunition for the Guaranty Trust Company of New York in its struggle with Robert R. Young, New York financier, and his associates for control of Alleghany corporation and Chesapeake corporation, another holding company unit in the railroad pyramid. Young is now chairman of the board of Alleghany.

Guaranty recently won a court battle in which Young had sought to restrain the bank from voting Chesapeake stock impounded by the bank as trustee for Alleghany bonds. The stock had been pledged as collateral for the bonds. A compromise also was recently made on representation by the two factions on the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad company board of directors, which left the numerical strength of each faction unchanged. Whether the SEC action will inflame the smoldering embers remains to be seen.

Concern Van Sweringen Régime.

The 1934 and 1935 financial statements covered the years when the Van Sweringens were still in control. O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen had formed the Alleghany corporation in 1929. Both are now dead. They had been removed from the situation in 1936 but the old management still remained. By 1937 the new management of Young and his associates had moved in.

Among those expected to be subpenaed by the SEC will be George A. Ball, Muncie, Ind., fruit jar manufacturer, who briefly held control of the vast rail empire. He sold out to Young, Frank F. Kolbe, Young's associate in New York, and Allan P. Kirby of Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

SEC Charges Explained.

The commission in its order today said it "has reasonable grounds to believe" that the corporation charged to capital surplus, instead of to profit and loss or earned surplus, [1], bond discount and expenses amounting to $5,000,000; and [2] net losses realized during the years 1931 to 1937, inclusive, on the sale of investments, amounting to $23,000,000.

It also charged that a loss of $29,612,125 incurred in the sale of certain securities by Alleghany corporation to Chesapeake & Ohio railroad company was not taken into the accounts for the years 1932 to 1937, inclusive.

"As a result" the commission

Fight Opened on Speculative "Counselors"

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1.—[Special.]—Officials of six commodity exchanges and the department of agriculture opened a drive today against tipster type "commodity counselors."

They made public at a conference here the results of an agriculture department study showing that many so-called counselors who tell other people how to speculate cannot make profits for themselves. One "expert" was found to be on government relief part of the time.

Action to discourage brokerage houses from accepting business from this type of tipster was urged by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace in recommendations read at the meeting by Assistant Secretary Harry L. Brown. The conferees included commodity exchange representatives and officials of the federal Commodity Exchange administration [CEA].

Consider Publicity as Remedy.

A publicity campaign to acquaint the public with the kind of trader "who does not hesitate to misrepresent the probability of profiting from commodity trading" was considered at the session. It was charged that tipsters, by misrepresentation, lure into speculative operations many persons of small means.

These "experts" solicit money from clients on promise of making profit on trading in corn, wheat, cotton, and other commodities in the futures markets. Wallace charged that tipsters, after causing losses to their clients, covered up these losses as long as possible by fake bookkeeping. Juggled books show "profits" for the customer for a time, but he usually loses his investment in the long run, it was said.

New Rules Proposed.

In this connection it was proposed at today's conference that commodity exchanges impose new accounting rules requiring monthly statements on profits and losses from commission houses operating on a discretionary basis.

The department said its survey showed that of 4,488 accounts controled on commodity exchanges by persons other than direct owners, "approximately 600 are managed by so-called commodity counselors or tipsters."

"The owners of controled accounts live in every state of the United States, three United State territories, and sixteen foreign countries," the department's report said.

"Usually the commodity counselors' remuneration is provided for in an agreement by which they share the profits but not the losses with the client. All of the sixteen counselors who controled ten or more accounts each during the first eight months of 1937 lost money for a large percentage of their clients.

Eleven Make Less than $3,000.

"A personal history investigation of these counselors indicates that very few have been able to trade successfully for themselves. It was found that eleven of these sixteen individuals had incomes of less than $3,000 in 1937, and only one made more than $7,000. One counsellor was on government relief during part of the year. Several were in financial difficulties and unable to meet their obligations."

Among those who attended the meeting was Kenneth S. Templeton, president of the Chicago Board of Trade.

The conference was the first of its kind since the CEA was given wide powers to police the commodity market.

JULY BUILDING PERMITS FEWER, BUT VALUE RISES

July building construction in Chicago increased slightly in cost of new structures over June, according to Richard Schmidt, building commissioner. There was as light decline in number of permits.

There were 190 permits for buildings valued at $1,965,850 issued during July, as compared with 198 permits and $1,833,150 in June. In July, last year, there were 150 permits for buildings costing $2,463,714. Permits were taken out for 152 new homes in July, compared with 151 in June, and 81 in July last year.

For the first seven months of this year there were 958 permits for buildings valued at $10,973,510. Last year for the same period there were 1,104 permits for buildings costing $16,767,524.

'Pennsy' Reopens Shops; Whistles and Bells Sound

Altoona, Pa., Aug. 1.—(AP)—The Pennsylvania railroad's shop whistles today tooted a greeting—the first in eight months—as the vanguard of some 10,000 workers began trickling back to their jobs to share in a $8,321,000 building program. Mingling with the whistles were the church bells of this western Pennsylvania town, which depends to a large extent upon the shops, virtually idle since January. Included in the building program is the construction of 20 electric locomotives and 1,000 box cars.

Rails, Unions Adamant in Wage Parley

The railroads and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen continued their debate yesterday over the proposed 15 per cent wage cut. At the end of the meeting the two groups were as far apart as when they started conferences on July 18.

"We haven't the money to pay the present scale of wages. We are going to insist on cutting wages 15 per cent." This position was reiterated by H. A. Enochs, chairman of the Carriers Joint Committee, which represents the railroad managements.

"We will not take a cut. The fact that the railroads haven't the money is not our problem." This has been the stand of the trainmen and A. F. Whitney, their chairman, continued yesterday his arguments from this point of view.

Wants Mediator Called.

Asserting that the two parties to the dispute are not making any progress, Enochs sought to speed up the negotiations. He wants the second step provided by law in the case of railroad labor disputes—the calling in of a federal mediator.

To this Whitney replied:

"We are not purposely delaying these negotiations, but we desire to settle this matter by negotiation rather than by mediation or by a Presidential fact finding commission. If the negotiations fail then it is time for the other steps, but we want to present our evidence in the negotiations."

Enochs said the managements are not trying to force labor's hand. He insisted that the brotherhoods do not seem to recognize the fact that the railroads are in dire financial peril and that they must have relief.

Calls Wage Level Too High.

"The wage level is too high," he explained. "When our operating costs are too high the only thing we can do is to raise rates and that is playing into the hands of our competitors. The high railroad costs helped to bring about the growth of truck and bus competition.

"Look at what has happened in the construction industry. Many people would like to build, but the labor costs are so high that people will not build. That restricts employment in the construction industry. In the case of the railroads there has to come an end to this situation."

Whitney read a prepared statement in which he said that employés are entitled to a fair living wage before bond interest is paid.

The conference with the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen will be continued at the Stevens hotel tomorrow. Enochs will meet this morning with the Railway Labor Executives' association, of which George M. Harrison is chairman. The association represents eighteen brotherhoods in the negotiations.

DIVIDEND TOTAL DOWN, INTEREST UP THIS MONTH

Dividend payments for August will be lower and interest payments higher than corresponding payments in August, 1937, the New York Journal of Commerce monthly estimate indicated yesterday.

Dividends this month were estimated at $110,271,000, against $148,632,000 in August of last year. Interest disbursements were placed at $140,491,000, compared with $136,374,000.

The combined total will show a drop to $250,762,000 from $285,006,000 a year ago, the compilation showed.

JULY TRAFIC OF BUS, 'L,' STREET CAR LINES IS BELOW YEAR AGO

A continued slump in trafic volume was reported yesterday by the Chicago Motor Coach company, the Chicago Surface Lines, and the Chicago Rapid Transit company [elevated]. July trafic of all three systems showed greater declines from the corresponding month last year than did June trafic.

The motor coach company reported its business in July was 6.6 per cent lower than a year ago. In the first seven months of 1938, the system had a decrease of 0.8 per cent from the like 1937 period.

A decline in July trafic of 9.99 per cent compared with a year ago was announced by the surface lines. The elevated system's July volume was off 9.39 compared with July, 1937. Neither company had figures available for the first seven months of 1938. All three companies attributed the decline to the fact that July had five Sundays this year and only four in 1937. Sundays are low trafic days.

NORTH SUBURBS START DRIVE TO BOOST BUSINESS

Members of the "Committee of 100," of Waukegan and North Chicago, organized to fight the business depression in the two cities, met last night at the Karcher hotel, Waukegan, to inaugurate a "better business" drive.

A. J. Mitchell, Waukegan, chairman of the committee, said the movement has three objectives: To increase factory production and merchandise sales, to reëmploy workers, and to establish new industries in the Waukegan-North Chicago area.

Robert Galloway, secretary of the Waukegan Chamber of Commerce, announced a series of events to bring visitors and increase retail purchases. These include dollar day in Waukegan, Aug. 18, the Columbia yacht races, North Chicago days, starting this week, and an eight day fall festival starting Oct. 1.

COAL FIRMS LOSE FIGHT TO KEEP COSTS PRIVATE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1.—(AP)—A group of bituminous coal producers including the Mailory Coal company of West Virginia, failed to win an order from the United States Court of Appeals today to bar the bituminous coal commission from making public their individual cost reports. The court refused to review the coal commission's ruling issued last May on grounds that it lacked jurisdiction.

MEXICO PUSHING NEW FIAT MONEY INTO CIRCULATION

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 1.—[Special.]—Mexico today began to move fiat money into circulation through government land banks to finance the wheat and cotton crops and to loosen credit restrictions. About half of the Mexican government's total gold reserve now is on deposit in the federal reserve bank in New York.

Twelve million pesos [the peso is a little more than 20 cents] in ten peso notes are being put into circulation through the land banks. Private and local banks refused to cooperate in the move. Between 20,000,000 and 30,000,000 more such peso notes will be circulated, according to present plans to finance the marketing of the cotton crop.

The new ten peso notes do not bear the caption hitherto put on all notes of this denomination agreeing to pay to the bearer in gold or silver.

Grains Fall to Season's Lowest Level

CHICAGO GRAIN FUTURES

Closing prices on the September delivery of principal grains on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday:

	Yesterday.	Saturday.	Year ago.
Wheat	$ .66⅞	$ .67⅝	$1.15
Corn	.55⅛	.56⅝	.94⅝
Oats	.23¼	.23⅜	.28⅜
Rye	.45	.46⅜	.78¼
*Soy beans	.82¾	.83¾	1.01

*October delivery.

Hedging sales and liquidation of holdings of grain futures by investors who bought some time ago caused a decline in prices of all deliveries of wheat, corn, oats and, rye to new low levels for the season yesterday.

September wheat sold at 66⅝ cents, September oats at 23 cents, and September rye at 44¾ cents a bushel at the lowest prices of the day. Not since 1933 have such low prices been witnessed on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Corn futures led the decline, breaking 2½ cents a bushel at one time with the September delivery leading. Closing trades were at net losses of 1⅛ to 2½ cents a bushel.

Wheat Unable to Rally.

Wheat failed to rally and closed ¾ to ⅞ cent lower. Oat futures declined ⅜ to ⅝ cent. Rye and soy bean futures were 1 cent or more a bushel lower. Lard futures closed with net losses of 10 to 22½ cents per 100 pounds.

There was nothing in the general news to account for yesterday's decline. Brokers attributed the weakness to lack of speculative buying. Public interest in the grain markets for a number of months has been subnormal.

SALES TOTAL FALLS

Scales of grain futures on the Chicago Board of Trade in the first seven months of 1938 were less than half the volume for the corresponding 1937 period, the Commodity exchange administration reported yesterday.

In the seven months ended July 30 sales of all grain futures aggregated 4,623,464,000 bushels, a decrease of 5,030,438,000 bushels compared with the 1937 period. Sales in July of 787,765,000 bushels showed a decrease of approximately 112,000,000 bushels compared with June and were over one billion bushels less than in July, 1937.

Trading in grain futures on the Board of Trade in July, compared with preceding months, as reported by the Commodity exchange administration [in thousands of bushels] follow:

	Wheat.	Corn.	Total.
July	583,497	173,358	787,765
June	757,407	119,211	899,479

CHECKS CASHED IN CHICAGO AREA SHOW DECLINE

Use of checks as measured by debits to individual bank deposits declined in the seventh federal reserve district in the week ended July 27. This was reported yesterday by the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago. Its report was based on a survey of 160 banks in 41 leading cities in the district.

Bank debits [checks cashed] in the week aggregated $929,370,000. This was a decrease of 11.9 per cent from the total of the preceding week, which was $1,054,575,000. In the corresponding week of 1937 the total was $1,179,107,000. The decrease from a year ago was 21.2 per cent.

The total for Chicago alone was $537,564, compared with $669,177 in the week ended July 28, 1937.

INDUSTRY HELD BACK BY SPREAD OF LABOR STRIFE

Era of Force Dawns with Wagner Act.

(This is the eighth of a series of articles on the factors hindering genuine business recovery. The ninth will appear tomorrow.)

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Industry always has had to contend with the problem of strikes and demands for higher wages. Records of the United States department of labor show, for example, that there were nearly as many strikes in 1917 as there were last year and that the amount of workers' time lost in strikes in 1927 was nearly as great as the time lost in 1937.

Never before, however, has there been such a widespread epidemic of industrial warfare as the nation has experienced during the last two or three years. Warfare of any kind stirs up public fear and when there is fear there is uncertainty that congeals business activity.

Prior to the enactment of the national industrial recovery act legislation had been aimed at "permitting" collective bargaining. Beginning with the NRA, laws were passed intended to "encourage", or enforce the principle of collective bargaining.

Wagner Act Brings Change.

The Wagner labor relations act, seting up the National Labor Relations board, created the machinery whereby union organizers have been able to force both employers and comparatively disinterested or antagonistic employés to accept unionization.

With the aid of politicians indebted to it for votes and hundreds of thousands of dollars of campaign contributions, the Committee for Industrial Organization and its affiliates have been able to exploit this legislation to build up a union group rivaling in size the more conservative American Federation of Labor.

This sudden growth has been accompanied by unprecedented violence and disregard for legal rights of corporations and individuals. A few men have been killed and many injured. Employers' plants have been seized illegally and held by sitdown strikers in defiance of law. Property has been destroyed.

Politicians Yield Blandly.

From the standpoint of managements and owners even violence and destruction of property have not been the most discouraging aspect of this warfare. The most unsettling development has been the bland acquiescence of political officeholders who—instead of striving to maintain law and order—have deliberately given way to violators. In the case of the National Labor Relations board employers have become convinced that the law enforcing agency is actually on the side of the violent element.

In the first flush of their new

You may not think you "need" this protection. Neither did a Pennsylvania policyholder (name on request) whose credit losses for years had been unusually small for the volume. Yet, the credit losses of one single month proved conclusively the soundness of credit insurance.

They write: "We did not feel that our losses would ever exceed the normal and merely felt that the investment was well worth while in case of any unforeseen calamities... We benefited considerably by having the policy -- also found an increase in our volume and peace of mind."

New York Stocks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 1.—The stock market started August today on a sour note. Prices of leading issues closed fractions to 2 points lower. Trading was the slowest since June 17, only 586,510 shares moving.

Most prices were fractionally lower at the opening. After publication of the American Iron and Steel institute forecast of a gain in steel operations this week a moderately steady tone developed. This steadiness was short-lived, however, and prices continued lower to close around their worst levels.

Chief factors for the decline, according to observers, were the serious developments in the Russo-Japanese situation and the weakness in commodity prices particularly wheat.

The desire of some traders to await the results of the General Motors dividend meeting, which came after the close, also tended to restrict activity it was asserted.

Pivotal steel shares were down 1 point or so at their worst. They recovered part of their losses later on the reports of improved production. At the close, both United States Steel common and Bethlehem were off ⅝. Similar losses appeared against Republic, Youngstown, and Inland.

Motor stocks were active and steady for a time, but then dipped. General Motors lost nearly 1 point and Chrysler about ½ point.

Sellers had the better of it in the metals group. Anaconda Copper and American Smelting each had substantial fractions lopped off.

Public utility issues displayed a steady undertone.

Except for some low priced shares, oil stocks turned lower. Superior Oil moved in the best volume of the day to work fractionally higher to a new peak.

Heavy machinery shares declined between 1 and 2 points. Westinghouse, off 1¾, went below 100. Most merchandising and rubber issues closed fractionally lower.

New York Bonds.

New York, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Rail issues declined today in desultory trading in the bond market. Utilities also were off a bit, but industrials and the low yield groups advanced slightly to new highs for the year. The foreign dollar list was steady.

United States government obligations were quiet and irregular. One maturity lost 5-32ds of a point, another gained 3-32s, and many were unchanged.

Volume was $3,820,125, lowest since June 13, and compared with $6,371,400 Friday.

Chicago Stocks.

Chicago stocks drifted lower yesterday on a trading volume of 14,000 shares, compared with 32,000 on Friday. Bendix Aviation lost ⅝ of a point to finish at 20⅝, Marshall Field declined ⅛ to 12⅝, and Borg-Warner slipped ⅛ to 31¼.

Utah Radio, the most active stock, was unchanged at 2⅞ on sales of 2,400 shares. General Household advanced ⅛ to 1⅜, and Bliss & Laughlin was ½ higher at 20½. Westinghouse Electric, which was admitted to trading yesterday, sold at 100⅛ on a fifty share transaction.

Thirty-six of the seventy issues traded were lower, fourteen advanced and nineteen were unchanged. There was no comparison for the one new issue. THE TRIBUNE average of twenty stocks slipped to 11.30 from 11.33 Saturday.

Bank Stocks.

Two Chicago bank stocks declined slightly yesterday in quiet trading while other leading shares closed unchanged. First National bank stock dropped $2 to $221 bid, $225 asked. Stock of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company closed 25 cents lower at $70.25 bid, $71.25 asked.

JULY RECEIPTS AT STOCKYARDS SET LOW MARK

Second Smallest Since 1884 for the Month.

The number of meat animals handled at the Chicago stockyards last month was the second smallest for July since 1884. Total receipts of cattle, calves, hogs, and sheep were 577,651 head, a drop of 73,953 from the June total. This compared with 534,982 a year ago, the only smaller July total in the last fifty-four years.

Two years ago Chicago received 714,694 head in July. The July average for the five year period to 1935 is 972,000, and the preceding five years averaged 1,108,000 for that month. Hog receipts declined to 265,106 from the 318,942 June run. It was the second smallest July arrival of hogs in more than sixty years, the only smaller one being last year when 213,057 arrived. Two years ago the July run was 321,132. Prior to July, 1935, most July hog totals ranged from 400,000 to 500,000.

150,087 Cattle Received.

Cattle receipts decreased from 150,087 during June to 138,711 last month, the second smallest July since 1882. Calves at 23,719 were down from the 27,161 June total and were smallest for July since 1904. Sheep at 150,115 were smallest for July in forty-four years.

Chicago receipts for three years follow:

Meat Rises Slightly in July.

Responding to an increased consumer demand, wholesale prices of meat and live stock, except for lambs, rose slightly in July, the Institute of American Meat Packers reported yesterday. Dressed lamb prices at wholesale declined 9 per cent.

Meat production in July was larger than in July, 1937, and exceeded the June output, the institute reported. Pork production, 40 per cent above the output for July of last year, showed the largest increase. Beef production was up 20 per cent.

Consumption of meat and lard, the institute estimated, was larger than in July of last year and slightly more than in June.

18 MILLION BONDS ARE CALLED BY PUBLIC SERVICE

The Public Service Company of Northern Illinois yesterday called for redemption on Oct. 1, 1938, all of its outstanding $18,876,000 first and refunding mortgage gold bonds due Oct. 1, 1956. The bonds will be redeemed at par [$100] plus accrued interest to Oct. 1, together with a premium of $10 per $100.

The Commonwealth Edison company, which owns 99 per cent of Public Service's stock, will advance Public Service $18,876,000 to enable it to make the redemption. Public Service will pay the premium and the accrued interest out of its general fund.

The payment marks another step in Commonwealth Edison's move to simplify the financial structure of itself and its subsidiary companies.

FEDERAL AGENCY SETS RECORD IN BUYING BUTTER

The Dairy Products Marketing association yesterday bought more than two million pounds of butter in cash markets at Chicago and New York, setting a new record total for daily buying.

The association, federally financed agency authorized to buy up to 50 million pounds to stabilize the butter market, took about 1,800,000 pounds in Chicago. It has bought more than 19 million pounds since June 16, when the program started.

Butter futures were unchanged yesterday on the Chicago Mercantile exchange. Egg contracts dropped ¼ cent a dozen.

Treasury Finds Short Term Financing Is Costing More

An increase in the rate which the federal government pays for money it borrows for a short period was shown yesterday. Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau reported that the average discount rate on $100,315,000 of 91 day treasury bills, dated Aug. 3 and due Nov. 2, was equivalent to interest of 0.062 per cent. An issue of approximately the same amount and maturing in 91 days sold in the preceding week at a rate equivalent to 0.059 per cent interest. In June an issue sold at a record low rate equal to 0.011 per cent interest. The rate has risen for five consecutive weeks.

SEC TAKES HAND IN ALLEGHANY'S CONTROL FIGHT

order said, "the balance sheets as at Dec. 31, 1934, 1935, and 1936, show an earned surplus in the amount of approximately $2,000,000, and as at Dec. 31, 1937, an earned surplus in the amount of approximately $12,000,000, instead of deficit in the earned surplus account as at Dec. 31, 1934, 1935, and 1936, of approximately $55,000,000, and as at Dec. 31, 1937, of approximately $45,000,000.

Charges Loss Was Understated.

"The net loss for the years ended Dec. 31, 1934, 1935, and 1936 is understated and the net profit for the year ended Dec. 31, 1937, is overstated by approximately $275,000 in each year because of the failure to follow a periodic amortization plan in writing off bond discount and expenses."

Lybrand, Ross Brothers and Montgomery of New York were the company's auditors for all of the statements concerned.

In another precedent setting order today the SEC denied the application of the Houston Natural Gas corporation for exemption from provisions of the Public Utility Holding company act of 1935. The corporation, chartered in Delaware, contended that because its four subsidiaries were Texas corporations and retailed natural gas in that state, the business was intrastate and the parent company should be exempted.

SEC Denies Argument.

The commission ruled that both parent and subsidiary companies must be organized in the same state and operate solely in that state for the exemption rule to apply. The commission also held that the parent company financed and sold its services to its Texas subsidiaries. Therefore, it was engaged in interstate commerce.

The subsidiaries are the Houston Natural Gas company, Texas Natural Gas Utilities, Gulf Cities Natural Gas company, and Tex-Mex Natural Gas company.

Tea Leaves Tell Nation's Fortune; Recession's Here!

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Foreign trade officials contend they can read the fortune of the country in tea leaves. During the last twelve months, a period of economic recession, imports of tea declined about 6.6 per cent, or from 91,562,000 to 85,589,000 pounds, the federal tea examiners board reported. Records show, officials said that imports have been largest in years of prosperity and smallest in periods of depression.

REOPEN THREE OF HARVESTER'S CHICAGO PLANTS

The International Harvester company yesterday re-opened three of its Chicago works after a two week shutdown. Company officials announced, however, that employment at the McCormick and West Pullman works, two of those re-opened, will be reduced after Aug. 15, and that the Tractor works will be closed indefinitely Aug. 15. Officials said that recall of men in all plants and re-opening of the Tractor works after Aug. 15 would depend on the volume of orders received.

The tractor plant at Rock Island, closed since July 1, will continue closed indefinitly. The Milwaukee plant was re-opened yesterday, but will close again Aug. 15. Four implement works, which were closed in July, resumed operations yesterday. Officials said these would remain in operation for some weeks, depending on the volume of orders. The works are at Rock Falls, Ill., Auburn, N. Y., Richmond, Ind., and Chattanooga, Tenn.

RESUME HEARING ON NORTH SHORE LINE WAGE ISSUE

Hearing on the petition of A. A. Sprague, receiver for the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee railroad, for instructions regarding a 15 per cent wage cut was resumed yesterday. Jacob I. Grossman, master in chancery, is holding the hearing. He will make a recommendation to the federal court.

Charles E. Thompson, financial officer of the electric road, said the line has been losing money at the rate of $23,000 to $25,000 a month. He estimated the proposed wage cut would save the road $25,000 monthly and enable it to break even.

Thompson said the North Shore had been hard hit in recent years by competition from motor vehicles and fream steam railroads. Both passenger and freight business has suffered, he said.

The hearing will be resumed Wednesday. About 1,300 employés will be affected by the outcome.

Number of Phones in Use in Chicago Rises to 942,989

Chicago had 942,989 telephones in service July 28 compared with 926,211 on the corresponding day last year, the Illinois Bell Telephone company reported yesterday.

The telephone operating subsidiaries of International Telephone and Telegraph corporation in nine foreign countries reported a combined gain of 34,816 telephones in the first half of 1938, or about 4,400 more than the gain for the same period last year.

INDUSTRY HELD BACK BY GROWTH OF LABOR STRIFE

Wagner Act Raises New Problems; Rights Defied

political gains professional union organizers have been able to wrest many concessions from industry in the shape of higher wages, shorter hours and less work. To what extent these represent net gains for labor is still a question. Many unions are now struggling to hold temporary gains which have been made rather tenuous by declining industrial profits. Some have already lost part of the fruits of their earlier victories.

The effect of current labor unrest on industry generally has been to increase operating costs and reduce profits. Some employers have had to close down. Others—as in the case of the railroads—have compensated for increased wages by discharging many of their workers. Still others have moved their plants to less hostile communities.

Wage raises, reduced working hours and the "slowdown" in the workers' output can be sustained better in a period of rising prosperity and increasing profits. When business volume turns down—as it did during 1937—the problem is much more acute because such concessions to workers can in the long run be paid only out of earnings. The steel industry, for example, already is beginning to talk wage cuts, because the present low volume of sales is running many companies into losses.

Increasing labor costs became one of the major problems of industry in 1937.

Figures Reveal Changes.

Here are some figures from the United States department of labor showing what wage increases, shorter hours and the "slowdown" have done to the cost of production in manufacturing industries:

1929	*	124
1932	46.5	100
1933	46.0	89
1934	54.8	109
1935	56.8	107
1936	57.5	106
1937	64.6	122
October, 1937	66.6	138
January, 1938	66.3	130
March, 1938	65.5	130

*Unavailable.

Although the department of labor figures do not cover hourly wage figures for 1929, the records compiled by the national industrial conference board show that the average of hourly earnings of workers began to exceed the 1929 level early in 1936. The board's figures show that average hourly earnings in 25 manufacturing industries in March, 1938, were 21 per cent above the 1929 level.

Investors Discouraged.

Coming at a time when taxes and other expenses were rising and sales were declining, the big increase in the cost of labor per unit of production has cut deeply into earnings and has discouraged company managements and investors who might otherwise be more readily inclined to undertake new enterprises.

The increase in labor costs, however, is only one of the consequences of the labor turmoil of the last two or three years. The yearly loss to industry resulting from factories closed by strikes has never been accurately computed, but conservative estimates run into the hundreds of millions. Dr. Gordon S. Watkins, University of California dean and a leading arbiter in industrial disputes, estimated last year that strikes and lockouts in the United States since 1914 had caused a loss of about 20 billion dollars.

The loss to labor, too, has been tremendous. According to United States department of labor figures there were 4,740 strikes involving 1,860,621 workers during 1937. These workers lost a total of 28,424,857 days.

Assuming average wages to be $5 a day the loss in pay to these workers alone during that one year was about 140 million dollars. This figure does not include allowance for other workers thrown into idleness in companies depending for business on the concerns actually closed by strikes. Nor does it allow for losses to merchants and others whose sales were curtailed by the stopping of factory pay rolls.

1929	921	288,572	5,351,540
1930	637	182,975	3,316,808
1931	810	341,817	6,893,244
1932	841	324,210	10,502,033
1933	1,695	1,168,272	16,872,128
1934	1,856	1,466,695	19,591,946
1935	2,014	1,117,213	15,456,337
1936	2,172	788,648	13,901,956

Normal Trend Reversed.

Usually trade union activity and strikes increase when business is on the upgrade. This situation was reversed in 1937—a year of sharply declining business activity—when the United States experienced the greatest number of strikes in its history.

The department of labor itself in its "Monthly Labor Review" for May, 1938, explains this reversal.

"It would appear," says this publication, "that other conditions, such as the political situation, the state of mind of the workers, and the type of labor leadership, have as much to do with the amount of strike activity as the purely economic factors of prices and business conditions."

Railroad Yardsticks—3.

Yesterday we discussed the operating ratio of railroads as a measure of efficiency of operation. There are a number of other yardsticks which can be used in appraising the securities of a particular road. It should be said that no one yardstick gives a complete picture of a road's efficiency or ability to adjust operations to the income from available trafic.

The year 1929 was a relatively good one for the railroads. In that year operating expenses of American railroads on the average took 72 per cent of operating revenues. The cost of maintaining way and structures required about 14 per cent of revenues. Maintenance of equipment required 19 per cent. Transportation expenses required 33 per cent. Trafic and general expenses required 6 per cent. These percentages are significant because they show what the roads spend when they have the money. The percentages vary from year to year.

The prospective investor should investigate if a particular road's expenses are out of line with the average in any particular year. He may find, however, that there is a very good reason. A high percentage of expenditures for maintenance may not mean that the management is extravagant. It may mean that the road is being kept in excellent condition. This may result in better service to shippers and hence bring more business. It might also result in savings elsewhere which would make up the difference in future years.
